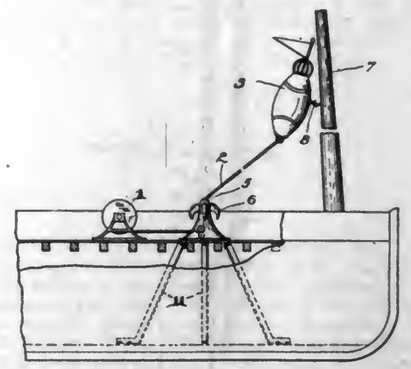
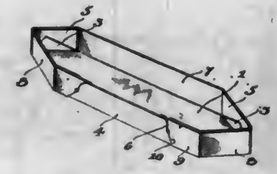
1,664,279. SAFETY RAZOR. RAMÓN AGUILAR, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 16, 1927. Serial No. 168,604. 3 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)

1. In a safety razor comprising a bottom guard member having longitudinal recesses along the edges thereof, rectangular teeth on the edges of said guard, bars slidably mounted in said recesses, supplementary teeth sections on said bars adapted to be positioned in close proximity to said rectangular teeth for extending the length thereof and a blade disposed above said bottom guard comprising cutting edges, said supplementary teeth sections being adapted to be extended to various positions in advance of said cutting edges.



1,664,280. CHAIN. CARL AUGENSTEIN, Cranston, and ROBERT VOGEL, Providence, R. I., assignors to Automatic Gold Chain Company, a Firm composed of Edwin F. M. Speidel and Albert R. Speidel, Edgewood, R. I. Filed Dec. 9, 1926. Serial No. 153,529. 4 Claims. (Cl. 59—79.)

1. A bracelet structure comprising a series of extendible link units, each having a guide link formed of sheet stock folded to provide a broad front plate having narrow side walls with inturned portions forming parts of a rear wall with a space between the wall parts, a band-shaped slide link having a pair of oppositely disposed arms slidable in said guide link one of said arms being shaped to form a hook, the other arm being resilient to close the hook, said resilient arm having inwardly turned edge flanges and being positioned flush with the rear wall parts of the guide link and slidable therebetween, spring means for moving the links of said units to contracted position, and a member on the adjacent end of the guide link to which the hook of the slide link is detachably connected.



1,664,281. DEVICE FOR LOCATING AND RAISING SUNKEN VESSELS. JOHN FERGUSON BAINE, North Bay, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 17, 1926. Serial No. 102,710. 5 Claims. (Cl. 114—51.)

5. The combination with a marine vessel of a buoy; a grapple engaging member rigidly secured to and braced from the vessel structure having adjacent its upper end a plurality of outwardly and downwardly directed hooks secured to and extending from its upper end; a line extending from the center of the outer end of said grapple engaging member to said buoy; a grapple ring adapted to slip over said hooks and engage under one or more, the said ring being of an internal diameter greater than the distance of the center of the outer end of the grapple engaging member from the ends of the hooks; and a cable connected to one side of the ring, the diameter of the ring also being less than that of a circle containing the hooks.

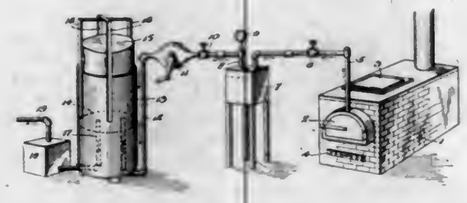
1,664,282. CANDY CONTAINER. LIZZIE M. BIER, Sidney, Ohio, assignor to C. F. Hickok Co., Sidney, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 5, 1924. Serial No. 718,150. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—35.)

A carton formed from a blank of material having a central elongated portion pointed at opposite ends, substantially triangular shaped tabs connected to said central portion upon each side of the pointed ends thereof, an elongated portion foldably attached to one side of said central portion, a plurality of flaps extending serially from each end of the elongated portion, the last flap on each end having inwardly extending notches therein, a second elongated portion attached to the other side of said central portion having a plurality of joined and aligned flaps connected to each end thereof, inwardly extending notches arranged adjacent each end of the second elongated portion; whereby, when the elements set forth are folded and interlocked, they form a receptacle of substantial canoe shape.

1,664,283. COMBINATION WASHING TOOL AND SWAB. ALEXANDER BOYNTON, San Antonio, Tex. Filed Feb. 5, 1924. Serial No. 690,792. 3 Claims. (Cl. 166—20.)



1. A tool for use in wells comprising a tubular body having water discharge openings, a sleeve receiving said body and having openings adapted to register with said first named openings, sealing members mounted on said body at opposite ends of said sleeve, retainers mounted on said body and engaging said sealing members, said retainers being adapted to engage the ends of said sleeve to hold the sleeve in a set position with the openings of the same either in or out of registration with the openings in the tubular body.

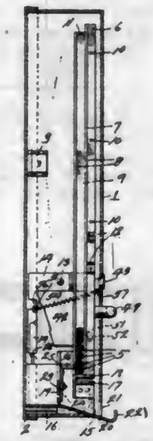
1,664,284. DOMESTIC GAS PLANT. AUGUSTUS L. CLARK, Montpelier, Vt. Filed Nov. 9, 1926. Serial No. 147,354. 2 Claims. (Cl. 48—90.)

2. A domestic gas plant capable of manual operation having in combination, a domestic heating apparatus, means for feeding said heating apparatus from the top thereof, a retort mounted directly on and heated by said heating apparatus said retort having a door, a hydraulic tank, a valve-controlled pipe from the retort to the hydraulic tank and terminating at a point below the water level of said tank, a gas exhauster, a manually operated valve controlled conduit from the hydraulic tank to the gas exhauster, a telescopic gas holder having a telescoping section provided with guide arms of nearly equal length to the aforesaid telescoping section, a conduit from the gas exhauster to the gas holder, an outlet pipe from the gas holder, a purifier box with which said outlet pipe communicates, and a gas outlet pipe from the purifier box.



1,664,285. SHINGLE CONSTRUCTION. ROBERT J. DEANS, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Jan. 8, 1927. Serial No. 159,803. 3 Claims. (Cl. 108—17.)

3. In a device of the class described, a shingle comprising a body portion having spaced slots therein, upwardly disposed tongues on the adjacent corners of one end of said body portion, and a central tongue on the other end of said body portion, said body portion being provided with side notches extending between the extremities of said central tongue and the adjacent end of body portion, said notches being terminated in longitudinal alignment with the inner end of the slots of said body portion and the ends of said central tongue being disposed downwardly relative thereto.

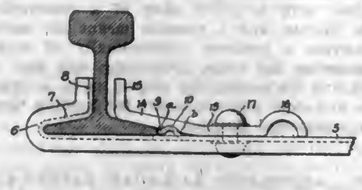
1,664,286. PENCIL-VENDING MACHINE. ALFRED B. DISHMAN, Okmulgee, Okla. Filed Nov. 8, 1926. Serial No. 147,011. 5 Claims. (Cl. 194—48.)

1. The combination with the free end of a discharge frame of a vending machine, of coin control mechanism for said free end, said mechanism comprising a coin receiving hopper, a plate to one side of said coin receiving hopper and having a recess therein, said plate being slidably mounted and supporting the hopper, a fixed shaft extending through an elongated aperture in the plate, a pivoted lever mounted on said shaft, a flange carried by said lever and disposed in the recess of the plate, shoulders within the recess of the plate and with which said flange cooperates, a coin engaging flange carried by the other end of the lever and underlying the coin hopper, said hopper and plate being simultaneously movable inwardly and outwardly.



1,664,287. BRAKING DEVICE. FREDRICK P. DUNN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Nov. 6, 1926. Serial No. 145,843. 4 Claims. (Cl. 188—3.)

2. A device of the character described comprising; a tractor; a trailer swingingly coupled to the tractor and having a brake gear thereon adapted for actuation by a forwardly extending pull rod; a rotatable cable drum upon the tractor; a cable upon the drum extending rearwardly over a guide sheave at the near rear corner of the tractor to an attachment at the far rear corner; and a sheave upon said pull rod engaging the cable intermediate said attachment and guide sheave.

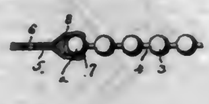
1,664,288. RAIL TIE. JOHN GRIFFIN DURANT, Jr., Huntington, W. Va. Filed Oct. 19, 1927. Serial No. 227,264. 6 Claims. (Cl. 238—10.)

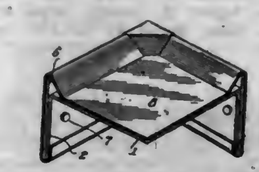


1. A rail tie having means for engaging the outer flange of a rail and lugs engaging the inner rail flange in combination with a latch pivoted to the tie and held in latching engagement with the rail by said lugs.

1,664,289. PUNCH FOR ATTACHING LABELS, ETC. LUTHER M. FEATHERS, Johnson City, Tenn., assignor of one-half to Carmon S. Bowers, Johnson City, Tenn. Filed Sept. 27, 1927. Serial No. 222,324. 16 Claims. (Cl. 93—1.)

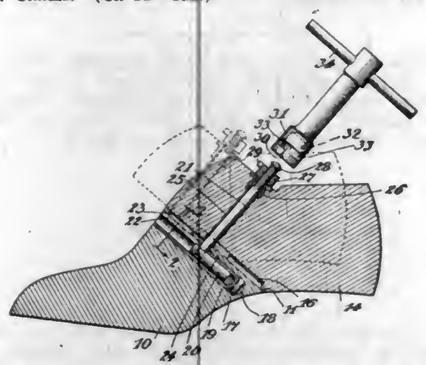
1. In a punch of the character described the combination with a base, having a depressed working surface broken by knife-receiving slots, of a plunger surmounting said base, and a series of knives carried by said plunger arranged and adapted to enter said slots when the plunger is depressed.

1,664,290. COUPLING FOR BEAD CHAINS. WILLIAM J. GAGNON, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The Bead Chain Manufacturing Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed June 25, 1927. Serial No. 201,539. 2 Claims. (Cl. 59—95.)



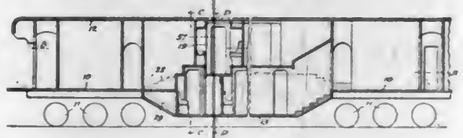
1. A coupling for chains of the split bead type, comprising a length of seamless tubular stock collapsed at one end to form a double walled plate, apertured to accommodate a jump ring, the other end of the tube having an internal diameter only slightly in excess of the overall diameter of the ball and accommodating the end ball of a chain, said end of the blank being offset inward to detain the ball against escape.

1,664,291. COUPLING FOR BEAD CHAINS. WILLIAM J. GAGNON, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The Bead Chain Manufacturing Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed June 25, 1927. Serial No. 201,540. 3 Claims. (Cl. 59—95.)



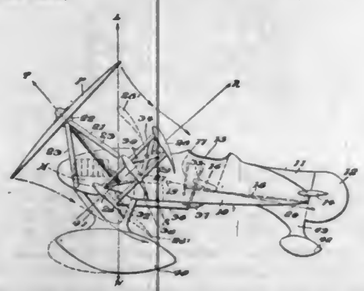
2. A coupling device comprising a drawn sheet metal eyelet having end flanges extending from one side of the eyelet and adapted to be offset into engagement with the end ball of a bead chain, said eyelet having its greatest axial length at the side from which the chain-engaging flanges extend.

1,664,292. METAL TABLE TOP. JOHN EDWARD GLOBKLER, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Dec. 28, 1926. Serial No. 157,576. 7 Claims. (Cl. 45—31.)



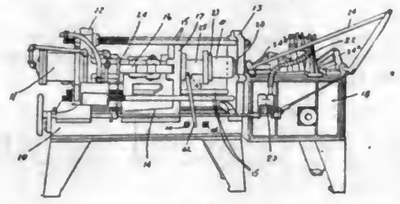
4. The combination in a metal top construction, of a top body having an upper surface, brace means fixed with respect to the body and extending above the said surface of the body at the edge portion of the body, and a sheet covering resting exteriorly of said body and brace means and permanently affixed thereto and having an inner portion above and against and supported by the upper surface of the body and also having upstanding hollow guard means receiving and reenforced by said extended brace means.

1,664,293. SECTIONAL LAST. SABINO GUAITOLI, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Mar. 23, 1927. Serial No. 177,483. 7 Claims. (Cl. 12—135.)



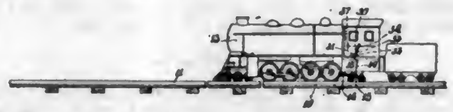
1. A last comprising forward and rear sections meeting in an oblique plane and being relatively movable in such plane, and means for clamping the sections when in operative position, said means preventing disassociation, said clamping means being adapted to receive a wrench also operative in rasing the last from a shoe.

1,664,294. COMPARTMENT CONVEYANCE CONSTRUCTION. ERIC GUGLER, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 5, 1926. Serial No. 127,420. 7 Claims. (Cl. 105—315.)



1. A compartment conveyance construction, including a portion intermediate its ends and between the wheels, having an undersung floor for increasing the distance between the usual floor level and the roof to afford sufficient height for defining upper and lower tiers of compartments, the said intermediate portion having laterally spaced longitudinally extending upper and lower corridors at opposite sides of the conveyance for gaining access, respectively, to the upper and lower compartments.

1,664,295. AIRPLANE. RANDOLPH F. HALL, Ithaca, N. Y., assignor of twenty-five one-hundredths to Theodore P. Hall, Wallingford, Conn., and twenty-five one-hundredths to Agnew E. Larsen, Bryn Athyn, Pa. Filed Aug. 29, 1923. Serial No. 659,987. 25 Claims. (Cl. 244—14.)



25. In an airplane, a normally horizontally disposed fuselage, a truss structure extending from opposite sides of said fuselage, propellers mounted on said truss structure diposed at opposite sides of said fuselage in fixed position for rotation around axis inclined upwardly and forwardly to the horizontal, drive mechanism for said propellers, a supporting surface mounted on the fuselage in position with the major area thereof disposed within and acted upon by the displacement flow from said propellers, and the said supporting surface adjustable independently of the propellers and drive mechanism therefor to vary the angle of incidence thereof in the displacement flow.

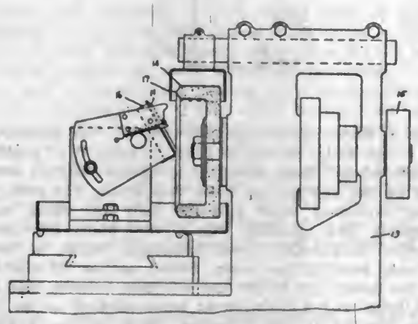
1,664,296. MACHINE FOR DIE-CASTING PULLEYS AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM D. HAMERSTADT, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Rockwood Manufacturing Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation. Filed July 31, 1926. Serial No. 126,262. 11 Claims. (Cl. 22—68.)

1. In a mechanism of the character described, the combination with a pulley shell of a removable core insertible therein, and a common means for simultaneously exerting a pressure longitudinally of said shell for compressing the same, positioning said core within said shell and discharging die casting metal intermediate said core and shell under pressure for bonding therewith while in compressed position.

1,664,297. AUTOMATIC RAILROAD SAFETY-SIGNAL DEVICE. MIHALY JENEY and PAUL ORBAN, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 21, 1926. Serial No. 156,096. 4 Claims. (Cl. 246—167.)

1. In combination with a railway track provided with zones, a signal device on locomotives, and means for operating the signal device when two locomotives enter the same zone, said means comprising a solenoid connected with a hook engageable with a second hook on a rod, connected with switches controlling circuits including a source of power, and a motor driven wheel equipped with contact discs electrically connected to certain parts of the signal device.

1,664,298. SANITARY-NAPKIN HOLDER. SAMUEL KATZ, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 20, 1926. Serial No. 155,882. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—290.)

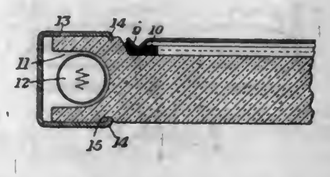


A bandage support comprising a crotch band adapted to be attached to the front portion of a waist band of a pair of bloomers at one end and adapted at its other end to be attached to the rear portion of said waist band, a pad comprising bandage material disposed on the upper side of said crotch band, clamping means for adjustably securing said pad to said crotch band comprising a substantially rigid member having a substantially flat bottom surface engaged against the upper side of said crotch band and an upper concave surface for receiving the end portion of said pad, and an elastic band disposed around said crotch band and said rigid member and directly attached to the latter for resiliently clamping said rigid member and the end portion of said pad to said crotch band, said resilient band and the rigid member attached thereto being slidable longitudinally of the crotch band for accommodating pads of different lengths while retaining the pad and the crotch band in spread relation.

1,664,299. CIRCULAR-KNITTING MACHINE. HARRY E. KATZENMOYER, Reading, Pa., assignor to Scott and Williams, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 17, 1923. Serial No. 669,094. 4 Claims. (Cl. 66—40.)

1. A circular knitting machine having needles some of which have long butts and others short butts and a movable clearing cam therefor and means for moving this cam either to the clearing or the tucking position in combination with an additional clearing cam and automatic means to move the latter to active position during a part only of a revolution, as and for the purpose set forth.

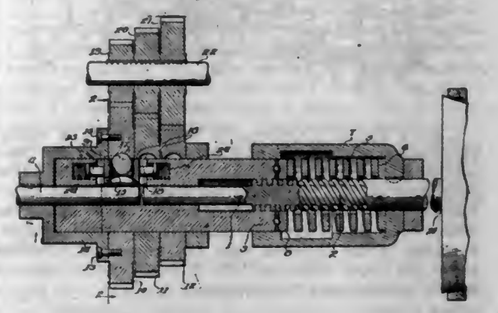
1,664,300. PROCESS OF SILVERING AND BEVELING SMALL MIRRORS. BERT F. KELLY, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Parts Corporation, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation. Filed July 16, 1926. Serial No. 122,891. 1 Claim. (Cl. 51—278.)



The process of beveling a glass plate consisting in providing a cup wheel having an inverted V-shaped cutting edge, mounting the glass on a carriage at a predetermined angle to the cutting edge of said wheel and gradually moving said glass in one direction while in engagement with one side of said edge for causing said edge to cut a flat bevel on said glass during one passage of the glass, and thereafter reversing the movement of the glass with respect to said wheel and beveling another edge thereof by its engagement with the other side of said cutting edge so as to cause said wheel to be self-dressed and thereby maintain a relatively sharp cutting edge.

1,664,301. COMPACT HOLDER AND EJECTOR. WILLIAM G. KENDALL, Newark, N. J. Filed Oct. 7, 1927. Serial No. 224,059. 14 Claims. (Cl. 132—82.)

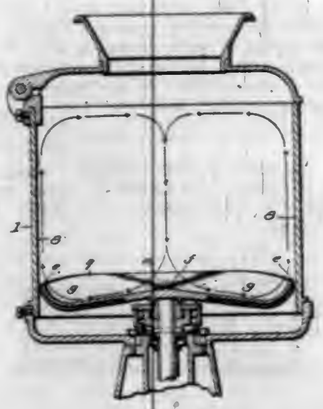
1. In a vanity case, a compact ejector comprising a catch structure for normally holding a compact in place, a constantly acting spring positioned to urge the compact to an ejected position, and manually actuated means for moving the catch structure to an inoperative position whereby said spring may function.



1,664,302. LICENSE-PLATE HOLDER. FRED LEOPOLD, SAMUEL E. CLANEY, and LEWIS K. GARIS, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Mar. 7, 1927. Serial No. 173,303. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—140.)

1. A license plate holder, comprising a transparent body, means associated therewith for holding a plate so that its front face may be viewed through the body, and illuminating means for the plate within the body, such illuminating means being disposed forward of the plane of the front face of the plate.

4. The combination with a license plate of a holder comprising a transparent body having a plate receiving recess therein, a gasket for spacing the plate from the body when contained in the recess, and means pressing the plate against the gasket and toward the body acting on the plate intermediate its edges to maintain the plate sprung toward the body whereby all possibility of rattling of the plate against the body is eliminated.



1,664,303. GEAR-RATIO-CHANGING MECHANISM. FRED W. MAYER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 21, 1927. Serial No. 162,466. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—59.)

1. In a device of the character described, driving and driven shafts, variable ratio gearing between the driving and driven shafts, a torque-governed sleeve on the driving shaft movable relatively longitudinally therewith, yielding means for resisting said relative longitudinal movement, a slot in said sleeve, and a clutch in said slot yieldingly longitudinally movable independent of said relative longitudinal movement but operable by said relative longitudinal movement for automatically determining said ratio.

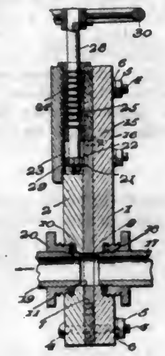
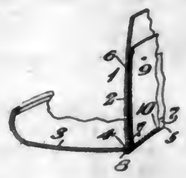
1,664,304. VEGETABLE-PEELING MACHINE. CLAUDE B. MCCATHRON, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Josiah Anstice & Co. Inc., Rochester, N. Y. Filed Jan. 26, 1927. Serial No. 163,704. 3 Claims. (Cl. 146—49.)

1. A vegetable peeling machine comprising a container having an inner abrading surface, a revolving disk having an abrading surface, the disk acting as a bottom for the container, said disk having two oppositely arranged relatively large low surfaces and intervening relatively small high surfaces, the high surfaces rising gradually towards the periphery of the disk and low surfaces falling gradually from near the center of the disk to near their periphery and suddenly rising to the periphery for the purpose specified.



1,664,305. SUPPORTING UNIT FOR VEHICLES. HARRY C. MCCLEARY, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 23, 1926. Serial No. 104,156. 16 Claims. (Cl. 180—73.)

1. In a spring suspension, a chassis frame, a casing supported thereon, opposite wheel supports, parallel connectors extending from the casing to said supports, coiled supporting springs carried by the frame at a point intermediate the casing and wheel support and acting on means upon said connectors adjacent the wheel support, a spring carrier mounted upon the frame and extended above the upper connector, and a recoil spring mounted therein to bear upon the connector.



1,664,306. PLATE VALVE. WILLIAM A. MILAM, Austin, Tex. Filed June 10, 1926. Serial No. 115,076. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—84.)

In a valve, a pair of opposed spaced plates having opposed flat faces and further provided with registering ports, a compressible gasket interposed between the plates having a circular opening, a disc valve rotatable in the opening and movable between the ports with its opposite faces contacting with the plates and having a port normally disposed out of registration with the first mentioned ports, but adapted to be brought into registration with the latter upon rotation of the disc valve in one direction, the walls of the circular opening defining a guide for the rotatable valve to prevent the latter from bodily shifting edgewise, and adjustable fastenings passing thru the plates and gasket whereby to draw the plates into water tight engagement with the gasket, and into frictional contact with the valve to compensate for wear, and to prevent premature rotation of the valve.

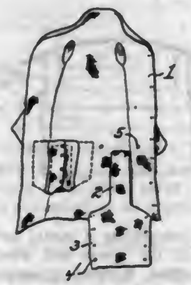
1,664,307. PERSPIRATION-PROOF DEVICE FOR HATS, CAPS, AND THE LIKE. HERBERT J. MILLARD, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Frank Schoble & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 16, 1926. Serial No. 135,716. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—181.)

In a device of the character stated, the combination of a hat body having a brim, a thin, flat, auxiliary, moisture-proof band arranged to extend entirely around and lie flat against the inner face of the hat body, said band extending below said hat body and being turned inwardly and upwardly for a very short distance to provide an annular, lower peripheral flange, a line of stitches securing the lower, folded portion of said band to the inner apex of the angle formed between said body and brim, and a main sweat band stitched at its lower edge directly to the upturned flange of the auxiliary, moisture-proof band, said main sweat band being of a greater height than said auxiliary, moisture-proof band, the stitches of said moisture-proof band being arranged in a plane below said main sweat band so that insulating means is provided to prevent perspiration from the main sweat band attacking the hat body.



1,664,308. SHIPPING-BOX STRUCTURE. KINNEY I. MILLER, Lancaster, Mo. Filed Dec. 16, 1926. Serial No. 155,177. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—32.)

1. A strawboard box blank having integrally formed strengthening bosses protruding at one side across the bottom portion and two opposite connected side portions, and having similar bosses protruding at the opposite side of the blank across the two remaining opposite connected side portions and connected corner portions, all of the said bosses running parallel with one another.

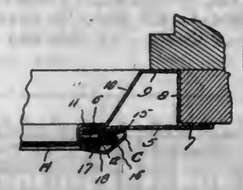
1,664,309. RAINCOAT. GEORGE D. MUELLER, Akron, Ohio. Filed Mar. 22, 1927. Serial No. 177,356. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—86.)

A garment comprising a coat having pairs of spaced fasteners at the inner face thereof, and strips of waterproof material, each having its upper edge formed with a central reduced extension whose end is secured to the inner face of the garment between the respective pairs of fasteners therein, each of said strips having their edges provided with male and female fasteners designed to cooperate with the strips when folded upon themselves and lapped to afford leggins and when the strips are spread and connected together to provide a depending skirt for the garment and said fastening elements also designed to cooperate with the first mentioned elements when the strips are folded upon themselves and arranged within the garment.



1,664,310. COIN-FEEDING MECHANISM. FRANK G. MURRAY, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 5, 1926. Serial No. 127,209. 6 Claims. (Cl. 133—8.)

1. In a coin and token feeding mechanism of the type described, the combination of a stationary casing formed with a circular receiving chamber arranged in an inclined position and provided with an inlet for coins and tokens, a closure head for the underside of said chamber cut away near the upper end of said chamber to form a shallow recess, a revolvable feeder disc having bearing on said closure and constituting the bottom surface of the aforesaid chamber, the said feeder disc having a circular series of receiving orifices near its margin adapted to register with the aforesaid shallow recess in the closure head, a primary receiving chute connecting with said shallow recess and adapted to receive tokens only of a predetermined thickness or less, a secondary receiving chute connecting with said recess at a further point of travel of the feeder disk and adapted to receive tokens of a greater thickness than the aforesaid primary chute, and means for imparting rotation to said feeder disc.

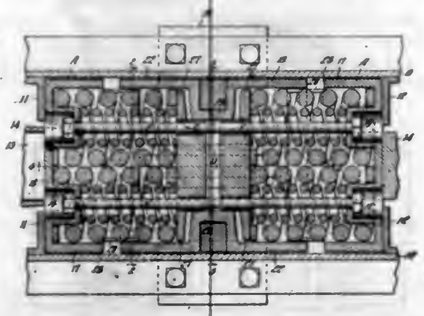
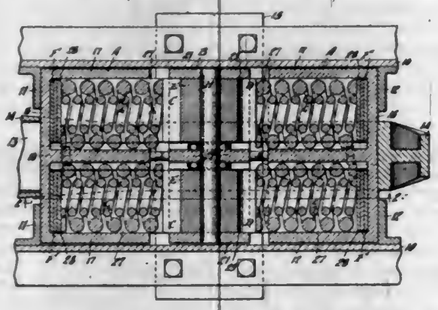
1,664,311. WINDOW-SCREEN FRAME. OSCAR VENDAL NELSON, Racine, Wis. Filed Nov. 26, 1926. Serial No. 150,917. 1 Claim. (Cl. 156—14.)



In a window screen frame construction, a rail formed from a single sheet of metal bent along spaced parallel longitudinal dimensions to form an inside plate which merges at one edge into an extension, said extension merging into an overhanging extension, said overhanging extension merging into a plate disposed perpendicularly to the first plate, said second plate merging into a third plate extending perpendicularly therefrom, said third plate merging into a cross plate extending obtusely therefrom and at an acute angle to the first plate and merging into an extension overlying the first plate and bent over upon itself in spaced relation and terminating in a portion forming a pocket with the first mentioned bent over portion, the other edge of the first plate being extended and curved over upon itself to fit in the pocket, and a clamp clip formed from a single sheet of metal bent along parallel spaced longitudinal dimensions to form a plate having one edge merging into an acutely disposed extension, said extension of the clip merging into a second extension acutely disposed to the plate of the clip, said second extension of the clip merging into a third extension disposed parallel with the plate of the clip.

1,664,312. SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to W. H. Miner, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 1, 1924, Serial No. 740,934. Renewed Nov. 28, 1927. 10 Claims. (Cl. 213—24.)



1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with front and rear follower acting elements, relatively movable toward and away from each other; of tandem arranged springs interposed between said follower elements; a friction shell interposed between said follower elements, said shell having opposed, interior friction surfaces; a plurality of friction shoes cooperating with said friction surfaces, said shoes being arranged in groups on opposite sides of the axis of the mechanism, certain of the shoes of each group being adapted to be actuated by one of said follower elements and the remaining shoes of said groups being adapted to be actuated by the other follower element; and front and rear wedges cooperating with said shoes, said wedges being interposed between said tandem springs.

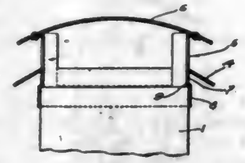
1,664,313. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 4, 1925, Serial No. 54,417. Renewed Nov. 28, 1927. 6 Claims. (Cl. 213—33.)

1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with front and rear movable followers; of a wedge block having wedge faces at the opposite ends thereof; friction shoes at the opposite ends of said wedge, having wedge faces cooperating with the faces of said block; a friction member interposed between said followers; relatively movable friction elements interposed between said shoes and friction member, said elements being engaged by and moved relatively to each other by said followers; and spring resistance means interposed between said followers and shoes and opposing relative movement of said follower and shoes.



1,664,314. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 9, 1925, Serial No. 61,403. Renewed Nov. 28, 1927. 10 Claims. (Cl. 213—33.)

1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with front and rear, relatively movable follower elements; of a shell interposed between said followers; a set of friction plates, said plates being fixed relatively to the shell; two sets of friction plates adapted to be engaged by said follower elements respectively and moved relatively toward each other thereby, and also relatively to said first named set of plates; spreading means for placing said plates under lateral pressure; and spring resistance means cooperating with said spreading means.

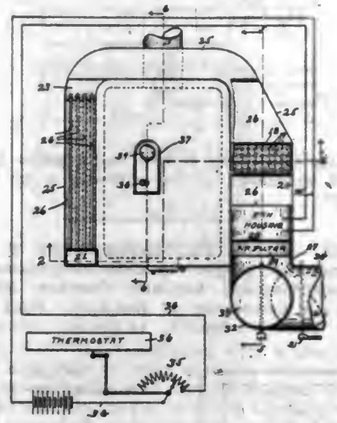
1,664,315. CHIMNEY CAP. ROBERT P. ORR, Schenectady, N. Y. Filed Oct. 27, 1926. Serial No. 144,594. 1 Claim. (Cl. 98—67.)

A chimney cap, comprising a metal body formed with an offset portion at the lower end adapted to overlap a chimney, said offset portion presenting a shoulder adapted to rest on top of the chimney, part of said body extending upwardly from said offset portion for presenting an enclosing wall, said wall being cut at two places on each side with part forming upstanding corner posts and the remaining part positioned to present an inclined air deflecting portion spaced above the top of the chimney, and a covering plate secured directly to the top of said posts and extending across the chimney on which the device is mounted to a point substantially above the outer edge of said deflecting portion.



1,664,316. WIPER. FRED OWENS, Mount Vernon, Ky. Filed Oct. 22, 1926, Serial No. 143,448. Renewed Feb. 1, 1928. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—210.)

A device for the purpose set forth comprising an angle member, one of whose flanges is bifurcated for securing it to a support, the second flange having a central opening extending from the outer end thereof, the outer edges of the last mentioned flange being bent over the body thereof, wiper cloths secured to the body by said bent edges and the free ends of the wiper cloths extending into and passing through the mentioned opening in the member.

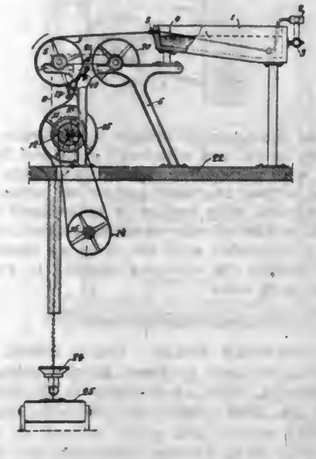
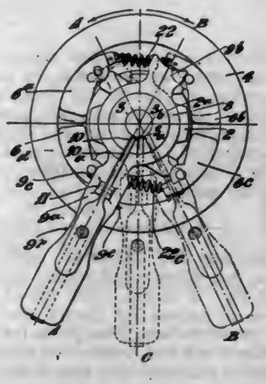
1,664,317. HEATING SYSTEM. ROBERT J. PABODIE, Maywood, Ill., assignor of one-half to Brayton G. Richards, Western Springs, Ill. Filed Apr. 21, 1927. Serial No. 185,618. 10 Claims. (Cl. 126—101.)



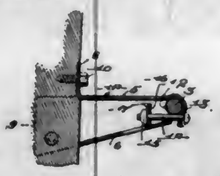
1. A heating system comprising a boiler; a hot air flue; heating elements in said flue and connected to be supplied with steam from said boiler; and heating elements in said flue connected to be supplied with hot water from said boiler.

1,664,318. FUEL-SUPPLY SYSTEM. THOMAS A. PEEBLES, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to John M. Hopwood, Dormont, Pa. Filed Apr. 15, 1925. Serial No. 23,397. 5 Claims. (Cl. 236—15.)



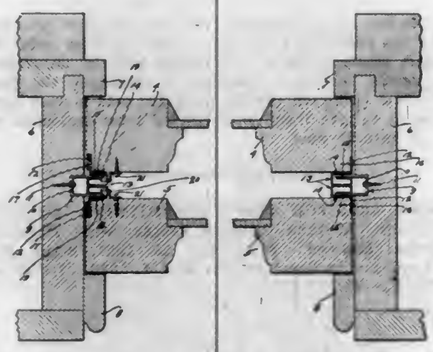
1. In combination with a furnace having a vent for consumed gases, means for delivering fuel to said furnace, a damper for controlling the delivery of consumed gases through said vent, means responsive to pressure within the combustion chamber of said furnace for controlling said damper to maintain a substantially constant pressure of furnace gases within said chamber, a bypass communicating with the combustion chamber of said furnace and having a port therein communicating with the atmosphere, means for maintaining a substantially constant flow of combustion gases from said chamber through said bypass, a thermostat located in said bypass beyond said port, and means controlled by said thermostat for controlling said fuel delivery means.

1,664,319. PROCESS FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF A CELLULOSE PRODUCT HAVING THE APPEARANCE OF WOOL. AUGUSTIN PELLERIN, Trouville, France. Filed Feb. 12, 1926, Serial No. 87,993, and in France Dec. 30, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—54.)



1. Process for the manufacture of a cellulose product having the appearance of wool in starting from cellulose filaments issuing from a coagulating bath by adherence to a moving surface, consisting in subjecting the filaments to a backward turning upon the said moving surface so as to give them an undulated form analogous to that of natural wool.

1,664,320. CLUTCH FOR TRANSMITTING ROTARY MOTION. WALTER CHARLES PITTER, West Dulwich, London, England. Filed Mar. 25, 1927, Serial No. 178,448, and in Great Britain Mar. 1, 1926. 7 Claims. (Cl. 192—43.)

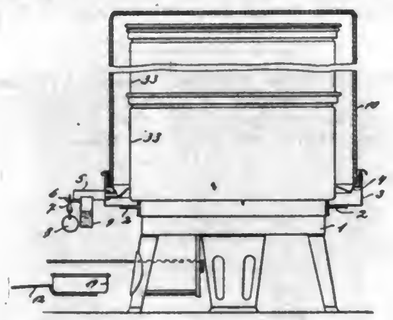


1. A clutch of the kind for transmitting motion from a rotary or reciprocating member to a rotary member, comprising a pair of oppositely disposed one way friction grip pawls, a main driving member associated with a main driven member a connecting link for each pawl, each pawl being pivoted at one end of its connecting link, the other end of the connecting link being pivoted to one of the main members, while the other main member has a concentric groove in which the gripping ends of the pair of pawls operate in oposite directions, and means for moving either of the pawls of the pair into an inoperative position and holding it there.

1,664,321. CABLE GUARD. IRVING E. QUIST, Warren, Minn. Filed Mar. 29, 1926. Serial No. 98,284. 4 Claims. (Cl. 256—1.)

1. A bracket comprising a tubular body portion having walls provided at one end with cable seats and having a wall formed with a clamping member extendable around the cable for holding the same against the seats, an attaching lug on the body portion in spaced and opposed relation to a portion of the clamping member, and fastening means cooperable with the clamping member and the lug for causing the clamping member to force the cable against said seats.

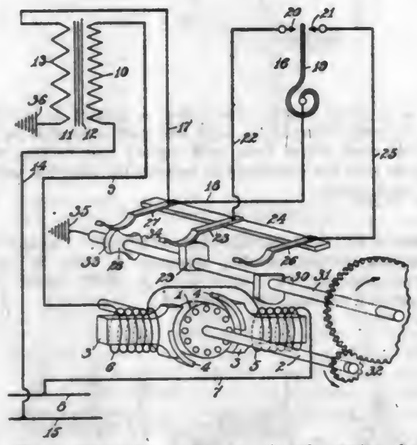
1,664,322. WEATHER STRIP. FRANK REESE, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Reese Metal Weather Strip Co., Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Jan. 24, 1927. Serial No. 163,126. 3 Claims. (Cl. 20—69.)



1. The combination with a window frame and sashes slidably mounted therein, of weather strips consisting of a stationary member attached to the frame and sliding members attached to the sashes, said sash member having laterally projecting air-sealing flanges seated in the sashes, and fastening clips at accessible portions of said sashes releasably holding the sliding members for common movement with the sashes.

1,664,323. PROCESS OF MAKING GUT STRINGS. TULLIO SARRA, San Bruno, Calif. Filed Mar. 22, 1926. Serial No. 96,668. 5 Claims. (Cl. 140—1.)

1. The process of making gut strings from the inner layer of bovine intestines which comprises separating the outer layers from the inner layer of such intestines by soaking the same in a solution of a hydroxide of an alkali metal which loosens the layers and then removing the outer layer and thereafter treating the inner layer with a similar solution to strengthen the same and twisting the resulting product into gut strings.



1,664,324. COOKING APPARATUS WITH STEAM HOOD. HERMANN SCHELL, Nuremberg, Germany. Filed July 30, 1926, Serial No. 126,000, and in Germany Mar. 16, 1925. 8 Claims. (Cl. 126—351.)

1. A cooking apparatus comprising in combination with the cooker proper having a source of heat, a steam hood, a trough shaped ring on which said steam hood rests and designed for collecting the water from condensation, an outflow from said ring, a mechanism for controlling said source of heat, and a means for operating said mechanism by the outflowing water from condensation.

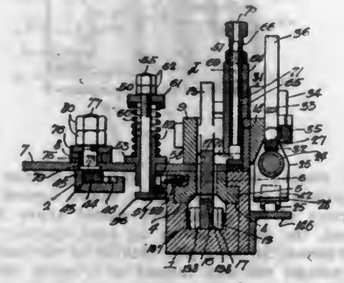
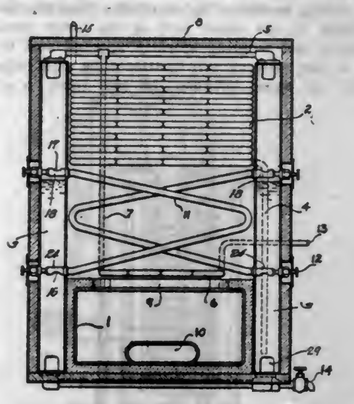
1,664,325. MOTOR REGULATOR. PAUL F. SHIVERS, Wabash, Ind., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 21, 1924. Serial No. 700,777. 14 Claims. (Cl. 172—278.)

1. The combination, with an electric motor having the windings thereof normally connected in closed circuit relation with the supply mains, of a step down transformer having relatively stationary windings and having its primary winding connected in series with the windings of said motor and so proportioned with respect thereto that when the secondary winding of said transformer is open circuited the counter-electromotive-force set up in said primary windings will prevent the passage of sufficient current to said motor to operate the same, a circuit including the secondary winding of the transformer and a switch in said circuit located at a distant point and adapted to open and close the circuit of the secondary winding.



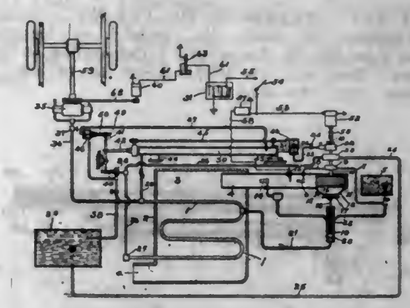
10. The combination with an electric motor having its windings normally in closed circuit relation with respect to the supply mains, of a transformer so constructed that the induced voltage is lower than the applied voltage and having its primary winding connected in series with the windings of said motor and so proportioned with respect thereto that when the secondary winding is open circuited the counter-electromotive force set up in said primary winding will prevent the passage of sufficient current to said motor to operate the same, a thermostatically operated switch for opening and closing the circuit of the secondary winding and additional circuit controlling means for opening the circuit of the secondary winding after the motor has operated for a predetermined period.

1,664,326. RELAY OPERATION INDICATOR. HARVEY P. SLEEPER, East Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 10, 1923, Serial No. 624,299. Renewed Nov. 10, 1927. 11 Claims. (Cl. 177—311.)



1. In a relay, the combination with a base for the operating mechanism, a cover having a transparent portion and a supporting stud therefor adapted to extend through an aperture in the cover, of an indicator comprising a semaphore visible through said cover and movable to indicating position when the relay mechanism operates and means for resetting the semaphore comprising a sleeve extending through the aperture in the cover and adapted to fit over the supporting stud, a knurled washer and means for securing it to the outer end of the sleeve, a laterally extending arm secured to the inner end of the sleeve and a spring for normally retaining the arm in position out of the path of movement of the semaphore.

1,664,327. PILE-WIRE-CONTROLLING MECHANISM FOR LOOMS. WILLIAM E. SMITH, Milltown, N. J., assignor to Gulbenkian Seamless Rug Company, New Brunswick, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 27, 1925. Serial No. 5,041. 16 Claims. (Cl. 139—41.)

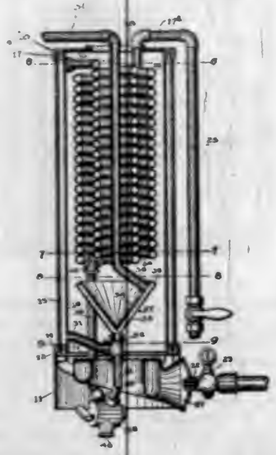


1. The combination in a loom employing pile wires, of a reciprocating pile wire controlling carriage; endless link belts operatively movable in opposite directions for controlling the reciprocation of said carriage; and means on one of said link belts for controlling the operation of the other of said belts.

1,664,328. STEAM AUTOMOTIVE-VEHICLE BOILER. ALLEN C. STALEY, La Fayette, Ind. Filed Mar. 8, 1922. Serial No. 541,974. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—281.)

In a steam generator of the water level type, a fire-box, a series of tubular headers at each side of the fire box, each series of headers being interconnected and contacting to form a water wall, steam pipes above the fire-box each detachably secured at its ends to a header with one end above water level and the other below water level, an economizer above the steam pipes and within the space enclosed by said water wall, a superheater comprising a horizontal coil below said steam pipes, a passage leading from the bottom of the economizer to the lower end of the header below the fire-box, a blow-off valve adjacent the lower end of said pipe, and a passage leading from the upper ends of the headers to the superheater, substantially as set forth.

1,664,329. AUTOMOTIVE STEAM-POWER PLANT. ALLEN C. STALEY, La Fayette, Ind. Filed Aug. 30, 1922. Serial No. 585,271. 1 Claim. (Cl. 60—105.)



In a steam power plant, a steam generator with burner and fuel supplying means therefor including means for supplying liquid fuel, a blower for causing a variable suction on said means, an air passage leading to the blower, a valve arranged to vary said passage in inverse proportion to the steam pressure, and an ever-open secondary air passage also leading to the blower, substantially as set forth.

1,664,330. WATER HEATER. THOMAS A. M. STEVENSON, Winston-Salem, N. C. Filed Feb. 12, 1926. Serial No. 87,890. 4 Claims. (Cl. 122—169.)

1. In a water heater, two cylindrical tubes of unequal diameters arranged concentrically to provide a space therebetween, means securing said tubes to each other at their ends and closing said space, a coiled pipe adapted to hold water secured inside of the smaller tube and extending downward in a spiral manner, a coil of piping mounted inside of the first mentioned coil, and joined to the outer coil at its lower portion, the last named coil winding spirally upward and being connected to the wall of the smaller tube and communicating with the space between the two tubes, a pipe communicating with the space between the two tubes near the lowermost portion of said space, said pipe being connected to a hollow funnel-shaped member located beneath the two coils, and a pipe leading from the upper portion of the funnel-shaped member up through the smaller coil and out of the top of the water heater, and heat producing means located beneath the funnel-shaped member.

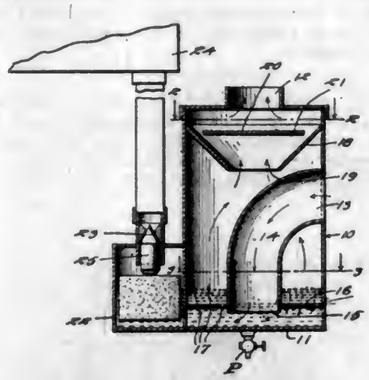
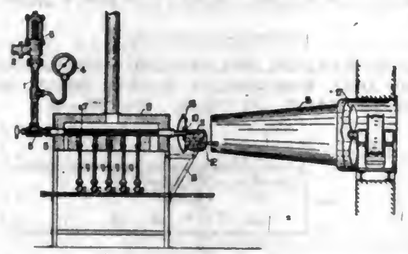
1,664,331. THERMOSTATIC CUT-OFF. ARTHUR STOCKSTROM, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to American Stove Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 12, 1926. Serial No. 101,405. 5 Claims. (Cl. 158—42.4.)



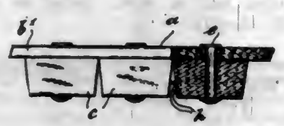
1. The combination with a gasoline burner of a generator tube located adjacent to the burner and adapted to be heated by a flame therefrom, an oil passageway communicating with the inlet to the generator, a hand operating valve adapted to control the flow of vapor from the outlet end of the generator and a thermostatic tube also located adjacent the said burner and adapted to be heated by a flame therefrom, said thermostatic tube located in the oil line, and an inner thermostatically operated member carrying at its end a valve adapted to control the said oil line, said thermostatic member maintaining therein a practically stationary body of oil and the valve of the thermostat adapted to normally close the oil passageway and when heated to open the said passageway.

1,664,332. DAYLIGHT LAMP FOR COLOR MATCHING, PERCHING, AND SIMILAR PURPOSES. LOUIS STOTT, Halifax, England, assignor to Smith, Bulmer and Company, Limited, Halifax, England, a Corporation of Great Britain. Filed Oct. 1, 1925, Serial No. 59,905, and in Great Britain Jan. 19, 1925. 8 Claims. (Cl. 240—1.)



1. A daylight lamp for the purpose described comprising a casing having a transparent panel in its front wall extending at an obtuse angle to the bottom of the casing, the inner faces of the walls of the casing constituting reflecting surfaces, a source of illumination within the casing, and relatively narrow, elongated, reflectors extending diagonally of the inner faces of the side walls of the casing, for the purpose described.

1,664,333. AIR CLEANER. DOC G. TAYLOR, Baytown, Tex. Filed Oct. 26, 1926. Serial No. 144,869. 1 Claim. (Cl. 183—24.)

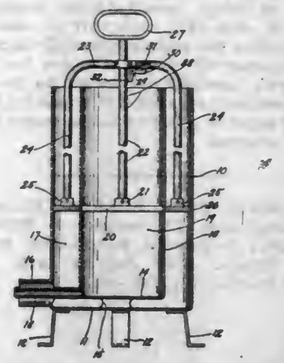


An air cleaner comprising a casing provided at its top side with an outlet opening, a screen located in the lower portion of the casing and spaced above the bottom thereof, the casing having an inlet opening located below the screen, an inlet pipe located in the casing and passing through the side thereof at a point above the screen and having an end portion passing through the intermediate portion of the screen, a frusto-conical baffle plate located in the casing above said pipe and having a bottom opening vertically alined with the lower end of said inlet pipe and a flat plate located in the frusto-conical baffle plate and provided at its edge with notches, the inner edges of which are located beyond the side edges of the outlet opening of the casing and the edges of the bottom opening in the frusto-conical baffle plate.

1,664,334. PROCESS FOR TREATING NUT KERNELS. JOHN ALEXANDER THOMPSON, Heswall, and WILLIAM SAMUEL HOUGH, Hoylake, England. Filed Apr. 8, 1926, Serial No. 100,734, and in Great Britain Sept. 18, 1925. 8 Claims. (Cl. 146—219.)

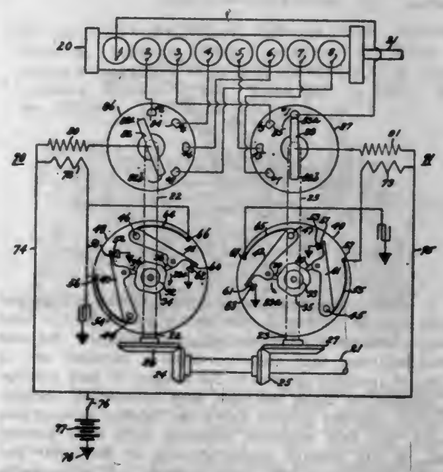
1. Process of blanching Brazil nut kernels which consists in subjecting them while free to move to the agitating and treating action of a stream of superheated steam.

1,664,335. DRIVING BELT. DAVID TODD, Glasgow, Scotland. Filed Feb. 19, 1925, Serial No. 10,234, and in Great Britain Mar. 22, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—64.)



4. A belt comprising a band formed of sheet fabric impregnated with a gum and folded to form a plurality of layers in combination with a series of blocks secured on the inner faces thereof, said blocks being formed by a multiplicity of layers of canvas impregnated with a gum, the opposed faces of adjacent blocks forming V-shaped spaces and meeting at the apex thereof.

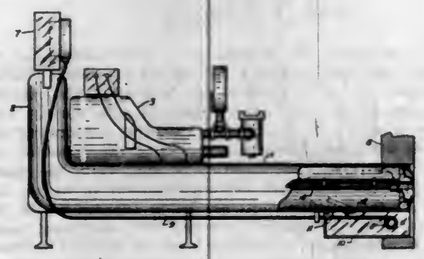
1,664,336. INFLATED BALL. IRA IAL TUBBS, Superior, Wis., assignor of one-half to George F. Miller, Menominie, Wis. Original application filed Sept. 22, 1924, Serial No. 739,127. Divided and this application filed Dec. 10, 1927. Serial No. 239,152. 4 Claims. (Cl. 273—65.)



4. A pneumatic ball comprising a flexible cover having an opening formed therein, an inflatable bladder in said cover, and bladder actuated means secured to the inner face of said cover for moving portions of said cover upon opposite sides of said opening toward each other to close said opening when said bladder is inflated, said bladder actuated means comprising flaps upon opposite sides of said opening adjacent thereto and terminating short of said opening, and automatically adjustable means connected with said flaps to draw upon said cover and close said opening when said bladder is inflated.

1,664,337. MEAT-ROLL-FORMING MACHINE. ANTHONY VANDERPUT, Paterson, N. J., assignor of one-half to James C. Hinchliffe, jr. Filed Feb. 11, 1925. Serial No. 8,369. 2 Claims. (Cl. 107—1.)

2. A machine for making meat rolls comprising an upright container having a bottom, an additional smaller container having a bottom, the bottom of the smaller container being raised above that of said upright container, a spout on the larger container, a spout on the smaller container passing axially thru the spout of the larger container, the material passing thru the spout of the larger container being cylindrical in shape, the spout of the smaller container being adapted to fill the opening of the cylindrical material with additional material simultaneously, a plunger and an annular follower slidable in said containers, a U-shaped member secured to the annular follower mounted in the larger container, a rod slidably mounted in the U-shaped member and secured to the plunger of the smaller container, notches cut on said rod, a bell crank pivoted on the U-shaped member adapted to engage any of said members to retain the rod releasably in position.



1,664,338. IGNITION SYSTEM. HERBERT C. WALTERS and JOHN T. FITZSIMMONS, Dayton, Ohio, assignors, by mesne assignments, to Delco-Remy Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 24, 1926. Serial No. 118,301. 3 Claims. (Cl. 123—148.)

1. Ignition apparatus for a multicylinder internal combustion engine having N cylinders, comprising in combination, a current source, C ignition coils each for providing the sparking impulses for $\frac{N}{C}$ cylinders, C timer cams each having $\frac{N}{C}$ lobes and operated at one-half cycle speed, and a pair of circuit make-and-break devices operated alternately by each cam, each pair of make-and-break devices controlling the energizing and discharging of one ignition coil, means driven by the engine for causing the cams to operate alternately to effect the discharging of the coils in recurrent sequence, and means for distributing the sparking impulses produced to the engine spark plugs in recurrent sequence.

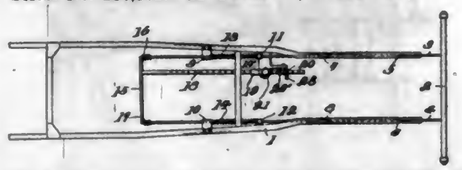
1,664,339. DOMESTIC OIL BURNER. WALTER W. WILLIAMS, Bloomington, Ill., assignor to Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating Corporation, Bloomington, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 24, 1925. Serial No. 45,753. 8 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

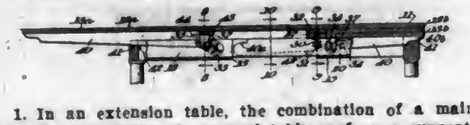
1. In a fuel burner construction including a fire pot and an electrically operated fuel feed having a thermostatically operated control in circuit therewith actuated by the temperature at the burner nozzle, means subjecting the thermostatic element to the increasing temperature at the nozzle upon ignition of the burner flame, and additional means actuated by said increasing temperature allowing an increasing current of atmospheric air to envelope said thermal element and pass into the fire pot.

1,664,340. TOBACCO PIPE. GEORGE H. WILSON, Louisville, Ky. Filed Feb. 12, 1925. Serial No. 8,781. 2 Claims. (Cl. 131—12.)



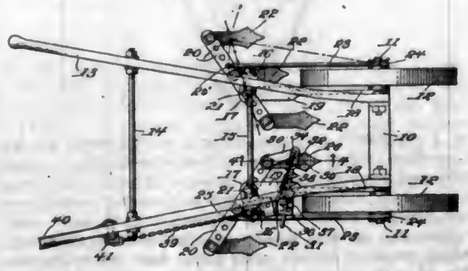
1. A tobacco pipe comprising a stem having a bore and a bowl portion having a combustion chamber, the wall of said combustion chamber being undercut on the side thereof adjacent said stem to form a chamber out of the line of pressure applied to the tobacco in said combustion chamber in filling the pipe, said combustion chamber having an annular groove above the bottom thereof and merging into said undercut chamber, said bowl portion having an air passage communicating at its outer end with the atmosphere, the inner ends of said air passage and said bore communicating with said undercut chamber substantially in the zone of said annular groove.

1,664,341. PAINT. LESLIE MILTON WISE, McKeesport, Pa. Filed June 6, 1925. Serial No. 35,481. 1 Claim. (Cl. 134—39.)



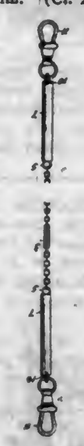
A paint comprising a mixture of approximately six pounds of finely divided carbide sludge, one pint of coloring matter and sufficient linseed oil to form a gallon of paint.

1,664,342. PARKING BUMPER FOR AUTOMOBILES. DAVID APRIL, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 2, 1927. Serial No. 180,502. 11 Claims. (Cl. 293—24.)



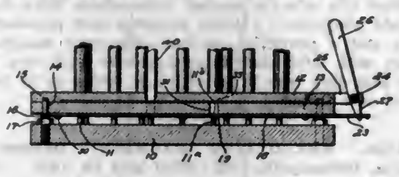
1. The combination with a motor vehicle, of guide bearings carried by the frame of the vehicle, a bumper having supporting bars slidably mounted in said bearings, means for normally holding said bumper in extended position and pawl and ratchet mechanism for withdrawing said bumper after being extended.

1,664,343. EXTENSION TABLE. JOHN BADER, Hampton, Va. Filed July 29, 1925. Serial No. 46,873. 9 Claims. (Cl. 45—113.)



1. In an extension table, the combination of a main table board defining the normal table surface, a supporting frame divided in two section substantially along the transverse center line thereof, means for slidably interconnecting the two sections including a pair of slide guides forming part of one section, a pair of slide guides forming part of the other section, one slide guide on each section being in sliding engagement with one slide guide on the other section, resilient means connecting the main table board to the supporting frame independently of the relative sliding movement of the two sections, a pair of extension leaves normally disposed in superposed relation between the supporting frame and the main table board on one side of the transverse center line thereof, the upper one of said leaves being connected at its inner edge to the pair of slide guides forming part of the supporting frame section, and means permitting limited movement of the said upper leaf in vertical direction away from the frame.

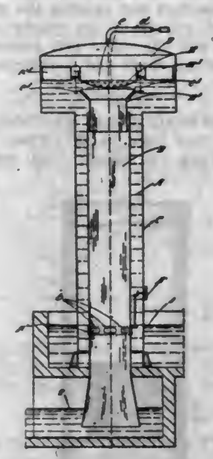
1,664,344. CULTIVATOR. ELAM M. BECKER, Lititz, Pa. Filed Nov. 12, 1926. Serial No. 148,051. 2 Claims. (Cl. 97—59.)



1. A row cultivator comprising a frame, tooth bars and teeth therefor pivotally mounted upon the frame, rods carried by the frame adapted for connection with the tooth bars to alter the pitch thereof, an auxiliary tooth pivotally mounted for independent lateral swinging movement upon the inner end of one of the toothed bars, and an operating means carried by the frame having connection with the auxiliary tooth.

1,664,345. GARMENT SUPPORTER. PAULINE DUNSTAN BELDEN, New York, N. Y. Filed June 16, 1926. Serial No. 116,402. 1 Claim. (Cl. 241—12.)

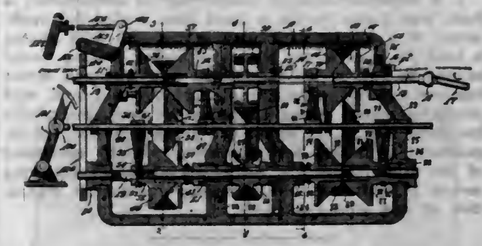
A garment supporter of the character described including a shoulder strap formed of an inextensible chain, garment attaching means, and elastic connections between the garment attaching means and the chain.



1,664,346. WASHER-SETTING MACHINE. MAGGIORINO G. BERTONE, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 29, 1926. Serial No. 145,056. 6 Claims. (Cl. 18—1.)

1. In a washer setting machine a pair of superimposed stationary plates, a slide plate mounted between them, said upper stationary plate having openings therein and open ended tubes adapted to receive a stack of washers communicating with said openings, said lower stationary plate having openings therein offset from the openings in the upper plate, said slide plate having openings therein adapted to register alternately with the openings in the two stationary plates as the slide plate is shifted from one extreme position to the other, a second slide plate mounted under the lower stationary plate and having key-hole slots therein the narrow ends of which normally register with the openings in the lower stationary plate.

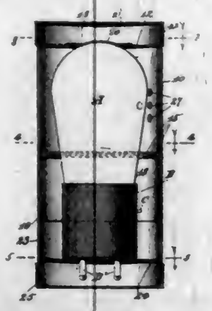
1,664,347. APPARATUS FOR RAREFYING GASES. JENS ORTEN BOVING, Westminster, London, England. Filed Feb. 10, 1926, Serial No. 87,369, and in Great Britain Feb. 27, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 230—105.)



1. Hydraulic apparatus, working on the siphon principle, for rarefying gases, comprising a chamber for connection to a receptacle containing the air or gas to be rarefied, two downwardly extending conduits entering the said chamber and constituting with the latter a siphon serving by the descent of liquid in one of said conduits to draw liquid up the other conduit into said chamber, an induction head arranged at the upper end of the former conduit and provided with conduits communicating with the interior of said chamber, and means for opening and closing at will ports in the wall between said conduits so as to start the apparatus working without the necessity of creating a vacuum by external means.

1,664,348. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF HYDROFLUORIC ACID FROM FLUORIC AND SILICIC SUBSTANCES. MAX BUCHNER, Hanover-Kleefeld, Germany, assignor to Albert Fritz Meyerhofer, Zurich, Switzerland. Filed June 18, 1925, Serial No. 38,099, and in Germany June 2, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 23—153.)

2. The art of producing hydrofluoric acid from substances containing fluorine and silicon, which comprises reacting on said substances with a mineral acid and silicon fluoride to produce hydrofluosilicic acid, reacting on the hydrofluosilicic acid with an alkali metal fluoride to produce hydrofluoric acid and alkali metal silico fluoride, and decomposing the resulting alkali metal silico fluoride into alkali metal fluoride and silicon fluoride and returning the latter into the cycle of operations.



1,664,349. TRANSMISSION FOR SHAFTS. GEORGE A. BURROW, Spokane, Wash., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, to J. Sutherland and C. H. Conrad, trustees, Spokane, Wash. Filed Mar. 1, 1927. Serial No. 171,875. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—21.)

1. A device of the character described comprising an engine shaft, a countershaft, a driven shaft adapted to be connected with the differential of an automobile, pulleys mounted on the shafts, a belt connecting a pair of the pulleys on the engine shaft and countershaft, belts connecting pairs of the pulleys on the countershaft and driven shaft, means for alternately tightening the belts associated with the pulleys on the counter and driven shafts, a plurality of pulleys associated with one of the last mentioned belts, said last mentioned belt being entrained over the pulleys and causing the reverse rotation of the driven shaft relative to the countershaft when said belt is tightened and the other belt associated with the pulleys on the driven shaft and countershaft is relaxed.

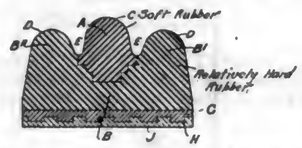
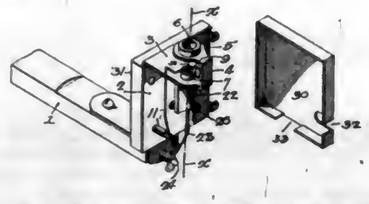
1,664,350. NONREFILLABLE CARTON. ALEXANDER R. CAPPIELLO, New York, N. Y. Filed May 11, 1926. Serial No. 108,316. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—6.)

2. In a carton for radio tubes, a body defining a compartment for housing and protecting the bulb portion, frangible means for sealing and suspending said bulb portion out of contact with the outer walls of the body proper, said body having an open end from which the base portion and contacts of the tube are exposed whereby to permit of and facilitate testing of the tube without disturbing the sealed housed condition thereof, and a removable cover for the open end of the body including an outer wall and means within the cover for engaging and supporting the contact elements in suspended relation and out of contact with the outer wall of the cover.



1,664,351. FASTENER. FRED S. CARR, Newton, Mass., assignor to Carr Fastener Company, Cambridge, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed June 14, 1924. Serial No. 719,924. 13 Claims. (Cl. 24—211.)

1. A separable fastener comprising, in combination, a flush type socket having a front face, a stud for application to a flexible carrying medium, said stud having a head for engagement with said socket, locking means carried by said socket for locking said stud and socket together and unlocking means carried by said stud, said unlocking means having a portion for engagement with the front face of the socket and another portion for engagement with the locking member whereby movement of the stud toward the socket operates said unlocking means to shift said locking means and permit separation of said stud and socket.



1,664,352. WHEEL TIRE. EDWARD WILLIAM COLEMAN, Southall, England. Filed Jan. 22, 1926, Serial No. 83,040, and in Great Britain Feb. 3, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—1.)

1. A resilient wheel tire comprising a combination of individual annular treads of different resilient qualities, namely, a continuous middle tread band constituting an unbroken surface of relatively soft resilient material and continuous side tread bands constituting unbroken surfaces of relatively hard resilient material spaced from said middle band, the latter being of larger overall diameter than the side tread bands and having a base formation presenting extended surfaces to the side tread portions and the said tread bands being vulcanized together over the extended area presented by the base formation of said middle tread band.

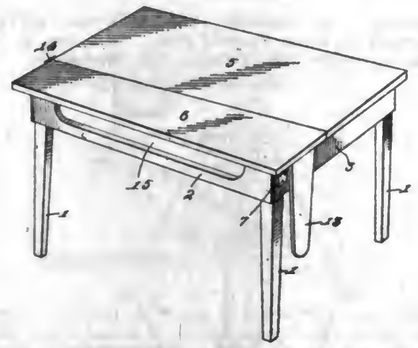
1,664,353. TRIP MECHANISM FOR KNITTING-MACHINE STOP MOTIONS. FRANK CRAWFORD, Sr., New Brunswick, N. J., assignor to Crawford Manufacturing Company, New Brunswick, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 18, 1926. Serial No. 89,136. 5 Claims. (Cl. 66—158.)

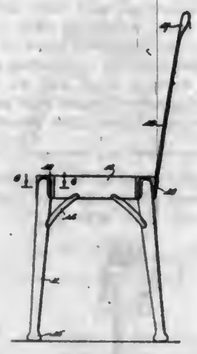
1. In trip mechanism for knitting machine stop motions, the combination of a pivoted weighted arm adapted to trip said stop motion; a pivoted drop wire of inconsequential weight supported by the knitting thread running in the knitting machine; a projection on said weighted trip arm; a pivoted intermediate lever engaging said projection; a latch engaging said intermediate lever; and a projection on said drop wire adapted to engage said latch and thereby release said trip arm when said drop wire is permitted to rotate as by breakage of said thread.

1,664,354. KEY-MILLING MACHINE. HERBERT A. DAUM, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed May 19, 1923. Serial No. 640,207. 18 Claims. (Cl. 90—13.2.)



1. A key milling machine embodying a shaft, a plurality of cutters on the shaft, sleeves interposed between the cutters on said shaft for spacing the cutters apart, a work support movable longitudinally with reference to the shaft, a chuck on the work support movable transversely of the shaft, means whereby the chuck may be moved positively toward the shaft, and means for moving it yieldably away from the shaft, substantially as set forth.

1,664,355. IRONING BOARD AND TABLE. JULIE MANSFIELD DAVIS, Memphis, Tenn. Filed Sept. 3, 1924. Serial No. 735,718. 1 Claim. (Cl. 68—10.)



In a device for the purpose set forth, a substantially rectangular frame having its upper portion formed to provide a compartment, a top for the compartment comprising two boards of unequal widths which have their confronting edges disposed obliquely and which edges are beveled in opposite directions, a hinge connecting the narrow board at the wide end thereof to one end of the compartment, offset bracket members on the underside of the wider top section, at opposite ends thereof, the end walls of the compartment having longitudinally extending grooves to receive therein the ends of the brackets to permit the sliding of the wider top section over the compartment, and latching means at the confronting ends of the top sections.

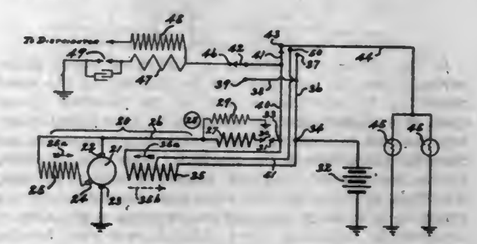
1,664,356. CHAIR. LOUIS DELLERT, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 3, 1925. Serial No. 73,087. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—2.)

1. As a new article of manufacture, a chair including a seat frame, sheet metal legs connected at their upper ends to the seat frame, said legs being of arcuate cross section with the channelled portions turned inwardly whereby the legs of a number of chairs may be nested, a chair back secured to the rear of the seat frame and inclined away from the frame, said back at its lower end including a rear face bevelled on the same angle at which the chair back is inclined, whereby the backs will not interfere with nesting of the chairs.



1,664,357. DEVICE FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF TAPE, WEBBING, GIMP, BRAID, AND SIMILAR MATERIALS. CARL ERNESTUS and WILHELM LUSEBRINK, Elberfeld Donberg, Germany. Filed Mar. 12, 1926, Serial No. 94,152, and in Germany Feb. 25, 1925. 6 Claims. (Cl. 96—3.)

1. A device for the manufacture of tape, webbing, gimp, braid and similar materials comprising in combination two independent spool systems distanced apart and adapted for revolution in the same or in opposite directions, means for driving the systems, spool spindles relatively spaced apart on the respective systems which are so arranged that the one system overlaps the other and a binding thread fed to the device so that it is guided upwardly in the centre of the joint circular track provided by the two systems where they intersect.

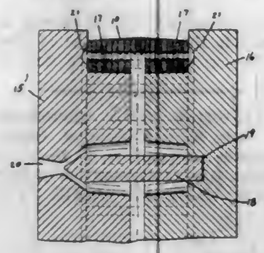
1,664,358. LIGHTING AND BATTERY-CHARGING SYSTEM. JOHN T. FITZSIMMONS, Dayton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Delco-Remy Corporation of Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 29, 1924. Serial No. 752,872. 4 Claims. (Cl. 290—41.)

2. An electrical system comprising in combination, a variable speed generator including a regulating series field; a storage battery in series connection with said series field; a circuit including work devices; an ignition device; and a switch movable into one position to connect the ignition device with the generator and movable into another position for disconnecting the ignition device and directly connecting the work devices with the battery.



1,664,359. EXCAVATING BUCKET. ALBERT GROUT, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Filed Dec. 15, 1925. Serial No. 75,600. 3 Claims. (Cl. 37—184.)

1. In a clam shell bucket, a pair of bucket sections each having extensions in longitudinal alinement with the sides of the sections, a pivot shaft connecting the free ends of the extensions of both sections, a cross member connecting the sides of each section at the base of said extensions, a pair of laterally spaced bracket plates secured to each cross member with their upper ends engaged with said pivot shaft, a pulley shaft mounted between each pair of plates adjacent the cross member of each section, a pair of pulleys carried by each pulley shaft, and a single closing cable anchored at one end to a pulley on one section and reeved around the pulleys of both sections extending directly without deflection from the pulleys of one section to the pulleys of the other section, the bucket sections being adapted to open out into longitudinal alinement and in alinement with their supporting pivot when in open position, thereby adapting the bucket to have a maximum spread with a minimum height in open position.

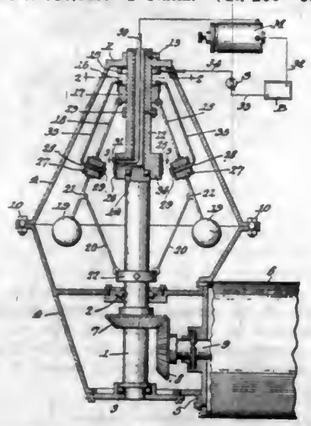
1,664,360. PROCESS OF MAKING PULLEYS. WILLIAM D. HAMERSTADT, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Rockwood Manufacturing Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation. Filed Nov. 24, 1925. Serial No. 71,180. 2 Claims. (Cl. 22—202.)

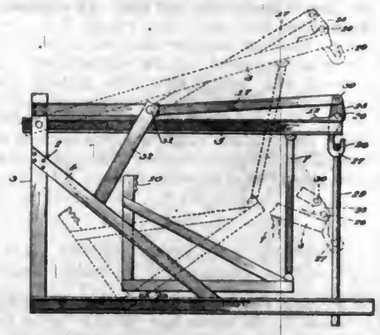


1. The process of forming a laminated paper pulley having a metallic hub and web for supporting the same, consisting in providing a pair of die members spaced apart intermediate their peripheries to form a web therebetween, and to form an annular recess for receiving and clamping therebetween the laminated fibre rim, providing a core on one of said die blocks extending centrally therefrom to the other die block and surrounded with a recess to provide a hub portion, forming a plurality of transversely extending bores through said rim, forming a recess about the inner periphery of said rim in communication with said bores, suitably clamping the same between said die blocks under such pressure as to reduce the width thereof and increase the density of the fibre, and die casting metal between said die blocks under sufficient pressure to force it into said bores through said recesses and into the intervening space between said blocks and the space surrounding said bore for forming transverse pins through said rim in bonded relation with the fibrous surface thereof and forming a hub and web integral therewith.

1,664,361. PROCESS OF MAKING SPLIT PULLEYS. WILLIAM D. HAMERSTADT, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Rockwood Manufacturing Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation. Filed Nov. 24, 1925. Serial No. 71,181. 3 Claims. (Cl. 22—202.)

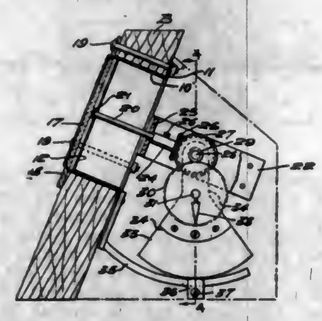
1. The process of forming a split pulley, comprising two sections consisting in providing a bore in each of said sections extending longitudinally thereof, mounting tie members transversely of said bores so as to extend therein and from one of said sections to the other, and casting metal into said bores as a mold, whereby the metal during the casting operation will engage the tie members and secure them in place for connecting the pulley sections together.

1,664,362. AUTOMATIC CENTRIFUGAL SWITCH. HENRY M. HANS, Fordyce, Nebr. Filed Aug. 6, 1924. Serial No. 730,549. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—80.)



An automatic centrifugal switch comprising a tubular housing, a movable electric contact head slidable on said housing, arms connected to said head, each arm carrying a centrifugal member having interrupter points, a revoluble shaft in alinement with said housing, a collar fixed to said shaft, arms connecting said collar with said centrifugal members, an electrical cable in said housing, a contact disk on said housing completing a circuit when engaged with said movable head and an insulated ring on said housing adapted to make and break a circuit when engaged with said interrupter points.

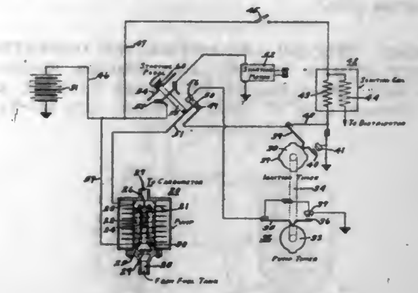
1,664,363. CASING SPEAR. WILLIAM H. HARVEY, Water Valley, Miss. Filed Apr. 6, 1927. Serial No. 181,550. 10 Claims. (Cl. 294—86.)



1. A casing spear including a sleeve, slips movable thereon to grip a casing, a barrel movable through the sleeve, and heads on the barrel above and below the sleeve having arms projecting toward one another, said barrel being turnable to shift the said arms into and out of alinement with said slips.

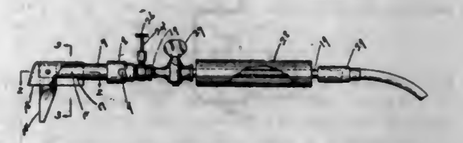
1,664,364. PUMP JACK. WILLIAM GUY JENSEN and KRESTEN RAY JENSEN, Nowata, Okla. Filed Sept. 20, 1926. Serial No. 136,706. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—5.)

2. In a pumping jack, an L frame, long and short parallel levers mounted on the top of said frame and parallel to the base, said levers being each pivoted to a hooked link engageable with the polish rod of a well, and a rockable right angled bracket and a link connecting the free end of the base member thereof with the longer of the two top levers.



1,664,365. GRADE INDICATOR. RUDOLF F. KATOLIN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 1, 1926. Serial No. 106,169. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—219.)

1. In a grade indicator, a dial having grade indicia thereon a pointer traversing the grade indicia, a shaft having said pointer fixed thereon, a plumb pendulum, gearing connecting the pendulum and shaft, a pivotally supported tank having a viscous liquid therein into which the pendulum dips, an arc bar concentric to the pivot of the tank and passing below said tank, a split guide on the bottom of the tank embracing the arc bar and a clamp screw passing through the guide to clamp the same in adjusted position on the arc bar.



1,664,366. FUEL-SUPPLY SYSTEM. CHARLES F. KETTERING, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to General Motors Research Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 15, 1923. Serial No. 675,020. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—179.)

1. A fluid supply device for an internal combustion engine provided with a starter; comprising in combination, a control for the engine starter; a magnetically operated pump; circuit interrupters concurrently driven by the engine, one of which operates more often than the other per engine revolution, either one of the interrupters being separately adapted to intermittently connect the pump with a source of current to cause the pump to pulsate; and means associated with the control for the engine starter and the separate interrupters whereby the pump will be connected to the interrupter adapted to operate it more often per engine revolution, while the engine starter control is being operated to cause cranking of the engine.

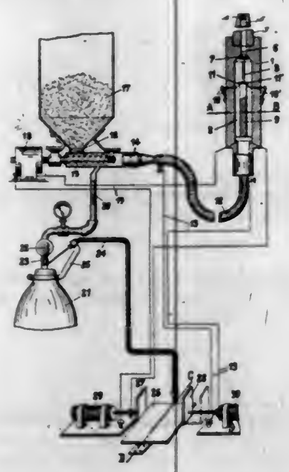
1,664,367. SOLDERING IRON. RAFAEL MAGRISSO, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 11, 1925. Serial No. 49,552. 3 Claims. (Cl. 158—26.)

3. A self-heating soldering iron including a Bunsen burner, a combustion chamber at one end thereof and having side walls, a bit supported in said side walls and forming an end wall of said chamber, a shield mounted on said side walls and forming the top of said chamber, and a common mounting means for said bit and said shield.



1,664,368. CLOTH-INSPECTING MACHINE. ARTHUR C. MASON, Hawthorne, N. J. Filed Aug. 29, 1925. Serial No. 53,224. 2 Claims. (Cl. 26—70.)

1. An apparatus for use in examining a strip of fabric including a frame, spaced means therein to maintain the fabric stretched and so as to be advanceable lengthwise of itself, and a table tiltable on an axis extending transversely of and substantially parallel with and opposite to the stretched part of the strip and independently of the same to various angular positions relatively to said part of the strip.

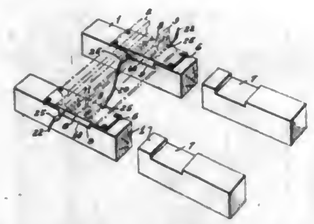
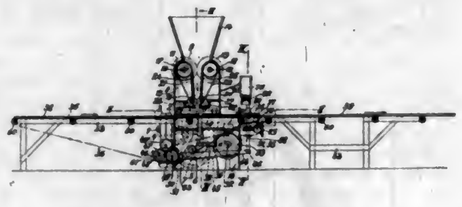
1,664,369. PROCESS AND DEVICE FOR OPERATING UPON HUMAN TEETH. JAKOB MAURER, Konstanz, Germany. Filed Jan. 20, 1925, Serial No. 3,661, and in Germany June 17, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 32—7.)



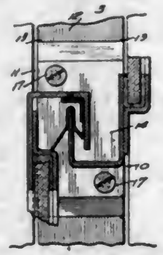
1. The process of operating upon human teeth, consisting in treating the sick tooth or teeth by conducting against the part or parts to be treated an abrasive by means of a fluid under pressure, substantially as set forth.

1,664,370. FLOOR-SCREED-SUPPORT DEVICE. JAMES MARK MILBURN and GEORGE GREEN FILSON, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 20, 1926. Serial No. 82,556. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—128.)



1. In a screed support, the combination with a standard consisting of a single element of small cross sectional area adapted to be inserted for support in an upright position, in a recess in a suitable structure; a collar on said element limiting the extent to which it may enter the said recess; a screed-supporting bracket adjustable longitudinally of the element; and means for securing the bracket in adjusted position.

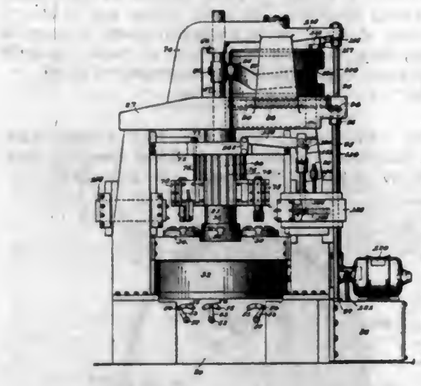
1,664,371. SWITCH HEATER. CHARLES W. MOFFETT, Flushing, and MARK R. BRINEY, Brook Haven, N. Y., assignors to Brinard Sales and Construction Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 12, 1927. Serial No. 167,636. 12 Claims. (Cl. 246—428.)



1. In a railway switch, in combination, a railway tie having a recess in its upper face directly below the air space between the stock rail and the switch rail, a tie reinforcing, heat-radiator plate inset in said recess and heat insulated from the walls of said recess, and a heating filament carried by said plate between its upper and lower surfaces.

1,664,372. MACHINE FOR DIVIDING AND WORKING DOUGH. WILHELM MOHR, Dolau, near Halle, Germany. Filed July 30, 1926, Serial No. 125,912, and in Germany Oct. 13, 1921. 6 Claims. (Cl. 107—9.)

2. A machine for dividing and working dough comprising a supply hopper, mechanism for dividing and working the dough, a conveyor adapted to carry dough from said hopper to said mechanism, means for feeding the divided pieces of dough to said working mechanism, a drive for said mechanisms and means, and automatic means for so timing their cooperation that the conveyor is operated continuously and the dividing and working mechanisms are inoperative during the operation of said feeding means.



1,664,373. ADJUSTABLE RUBBING PLATE. HARRY E. CAMPBELL, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Campbell Metal Window Corporation, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Aug. 26, 1925. Serial No. 52,501. 1 Claim. (Cl. 189—72.)

A window-frame and sash construction comprising on each side a parting strip having a substantially continuous face near the centre of the window, sashes having meeting rails of such length as to leave substantial clearances between the ends thereof and said parting strips, a rubbing plate carried by each of said parting strips in such position as to be opposite the ends of the meeting rails when the window is closed, and having its rear face spaced out from said parting strip and having sides adapted to embrace the sides of the parting strip, a compressible member interposed between the face of each parting strip and one of said plates and substantially in contact with said sides, and means for regulating the position of each of said plates relative to the parting strips, whereby the position of said plates is made adjustable without permitting any substantial amount of air to pass between said plates and the face of the parting strip.

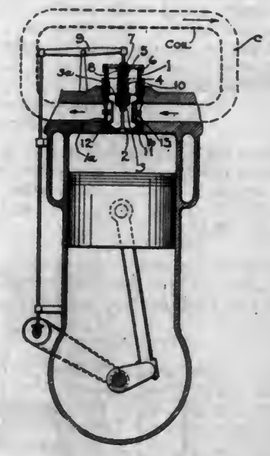
1,664,374. MULTIPLE-SPINDLE MACHINE. LEE G. DANIELS, Rockford, Ill., assignor to The Bullard Machine Tool Co., Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Jan. 23, 1924. Serial No. 688,019. 50 Claims. (Cl. 29—38.)



1. In a multiple spindle lathe, a base, a rotatable multiple spindle work carrier a plurality of work spindles carried thereby, a super-structure mounted above said base, a movable tool carrier disposed between said superstructure and said multiple spindle work carrier, a plurality of tool supports on said tool carrier for said spindles, and a single rotary element mounted on said superstructure adapted to move said tool carrier into and out of relation with said multiple spindle work carrier, said rotary element and work carrier being driven from the same source of power, the one intermittently and the other continuously.

20. In a multiple spindle lathe, a revolving work carrier having intermittent movement, a plurality of work supporting spindles mounted therein, each being mounted to revolve on its axis independently of one another, a plurality of rotating spindle driving means, one for each spindle, having stationary axes and adapted to co-operate with said spindles to drive them in the intervals between the intermittent movements of said work carrier, drive means for simultaneously driving said spindle driving means, means adapted to disconnect said driving means during the intermittent movements of said work carrier, and brake means adapted to be applied to said spindle driving means upon disconnection of said drive means.

1,664,375. VALVE FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. FRANK A. HOWARD, Elizabeth, N. J., assignor to Standard Oil Development Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 15, 1925. Serial No. 2,473. 7 Claims. (Cl. 123—188.)

1. In combination with an internal combustion engine having a compression chamber connected therewith, a valve for controlling communication between the compression chamber and a cylinder of the engine, a pressure-responsive member connected to the valve, said member being exposed to the pressure in the compression chamber and tending to counteract the effect of such pressure on the valve, and means actuated by the engine for opening the valve on the compression stroke.

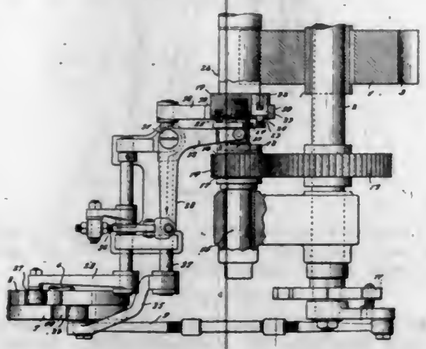
1,664,376. SULPHO-ICHTHYOLATE OF AMMONIUM AND PROCESS OF MANUFACTURE. DUDLEY H. ROWLAND, Detroit, Mich., assignor to American Ichthyol Oil Company, San Antonio, Tex., a Corporation of Texas. Filed Feb. 4, 1927. Serial No. 166,018. 4 Claims. (Cl. 260—159.)

1. The process herein described for the production of ammonium ichthyol sulphonate, which comprises sulphonating petroleum, heating the mixture with agitation, withdrawing the heat while maintaining the agitation, diluting with kerosene, adding a salting-out reagent and agitating until frothing ceases, then adding ammonium hydroxide to alkaline reaction, further diluting with kerosene, and recovering the product, substantially as set forth.



1,664,377. DRUM-OPERATING MECHANISM. OMAR E. CLARK, Denver, Colo., assignor to The Denver Rock Drill Manufacturing Company, Denver, Colo., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 553,426. 24 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)

1. In apparatus of the character set forth, the combination with a base, of a reversely rotatable rotator and a supporting shell mounted on the base in spaced relation, a drive shaft operated by the rotator and extending across the space between the rotator and supporting shell, a tubular shaft around the drive shaft, gearing in the supporting shell, connecting the drive and tubular shafts, drums surrounding the drive shaft and located end to end between the rotator and supporting shell, the adjacent ends of the drums having reversely disposed rings of clutch teeth, and a clutch pawl carried by the tubular shaft and shiftable by the clutch teeth from the teeth of one drum to the teeth of the other drum and vice versa accordingly as the direction of rotation of the rotator and drive shaft is reversed.

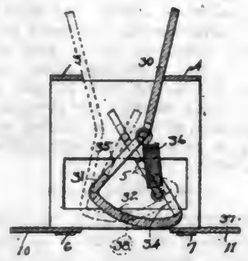
1,664,378. CAN-MAKING MACHINE. GEORGE C. EULER, Edgewater Heights, N. J., assignor to R. B. Davis Company, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 2, 1925. Serial No. 66,134. 12 Claims. (Cl. 113—23.)

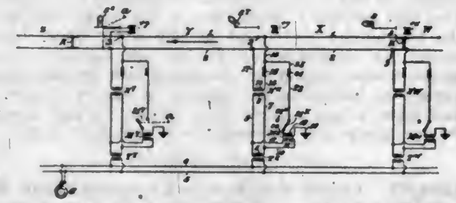


1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of means for feeding cans at intervals, means for rotating and double-seaming the bottoms of the cans, and power-operated means for simultaneously engaging the open ends of the cans to curl the edges thereof.

1,664,379. APPARATUS FOR MAKING LAP-WELDED TUBES. JAMES H. MATHESON, Wyomissing, Pa., assignor to Donald E. Matheson, Edgewood, Pa. Filed July 28, 1926. Serial No. 125,474. 4 Claims. (Cl. 29—33.)

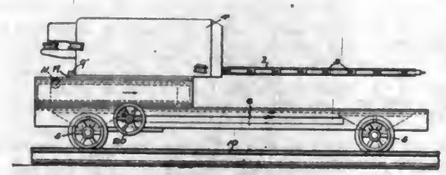
1. The combination in apparatus for making lap welded tubes, of a skelp heating furnace; scarfing rolls located in front of the furnace and arranged to scarf the blanks as they pass from the furnace; a table for receiving the scarfed blanks; a bending die through which the blanks travel; a support for receiving the bent blanks; means for allowing the blanks to move laterally into a pivoted trough; a longitudinal trough in line with the pivoted trough; means for carrying the blanks from said trough to a fixed trough in front of the welding furnace; a pusher for introducing the tubular blank into the furnace and for projecting a tubular blank therefrom; and welding rolls in front of the welding furnace between which the blank is passed and welded.

1,664,380. SNAP SWITCH. SAMUEL A. MEYERS, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Paramount Electric Mfg. Co., a Corporation of California. Filed July 15, 1926. Serial No. 122,518. 10 Claims. (Cl. 200—67.)



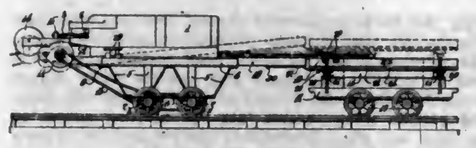
1. In a switch for electric circuits comprising a frame, electric contacts carried thereby, a pivotally mounted knife carrier, a handle pivotally carried by the frame, and a spring connecting the knife carrier and handle to cause both of them to be resiliently held in opposite positions, said handle being shaped to start the knife carrier and to stop it in opposite movements thereof.

1,664,381. NECKBAND FORMER AND STRETCHER. CARL RADITSCH, Camden, N. J. Filed June 30, 1927. Serial No. 202,686. 3 Claims. (Cl. 223—19.)



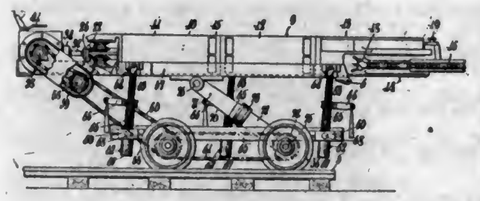
1. A neck band former and stretcher, comprising a body portion, an expansible and contractible band surrounding said body portion and carried by it, and a manually controlled actuating member rotatably carried by said body portion and having a helical member operatively connected with said band to effect its expansion and contraction.

1,664,382. TRACK-CIRCUIT SYSTEM. ARBA G. WILLIAMSON, Carnegie, Pa., assignor to Pittsburgh Train Control Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 5, 1922. Serial No. 549,661. 24 Claims. (Cl. 246—34.)



1. A track circuit system comprising: traffic rails divided into blocks, a circuit including both rails in series, a circuit, connected to ground at one side and to at least one of the rails at its other side, for maintaining voltage above ground potential on at least one of said rails, and a circuit breaker included in said second circuit and controlled by the first circuit of a preceding block.

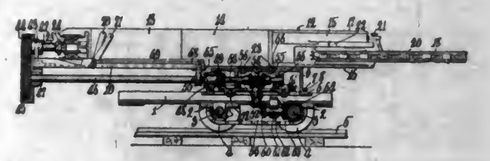
1,664,383. MINING MACHINE. PRESTON UPHAM, Boston, Mass., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 26, 1916. Serial No. 111,523. 30 Claims. (Cl. 26—28.)



3. The combination with a mining machine adapted to slide upon its bottom upon a mine bottom during cutting and provided with a cutter bar, of means for supporting said machine during cutting in positions wherein said bar will be parallel to a single inclined plane.

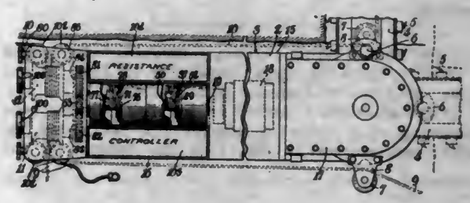
1,664,384. MINING APPARATUS. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 5, 1920. Serial No. 349,526. 54 Claims. (Cl. 262—28.)

1. In a mining apparatus, a wheeled machine guiding element, a vertically adjustable machine support, and operative connections therebetween for tilting said element as the elevation of said support is varied.



1,664,385. MINING APPARATUS. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 3, 1924, Serial No. 723,953. Renewed Dec. 20, 1926. 52 Claims. (Cl. 262—28.)

1. In a mining apparatus, a wheeled truck, a unitary, separably operable mining machine thereon operable to cut in different planes when supported in inverted positions, and means to propel said truck therefrom when disposed in either position.



1,664,386. MINING APPARATUS. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 5, 1924. Serial No. 736,153. 30 Claims. (Cl. 262—28.)

1. In a mining apparatus, a wheeled truck frame, a mining machine having opposed plane surfaces upon which it is disposable and which are constructed to constitute skid surfaces to support the machine for sliding movement during cutting, said machine being constructed to cut when sliding directly upon a mine bottom on either of such surfaces, and means to swivel such machine relative to said frame from said machine when the latter is disposed in either position on said frame.

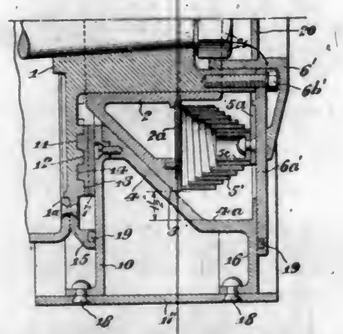
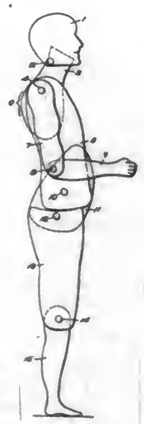
1,664,387. MINING MACHINE. CHARLES F. OSGOOD, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 6, 1925, Serial No. 41,759. Renewed Aug. 25, 1927. 38 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



1. In a mining machine, a motor, and feeding means driven by said motor comprising a plurality of feed operating members rotatable on parallel longitudinally extending horizontal axes, and a friction clutch disposed within and coaxial with each of said members.

1,664,388. MINING MACHINE. CHARLES F. OSGOOD, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 12, 1926. Serial No. 101,438. 51 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)

1. In a mining machine, a frame slidable on its bottom on the mine bottom during operation of the machine and carrying a motor, and means for feeding the machine bodily laterally during the cutting operation including plural speed transmission gearing driven by said motor, a plurality of relatively rotatable feed operating members each rotating on a vertical axis, and means for connecting said members to said gearing independently.



1,664,389. CUSHION WHEEL. ELBERT A. CORBIN, Jr., Swarthmore, Pa., assignor of one-third to William C. Biddle, Lansdowne, Pa., and one-third to William A. Brown, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 28, 1927. Serial No. 209,104. 22 Claims. (Cl. 152—45.)

1. A resilient transmission for vehicle wheels, comprising two revoluble members capable of eccentric displacement, an intermediate power transmitting element slidably engaging said members and splined thereto throughout the area of such engagement, and resilient means tending to maintain the axial alignment of such members.

1,664,390. EDUCATIONAL DEVICE. ELIZABETH DWIGHT, Brookline, Mass. Filed May 10, 1926. Serial No. 108,126. 10 Claims. (Cl. 35—16.)

1. An educational device or so-called posture man consisting of a series of substantially flat pieces, together representing in side view the contour of the human form, and pivotally connected together, so that each may be moved relatively to the others, thereby to bring the entire form into perfect posture and also to bring the form or portions thereof into incorrect posture for purpose of visual comparison and instruction, said pieces including an upper body portion to which a head is secured, said upper body portion being shaped to simulate the upper portion of the back and the chest, said portion when thrown into one position advancing the chest and when thrown into another position causing the chest to recede and rounding the back.

AMENDMENT TO RULES OF PRACTICE.

Effective January 1, 1927, Rule 73 is amended by inserting after paragraph 1 a paragraph to read as follows:

"The original numbering of the claims must be preserved throughout the prosecution. When the application is ready for allowance the Examiner will renumber the claims consecutively in such order as requested by the applicant or as indicated when the claims were first presented. Where claims are added by amendment or substituted for canceled claims they must be numbered by the applicant consecutively, beginning with the number next following the highest numbered claim previously in the case. Provided, however, that where a substitute claim either rewritten to include amendments already made, or to take the place of another claim, is presented and the applicant desires it to finally appear in the relative position occupied by the canceled claim, the substitute claim will be given the number it would have if it were an added claim, and the number will be followed by a directing clause as, for example: Claim 16 (to take the place of claim 3), or claim 24 (to follow claim 2). When, by subsequent amendment, still another claim is substituted for a substitute claim already presented, such last presented claim should be given the number following the highest numbered claim previously in the case and this should be followed by such a directing clause as will indicate the desired final position of the claim with respect to the other claims."

November 1, 1926.

THOMAS E. ROBERTSON,
Commissioner.

This amended rule will apply to all amendments filed after January 1, 1927, whether the applications were filed before or after that date.

Applicants and attorneys are requested to assist in carrying out the simplified system contemplated by the rule with the least possible confusion by carefully observing its provisions in amending their cases.

DECISIONS IN PATENT AND TRADE-MARK CASES.

Commissioner's Decision.

BARBER v. WINTER.

Decided April 2, 1926.

1. INTERFERENCE—TESTIMONY—COMPETENCY.

Testimony of a witness, testifying as an expert on the integrity of documents, with relation to certain exhibits Held improperly excluded on the ground that the witness stated that he had previously read from a report made by him, since the witness was testifying as an expert and deducing conclusions from certain facts which, in his opinion, existed in the documents in question.

2. SAME—SAME.

Testimony of an expert that, in his opinion, certain exhibits had been altered Held insufficient to establish such alteration, since if the sketch was altered at the time it was witnessed and in the presence of the witness the alteration would not have been improper and since the age of a document can not be determined with accuracy from the appearance of the ink.

3. SAME—PRIORITY—DILIGENCE.

Testimony of the party first to conceive, but the last to reduce the invention to practice, as to his poverty and inability to obtain during the war steel from which to manufacture the device, Held insufficient to establish excuse for lack of diligence, since the record shows that he borrowed large sums of money during the time in question and that steel could be obtained in small quantities without difficulty during that period.

[Decision affirmed by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, 369 O. G. 4.]

APPEAL from Examiners in Chief.

Messrs. Darby & Darby for Barber.

Messrs. Cromwell, Greist & Warden and Messrs. Milans & Milans for Winter.

MOORE, Assistant Commissioner:

This is an appeal from the decision of the Examiners in Chief affirming the decision of the Examiner of Interferences awarding priority of invention to the party Winter.

The invention relates to disk wheels. The subject matter of the issue is defined by seven counts, of which counts 1 and 7 are examples:

1. In a device of the character described, a locking ring adapted to extend circumferentially of the wheel and provided with an inwardly extending flange adapted to contact at its outer surface with the rim of the wheel and at its inner with the felly, a part of the flange extending outwardly of the felly in spaced relation therewith, and the inner edge portion of said ring being adapted to contact with the felly.

7. In a device of the character described, a locking member including a radially extending part and an inwardly extending flange, the flange being adapted to contact at its outer portion with the rim of the wheel and at its inner portion with the felly, a part of the flange extending outwardly of the felly in spaced relation therewith, and the inner edge portion of said radial part being adapted to contact with the felly.

The counts are the claims of Winter's patent and were copied by Barber for the purpose of contesting priority of invention with respect thereto.

Barber's application involved herein is a division of application filed September 28, 1921, No. 503,729. Winter filed January 10, 1921.

Winter having filed first, the burden of proof rests upon Barber, and in order that Barber may prevail the proof must show that Barber was the first to conceive and that he exercised reasonable diligence in reducing his invention to practice (Christie v. Seybold, 1893 C. D. 515).

The earliest date of conception which has been accorded to Winter is April, 1920, and it has been established with reasonable certainty that Winter's invention was actually reduced to practice by a successful test of the same on September 7, 1920.

The Examiner of Interferences and the Examiners in Chief have accorded to Barber an earlier date of conception, on the evidence, including the Oman and Holshuh sketches, dated, respectively, July 10, 1915, and January 20, 1916.

Winter has attacked the integrity of these sketches by the testimony of Carvalho, an expert on the integrity of documents.

The Examiner of Interferences and the Examiners in Chief have excluded Carvalho's testimony, on the ground that it was "secondary," Carvalho having stated while testifying that he had read over a report previously made by him, which report involved the integrity of the Oman and Holshuh sketches.

[1] It is believed that the Office is not justified in excluding Carvalho's testimony. It should be received and considered and given the weight to which it is entitled. Carvalho was testifying as an expert. From certain facts which in his opinion existed in the Barber documentary evidence he deduced certain conclusions. The facts considered by him and to which he testified consisted of the documents filed by Barber in this proceeding, and not the report which Carvalho had previously made in another proceeding. The documents to which Carvalho testified were of record and clearly available to Barber, and Barber had a perfect right to cross-examine Carvalho as to those documents, and to put in evidence the testimony of other experts in refutation of Carvalho's testimony. Carvalho in giving his testimony stated that he was testifying substantially from recollection.

[2] I have examined carefully Carvalho's testimony, but I am not satisfied that it is conclusive of the alleged fact that the sketch dated July, 1915, and witnessed by Oman was altered after having been witnessed, or of the further contention that the sketch witnessed by Holshuh as of January, 1916, was in fact witnessed at some subsequent date.

As to the Oman sketch, assuming that Carvalho's tests show that certain pencil lines of the sketch overlie certain intersecting ink lines of Oman's signature, the date of the sketch, etc., appearing on the sketch, still this is not conclusive that said pencil lines were drawn subsequently to the date of the sketch. The sketch may have been altered after Oman had affixed his signature and after the sketch had been dated; but if the sketch was altered at the time it was witnessed and in Oman's presence there would be no good ground for the charge that the sketch was improperly altered.

And Carvalho's testimony respecting the Holshuh sketch carries still less weight. The age of ink can not be determined with any degree of accuracy by the appearance of the ink. The composition of the ink, the exposure of the document, and other important factors must be considered before the opinion of the expert may have any great value.

[3] I have carefully considered the testimony in the light of the arguments of the respective parties and agree with the Examiner of Interferences and the Examiners in Chief that Barber was the first to conceive but the last to reduce to practice, and that he failed to exercise reasonable diligence in reducing his invention to practice.

In excuse for the delay in reducing his invention to practice Barber pleads poverty and inability to obtain steel.

As to poverty, it appears from the record that during the period from the time Barber contends that he conceived the invention to the filing of his application he was able to borrow large sums of money amounting to more than $20,000, and as to Barber's inability to obtain steel the record shows that steel could be obtained in small quantities without difficulty throughout the war period.

The decision of the Examiners in Chief awarding priority to the senior party, Winter, is affirmed.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

BARBER v. WINTER.

No. 1,955. Decided December 5, 1927.

INTERFERENCE—PRIORITY.

Priority Held properly awarded to W. on the ground that B., who was the first to conceive, was not diligent in reducing the invention to practice at the time W. entered the field and subsequently thereto.

[For Commissioner's decision see 369 O. G. 3.]

APPEAL from the Commissioner of Patents. Affirmed.

Mr. Samuel E. Darby, Mr. C. M. Thomas, and Mr. F. D. Thomas for Barber.

Mr. J. H. Milans, Mr. C. T. Milans, and Mr. L. T. Greist for Winter.

Before MARTIN, Chief Justice, and ROBB and VAN ORSDEL, Associate Justices.

MARTIN, C. J.:

Appeal in an interference proceeding.

The invention relates to devices for securing rims of fellies, and the issue is defined in seven counts of which 1 and 7 are copied for illustration:

1. In a device of the character described, a locking ring adapted to extend circumferentially of the wheel and provided with an inwardly extending flange adapted to contact at its outer surface with the rim of the wheel and at its inner with the felly, a part of the flange extending outwardly of the felly in spaced relation therewith, and the inner edge portion of said ring being adapted to contact with the felly.

7. In a device of the character described, a locking member including a radially extending part and an inwardly extending flange, the flange being adapted to contact at its outer portion with the rim of the wheel and at its inner portion with the felly, a part of the flange extending outwardly of the felly in spaced relation therewith, and the inner edge portion of said radial part being adapted to contact with the felly.

The application of Barber was filed April 28, 1923. The application of Winter was filed January 10, 1921, and a patent was granted thereon July 24, 1923. Both parties have taken testimony.

The Examiner of Interferences held upon the evidence as follows:

Although Barber, the junior party, was first to conceive, he has failed to prove any actual reduction to practice, and has failed to prove diligence through the requisite period up to his constructive reduction to practice. In this situation there is no necessity to discuss the evidence adduced to prove that Winter conceived and reduced to practice in 1920, or to consider the evidence stipulated into this record with respect to the availability of steel.

An appeal was taken to the Examiners in Chief, who after reviewing the proofs concluded as follows:

In our opinion the holding of the Examiner of Interferences is correct that Barber was the first to conceive but the last to reduce to practice and that he has not established the necessary diligence.

The decision of the Examiner of Interferences awarding priority of invention in favor of the party Winter is affirmed.

The decision of the Examiners in Chief was affirmed upon appeal by the Commissioner of Patents.

The issues involved herein are of fact, not law, and a review of the record convinces us that the concurrent decisions of the Patent Office thereon are correct; and moreover that the grounds upon which they rest are sufficiently set out in the decisions below and need not be repeated here.

The decision of the Commissioner of Patents is affirmed.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

HUMISTON v. VOORHEES.

No. 1,959. Decided December 5, 1927.

1. INTERFERENCE—ISSUE—CONSTRUCTION.

"While in an interference proceeding claims should be interpreted in the light of the application in which they originated, they must be given the broadest interpretation which they reasonably will support. In other words, if a party claims an invention broadly, he ought not to be permitted, when thrown into interference, to meet the exigencies of such a situation by insisting upon limitations not expressed in his claims."

2. SAME—PRIORITY—RIGHT TO MAKE THE CLAIMS.

The party V. Held entitled to make the claims in issue and entitled to an award of priority on the record.

Mr. A. B. Marvin, Mr. M. D. Jackson, and Mr. Geo. J. Hesselman for Humiston.

Mr. J. H. Brickenstein, Mr. C. H. Potter, and Mr. E. L. Greenewald for Voorhees.

Before MARTIN, Chief Justice, and ROBB and VAN ORSDEL, Associate Justices.

Appeal from a decision of the Patent Office in an interference proceeding awarding priority to the senior party, Voorhees.

The Humiston application was filed October 25, 1921, and a patent inadvertently issued thereon July 4, 1922. Voorhees's application was filed June 9, 1920. The preliminary statements disclosing that the earliest date claimed by Humiston for conception and disclosure was one year later than the filing date of Voorhees, Humiston was required to show cause why judgment on the record should not be entered against him. Thereupon he pursued the usual course by filing a motion to dissolve the interference, alleging that Voorhees had no right to make the three claims of the issue, the first of which reads as follows:

1. In a hand lamp, the combination of a casing, a battery therein, a lamp, a support for said lamp, and a reflector rotatable on said support to move axially of said casing.

As will be gathered from a reading of the above count, the invention is an electric hand lamp and the novel features of the count are directed to the means by which the reflector is shifted axially to change the character of the light beam delivered by the lamp. The claims originated in the Humiston application.

The Law Examiner ruled that, while the Voorhees reflector is in screw-threaded engagement with the lamp support and is rotatable on the support, it does not move axially of the casing but moves the lamp support and with it the lamp axially of the casing. In other words, the Law Examiner, although convinced that the same result was accomplished as in the Humiston device, was constrained to give the claims a narrow interpretation. On appeal, the Examiners in Chief reversed the Law Examiner and held that Voorhees had a right to make the claims. This ruling, of course, sent the case to the Examiner of Interferences on the merits, and that official, feeling bound by the decision of the Board, awarded priority to Voorhees. This award was followed by an appeal to the Examiners in Chief and, in a carefully-prepared opinion, the Board rejected Humiston's contentions and sustained the award to Voorhees, saying:

We find nothing in the counts which excludes the incidental movement of the lamp head on the casing. In focusing the lamp the movement of the lamp head is merely incidental, the thing desired is the relative movement between the lamp and reflector and this is caused by the rotary and axial movement of the reflector.

On appeal, the decision of the Board was affirmed.

[1, 2] While in an interference proceeding claims should be interpreted in the light of the application in which they originated, they must be given the broadest interpretation which they reasonably will support. In other words, if a party claims an invention broadly, he ought not to be permitted, when thrown into interference, to meet the exigencies of such a situation by insisting upon limitations not expressed in his claims. Lindmark v. Hodgkinson, 31 App., D. C., 612; Kirby v. Clements, 44 App., D. C., 12; Brown v. Tomlinson, 49 App., D. C., 310; Scott v. Longtin, 52 App., D. C., 102, 281 Fed. 606; In re Levy, 55 App., D. C., 137, 2 F. (2d) 939.

Had Humiston been prior in point of time, it is inconceivable that he would not have claimed the Voorhees device to be an infringement of his.

For the reasons more fully stated by the Board, we affirm the decision.

Affirmed.

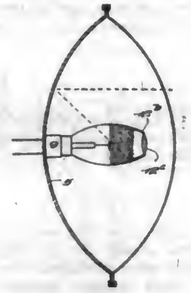
A circuit continuing device including a hollow holder having a longitudinal slot in one side and cut away opposite said slot to provide a clear space; a shell received in said holder and having two opposite openings in register with said slot and clear space; a plug received in said shell and having an opening extending transversely therethrough and in register with the aforesaid slot, clear space, and the opposite openings in the shell, said opposite openings being narrower than the transverse openings in the plug; bended pins whose shanks pass through said opposite openings in the shell and whose heads are larger than these openings and engage the inner side of the shell; and a single spring received in said transverse opening and pressing outwardly upon said pins.



1,664,404. LOCK. HARRY A. DOUGLAS, Bronson, Mich. Filed Jan. 17, 1927. Serial No. 161,598. 6 Claims. (Cl. 70—46.)

1. A lock including a guard; two tumblers each formed of strip metal and movable into one position into engagement with the guard and into an alternative position out of such engagement and operable by a key into one of its positions; and a key receiving member, each of said tumblers having a spring tongue which engages said member and is pressed thereupon and toward the body of the tumbler when the tumbler is moved into one position by the key and serves to hold the tumbler in its other position upon removal of the key, said springs extending toward each other and crossing when each tumbler is in one of its alternative positions.

1,664,405. HEAD LAMP. FRANK G. ENGLE, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 8, 1925. Serial No. 21,711. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

1. In a head lamp, the combination with a reflector of substantially parabolic form terminating substantially at the focal plane, of a lamp having its illuminating element in said focal plane and out of the focal point, and an internal reflector in reverse relation to the first reflector and being in the substantial form of part of a parabolic spindle whose axis intersects the said focal point and is substantially perpendicular to the focal plane.

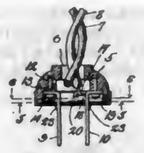
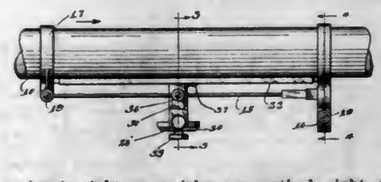
1,664,406. SPEEDOMETER OF THE EDDY-CURRENT TYPE. WILHELM EARFURTH, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Deuta-Werke vormals Deutsche Tachometerwerke G. m. b. H., Berlin, Germany. Filed Mar. 11, 1925, Serial No. 14,851, and in Germany Mar. 29, 1924. 7 Claims. (Cl. 264—13.)



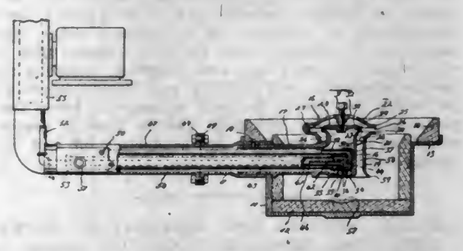
1. A magnetic speedometer comprising a flat disc-shaped magnet and having one pole thereof in the plane of the magnet; a pole shoe mounted on said magnet and forming the other pole thereof, the free end of the pole shoe being in a plane which is parallel to the plane of the magnet; and an armature for the poles which is adapted to be rotatably mounted in a plane which is parallel to and between the planes of the pole shoe and the magnet.

1,664,407. AUTOMATIC PULSE, RESPIRATION, AND TEMPERATURE RECORDER. JESSE EVERETT ESHBAUGH, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 700,092. 4 Claims. (Cl. 234—1.5.)



1. A respiration recording device comprising a tape to pass around a person's chest, a self-acting take-up for said tape to wind up and let out the tape in the respirations, a contactor movable by said tape the amplitude of the respirations, contacts in the path of movement of said contactor, a record, and electrically-sensitive recording means connected in circuit with said contacts to make a graphic reproduction of the respirations on said record.

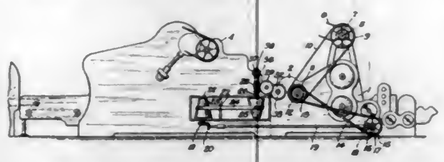
1,664,408. ATTACHMENT PLUG. FRANK FOSTER FRAKES, Columbia, Tenn., assignor of one-half to Joseph M. Dedman, Columbia, Tenn. Filed May 31, 1927. Serial No. 195,311. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—115.5.)



1. In an attachment plug, a head, contact arms extending from the head, contact members in circuit with the contact arms and spaced apart, a contact member spaced from the first mentioned contact member, wires leading to one of the first mentioned contact members and to the last mentioned contact member, a disk-like supporting member having openings to accommodate the contact arms, a fusible wire supported by the disk and adapted to complete a circuit between the last mentioned contact members and one of the first mentioned contact members, and said fusible wire adapted to break the circuit between the contact members in circuit therewith when a short circuit occurs.

1,664,409. BOMB SIGHT. GRANDISON GARDNER, Luke Field, Territory of Hawaii. Filed Mar. 29, 1924. Serial No. 702,882. 19 Claims. (Cl. 33—46.)

1. A bomb sight comprising an optical sight system carried by a moving body, a target reticle in said optical system and means to adjust the reticle in horizontal and vertical plane relative to said optical system, said means comprising universal joints attached thereto and co-acting therewith whereby the reticle is adjustable as described.



1,664,410. OIL BURNER. HAROLD A. GREENWALD and JOHN D. HOWE, Detroit, Mich., assignors to Whitehead & Kales, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,967. 5 Claims. (Cl. 158—92.)

1. In an oil burner, a chambered member connected to a source of air supply and provided with an ejector nozzle, a casing surrounding said member in spaced relation and provided with an ejector nozzle in substantial alignment with said first mentioned nozzle, a fuel oil pool beneath said above mentioned members and means for supplying fuel oil thereto, said casing being open in the area of said pool for conducting the vapors therefrom to a point adjacent said first mentioned ejector whereby said air and fuel vapors are mixed and ejected through said second mentioned ejector.

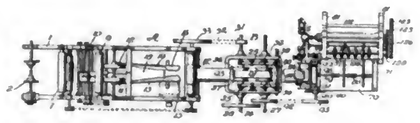
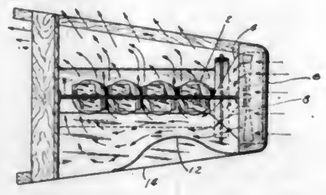
1,664,411. EVENER-MOTION-CONTROLLED COMBINED DRIVE BETWEEN FINISHING LAPPER AND HOPPER FEEDER. WILLIAM HARDMAN, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Filed Oct. 20, 1926. Serial No. 142,985. 9 Claims. (Cl. 19—68.)

1. In an evener motion controlled combined drive between finishing lapper and hopper feeder, the combination with the evener motion driven element, of means driven from the evener motion driven element for condensing the material fed from the hopper feeder to the finishing lapper and assisting in its positive conveyal.



1,664,412. PRODUCTION OF HELIUM FROM NATURAL GAS. PIERRE E. HAYNES, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to The Linde Air Products Company, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 7, 1919. Serial No. 315,938. 6 Claims. (Cl. 183—115.)

1. In a process of obtaining helium from natural gas, compressing and cooling the gas, expanding the cooled compressed gas and thereby liquefying a substantial portion thereof, consisting principally of hydrocarbons; rectifying said liquefied portion to recover helium therefrom, and adding this helium to the residual expanded gas; subjecting the residual expanded gas to successively lower temperatures to condense its constituents other than helium in the order of their liquefying temperatures at the pressure to which they were expanded, collecting the liquids separately, and utilizing said liquids separately in cooling the gas to the said successively lower temperatures; whereby helium in gaseous form is concentrated as a final residue; and conducting off and collecting such final residue.



1,664,413. CUTTING AND PERFORATING MECHANISM. BERG HEINRICHS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Mid-West Box Company, Anderson, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Original application field Jan. 9, 1922. Serial No. 527,819. Divided and this application filed Nov. 10, 1924. Serial No. 748,856. 9 Claims. (Cl. 164—61.)

9. In mechanism of the character described, the combination of cutting mechanism, feeding mechanism for longitudinally feeding a band through said cutting mechanism, said cutting mechanism being adapted to periodically cut said band so as to form lengths, a table for receiving said lengths, conveyor mechanism traveling laterally from said table, means for shifting the severed lengths on said table into alignment relative to said conveyor mechanism, means for yieldingly holding said lengths on the table after alignment thereof, spring fingers for holding said lengths against said conveyor mechanism, and means in the path of said conveyor mechanism for transversely perforating said lengths.

1,664,414. AIR-COOLING INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. SAM D. HERON, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Nov. 11, 1922. Serial No. 600,309. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—171.)

1. In a cooling system for internal combustion engines having a plurality of cylinders, a hood surrounding said engine, means at the forward end of said hood for inducing a flow of cooling medium into said hood, baffle means on one side of said hood adapted to guide said cooling medium to the opposite side of said hood, and a substantially arcuate shaped baffle plate positioned laterally of said second named side of said hood for guiding the flow of cooling medium tangentially past said cylinders.

1,664,415. DISPLAY DEVICE FOR GOODS AND PRICES. EUGENE HERZOG, Golden Valley, N. Dak. Filed Aug. 19, 1926. Serial No. 130,178. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—73.)

1. In a price tag and goods holder of the class described a vertically disposed single wire device comprising a coil spring top part, clamping jaws formed below said top and directed downwardly and arranged to be spread in a plane at right angles to said coiled top and to spread the coils of the latter when said jaws are spread, said jaws formed of two arms of said wire coil extended downwardly to the terminus of each arm thence upwardly and directed horizontally past the opposite jaw to form a shoulder, and thence downwardly to form a presser arm each arranged just below said top coil and adjacent the upper part of the adjacent clamp arm.

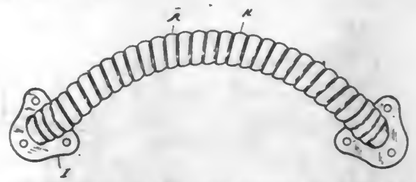
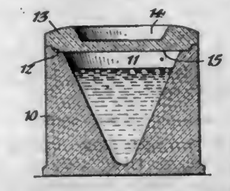
1,664,416. LIQUID-LEVEL INDICATOR. WILLIAM F. HOHORST, Monrovia, Calif. Filed Aug. 28, 1924. Serial No. 734,782. 2 Claims. (Cl. 73—82.)



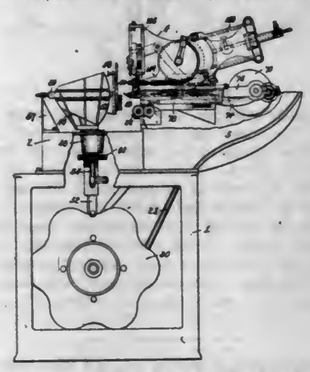
1. In combination with a tank and a spring pressed gage indicator mounted on said tank, a roller float within said tank having winding drums, two of large and one of smaller diameter, winding leads two severally attached to the two large drums and both attached to the bottom of said tank and another lead attached to the smaller drum and to said gage indicator to actuate said gage indicator.

1,664,417. COMBINED STATOSCOPE AND RATE-OF-CLIMB INDICATOR. FRANKLIN L. HUNT and ATHERTON H. MEARS, Washington, D. C. Filed Nov. 11, 1922. Serial No. 600,467. 3 Claims. (Cl. 264—1.)



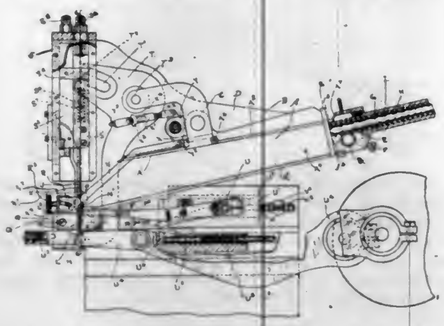
1. In a combined statoscope and rate-of-climb meter, the combination of a pressure responsive device comprising a container and a diaphragm, an indicating means operatively connected to said diaphragm, a leakage device comprising a capillary tube connecting said container to the atmosphere, a flexible sealing means connected to said container adapted to seal the container against differential pressure up to a certain degree, and a two-way valve interposed between the container and said leakage and flexible sealing devices in such manner that the container is operatively connected to only one of said devices at a time.

1,664,418. FLEXIBLE ROBE RAIL. JOSEPH H. HUNTER, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Detroit Insulated Wire Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 20, 1925. Serial No. 24,635. 1 Claim. (Cl. 211—16.)



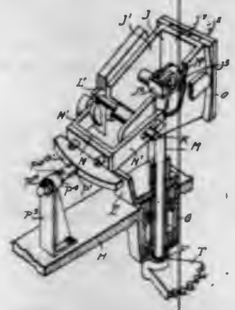
In a supporting hanger, the combination with an anchor member comprising a base adapted to be secured to the back of an automobile seat and a tubular interiorly corrugated portion projecting outwardly from said base, of a corrugated flexible metallic tube, the corrugations of which are adapted to threadedly engage the corrugations of the tubular portion.

1,664,419. DENTAL ACID CONTAINER. WILLIAM B. JACKMAN, Niagara Falls, N. Y. Filed Nov. 5, 1925. Serial No. 67,109. 1 Claim. (Cl. 215—1.)



A dental acid dish, comprising a body having an acid-receiving cavity having a wide mouth, the side walls of the cavity converging downwardly substantially to a point to cause an article immersed in the acid to always seek a predetermined position at the junction of the cavity-walls, whereby the dentist is enabled to directly fish out the article being treated without having to search blindly over an extensive area.

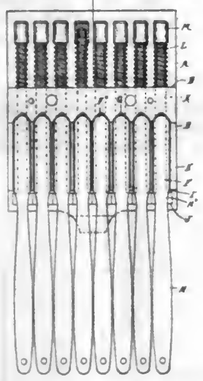
1,664,420. BRUSH-MAKING MACHINE. CONRAD JOBST, Toledo, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Toledo Automatic Brush Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 19, 1921. Serial No. 438,391. 21 Claims. (Cl. 300—8.)



1. In a machine of the class described, a tuft placing nozzle, a tuft setting plunger, and mechanism operatively connected to impart relative movements to the nozzle and plunger and to cause an initial retracting movement of the nozzle while the plunger is completing its tuft setting movement.

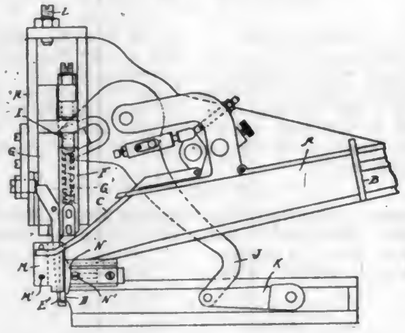
1,664,421. TUFT-FORMING MECHANISM. CONRAD JOBST, Toledo, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Toledo Automatic Brush Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 7, 1922. Serial No. 527,589. 22 Claims. (Cl. 300—7.)

1. In a brush machine, a magazine for the bristles having a longitudinally extending wall and a movable wall inclined thereto forming a tapering end portion, a yieldably pressed follower for feeding the bristles toward the tapering end portion, and means for oscillating said inclined wall in a direction longitudinally of said magazine to effect alternate expansion and compression of the bristles whereby the feeding of the same into the tapering portion is facilitated.



1,664,422. WORK HOLDER FOR BRUSH MACHINES. CONRAD JOBST, Toledo, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Toledo Automatic Brush Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 7, 1922. Serial No. 527,591. 12 Claims. (Cl. 300—11.)

1. In a brush machine, the combination with a reciprocable tool for operating on a brush back, of a frame, a work holder mounted on said frame for oscillating movements about two transverse axes and for sliding movement in the line of reciprocation of said tool, a cam carried by said work holder and adapted to move therewith about one of said transverse axes, said cam being spaced farther from said reciprocable tool than said transverse axes and a back bearing secured to said frame and engaging said movable cam, said back bearing being arranged in axial alignment with said reciprocable tool.



1,664,423. MULTIPLE WORK CLAMP FOR BRUSH MACHINES. CONRAD JOBST, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Toledo Automatic Brush Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 14, 1923. Serial No. 638,908. 10 Claims. (Cl. 300—10.)

1. In a brush making machine, a holder for the brush back of the type provided with an integral handle having a contracted portion, comprising a fixed abutment for engaging the end of said brush back, a bifurcated abutment for engaging the contracted portion of said handle and yieldable in the lengthwise direction of the brush back, and resilient means for urging said yieldable abutment toward said fixed abutment.

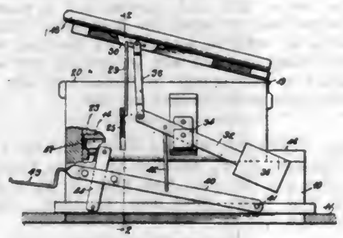
1,664,424. TUFT-SEPARATING MECHANISM FOR BRUSH MACHINES. CONRAD JOBST, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Toledo Automatic Brush Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 1, 1924, Serial No. 703,374. Renewed Nov. 12, 1927. 4 Claims. (Cl. 300—7.)

1. The combination with a bristle holding magazine and means for yieldably advancing the mass of bristles therein, of a pair of cooperating needles reciprocating across said magazine, said needles forming there between, while in registration with said magazine, an open pocket, and means for moving said needles relative to each other while in registration with the magazine to alternately expand and contract the width of said pocket to successively receive bristles from the mass, compress the same and eject the surplus.



1,664,425. CONTINUOUS TRIMMER FOR BRUSH MACHINES. CONRAD JOBST, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Toledo Automatic Brush Machine Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 19, 1925. Serial No. 10,288. 3 Claims. (Cl. 300—17.)

1. The combination with a trimmer, of a rotary cylindrical work carrier having a series of grooves on the periphery thereof extending transversely to the direction of rotation and adapted for receiving brush backs inserted endwise therein, shoulders on opposite sides of said grooves for limiting the radially outward movement of said brush backs and providing a space therebetween for the outward passage of the bristles, a spring pressed follower in each transverse groove yieldable radially inward for the insertion of the brush back, and means arranged to bear on those followers of said carrier which are passing said trimmer to hold said brush backs firmly clamped.

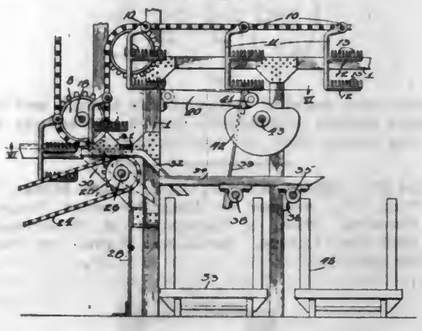
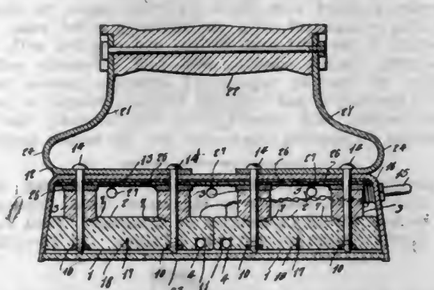
1,664,426. AUTOMATIC PRIVY-VAULT COVER. JOHN D. LANG, Aulander, N. C. Filed Aug. 9, 1927. Serial No. 211,697. 3 Claims. (Cl. 4—144.)



1. A vault cover comprising in combination, a frame having internal shoulders below its upper edges, a seat hinged to the frame, a pair of upwardly opening covers hinged to the interior of said frame above said shoulders and adapted to open upwardly under said seat and when closed to engage said shoulders and cover the vault opening, levers secured to said covers and having free ends projecting through openings in the frame, links connecting the ends of said levers to said seat, an arm pivotally mounted upon one side of the frame, means to urge said arm upwardly at its forward end to normally hold the seat in elevated position and the covers in closed position and cause depression of the seat to automatically open said covers.

1,664,427. VALVE-ACTUATING MECHANISM FOR CONCRETE MIXERS. ANDREW A. MCCREE, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Apr. 30, 1926. Serial No. 105,847. 17 Claims. (Cl. 83—73.)

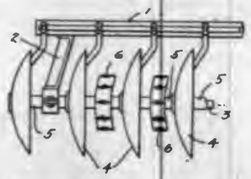


1. In concrete mixing apparatus, the combination with a valve device and mixer charging means, of an operating connection between said device and charging means and arranged to be actuated upon successive charging movements only of said means.

1,664,428. PICKLING MACHINE. CONSTANTINE G. MILLER and CHARLES F. CLEVELAND, Chicago, Ill., assignors to The Menker Co., a Corporation of Illinois. Original application filed Aug. 22, 1925, Serial No. 51,726. Divided and this application filed Oct. 28, 1926. Serial No. 114,663. 9 Claims. (Cl. 198—156.)

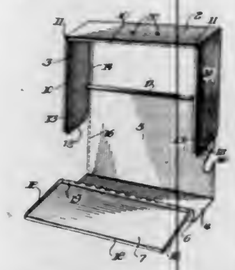
1. In an automatic pickling machine of the class described, the combination with a framework, article carrying means movably mounted thereon, mechanisms for operating said article carrying means, a stationary platform positioned to permit said article carrying means to pass therethrough to permit articles thereon to be deposited on said platform, and rotatable means operating through said platform adapted to discharge the articles therefrom.

1,664,429. ELECTRIC PAINT REMOVER. WILLIAM MULTHAUP, Winona, Minn. Filed Mar. 29, 1927. Serial No. 179,308. 1 Claim. (Cl. 219—30.)



In a device of the character specified, a hollow shell or casing, porcelain heating unit retainers mounted therein, said retainers provided in their outer or front faces with reversely extending grooves, coil wire heating units arranged in said grooves, spacing posts arranged with their inner ends bearing against the back walls of said retainers, asbestos strips fitting against the back wall of the shell or casing, washers interposed between the asbestos strips and spacing posts, handle brackets, fastening bolts extending through the inner ends of the handle brackets, the asbestos strips, the washers, spacing posts and heating unit retainers, and electrical connections used in association with said heating units.

1,664,430. DISK-HARROW ATTACHMENT. HENRY J. O'NEIL, Tampico, Ill. Filed Sept. 8, 1925. Serial No. 55,074. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—220.)



A device of the class described, comprising a star-shaped wheel formed of two similar sections, provided with complementary recesses adapted to receive the shaft of a disk harrow, two oppositely disposed points of the wheel being split longitudinally and transversely of the points, and fastening means passing through said split points adapted to detachably connect said sections with a disk harrow shaft, for rotation therewith.

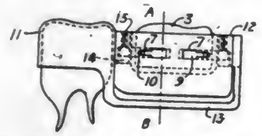
1,664,431. METAL RECEPTACLE. SOREN RINGER, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Ringer-Worcester Company, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 1, 1926. Serial No. 85,117. 14 Claims. (Cl. 220—1.)

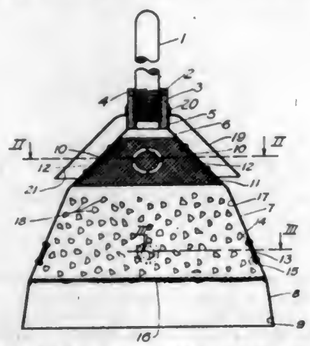


10. A receptacle comprising, a plurality of sections providing a top and ends, each section having an inwardly rolled edge at one side of the receptacle and each end section having a tongue at a lower edge thereof, a side section provided with outwardly rolled edges for interlocking engagement with the inwardly rolled edges of certain of the first said sections and provided with an inwardly flanged edge between said outwardly rolled edges for abutting engagement with the interior face of a top section, and a bottom section connected to said side section, said tongues being bent inwardly into a position for securing engagement with the bottom section.

1,664,432. CLAMPING LOCK. JULIUS RITTER, Jr., Racine, Wis., assignor to Hartmann Trunk Company, Racine, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 650,192. 2 Claims. (Cl. 70—115.)

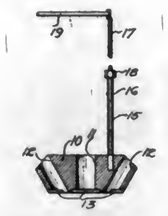
1. A clamping lock, comprising an escutcheon plate having hook like shoulders and a locking recess, a hasp plate, a link hinged at one end to the hasp plate, and a hasp member hinged at one end to the free end of the link and having a U-shaped extension at its hinged end engageable with one of the hook like shoulders to clampingly draw the hasp plate toward the escutcheon plate when the hasp member is swung to locking position or engageable with the other hook like shoulder to separate the hasp plate from the escutcheon plate when the hasp member is swung away from its locking position, the said hasp member also having a locking portion which enters the locking recess of the escutcheon plate to lock the parts together.

1,664,433. DENTAL DEVICE. EUGENE SEABROOK, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 8, 1925. Serial No. 74,119. 3 Claims. (Cl. 32—12.)



1. The combination of a denture provided with a mortise and with a slot, a plunger carried by said denture and slidable relatively thereto in order to be thrust into said mortise and withdrawn therefrom, a cushion carried by said denture and engaging said plunger in order to normally hold said plunger in the position into which it is thus thrust into said mortise, and a second denture provided with a tenon for detachably fitting into said mortise in order to hold the two dentures together, said tenon being provided with an opening for receiving said plunger as said plunger is thrust into said mortise while said tenon is within said mortise.

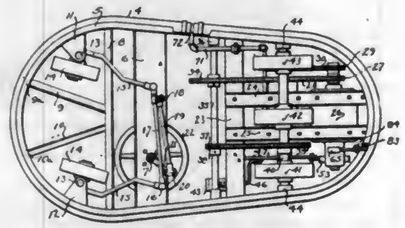
1,664,434. STAPLING MECHANISM. EDWARD P. SHELDON, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to R. Hoe and Co., Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 11, 1924. Serial No. 737,019. 20 Claims. (Cl. 1—7.)



1. In a stapling mechanism, the combination of a rotary cylinder, a pair of heads on which the cylinder is secured at each end, shafts for the heads, staple wire supplies mounted on the shafts outside the heads, means for driving one of the heads, a staple forming and inserting mechanism mounted in the cylinder, sheet taking devices carried by the cylinder, and means for actuating the sheet taking devices.

1,664,435. WATER SOFTENER. HOWARD N. SMITH, Oak Park, Ill. Filed Mar. 3, 1927. Serial No. 172,267. 11 Claims. (Cl. 210—24.)

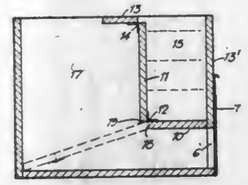
1. A water softener comprising a conical casing having a plurality of sets of openings, a main screen positioned transversely in said casing to retain a mineral therein, a handle in one end of said casing to permit operation of the same, and a hood engaged over one end of said casing and spaced therefrom.



1,664,436. HOLDER FOR LONG-STEM FLOWERS. BEATRICE S. TONNESEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 16, 1924. Serial No. 720,182. 5 Claims. (Cl. 47—41.)

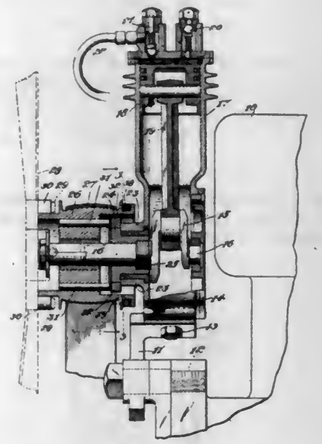
1. The combination of a heavy base having a central vertical aperture and a series of upwardly and outwardly inclined apertures spaced around the central aperture, with an upright frictionally and rigidly secured at its lower end to the base at a point offset with respect to the central aperture of said base, and a pair of resilient arms attached to the upper end of said upright.

3. In a device of the class described, a heavy base having passages therethrough and a square recess therein, a telescopic upright set in said recess, and resilient arms affixed to said upright and extending over said base.



1,664,437. VEHICLE. AUREL VASZIN, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Oct. 31, 1925. Serial No. 65,951. 13 Claims. (Cl. 180—2.)

1. In a vehicle, a driving motor supplied with current, driving means for the vehicle driven by said motor, a switch for said motor, means to reverse the direction of said motor, a common means for operating said switch and said reverse means, adapted to be operated by the operator, and a floor operated member adapted to operate said switch independently, and means on the floor for operating said switch.



1,664,438. TRUCK BODY FOR DELIVERING ICE CREAM. JULIUS W. VETTER, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Apr. 23, 1927. Serial No. 185,963. 7 Claims. (Cl. 296—24.)

1. A body for delivery trucks sub-divided into a plurality of compartments one of which is provided with a side opening and a door normally closing the same, in combination with a set of walls arranged to form a third compartment above the space within said door-way, said walls having hinged connection with each other, adapted to permit one of them to form a floor for the third compartment, and another to form an upwardly projecting interior wall adapted to progressively swing inwardly in proportion to the withdrawal of material through said opening, thereby enlarging said third compartment.

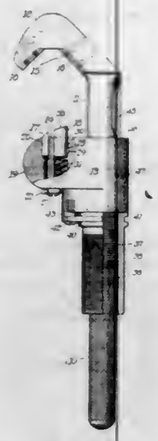
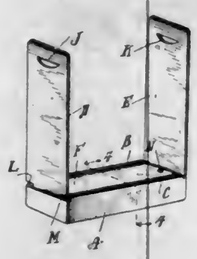
1,664,439. CLUTCH. NICKOLAS VIEHMANN, Newark, N. J. Filed Jan. 27, 1925. Serial No. 5,115. 2 Claims. (Cl. 192—67.)



1. In a device of the kind described, a casing, a shaft rotatable in the casing and extending therefrom, a fan pulley freely rotatable and slidable longitudinally on the shaft the fan pulley forming one member of a clutch, a second member of the clutch being secured to the shaft, bearings on the casing, a handle adapted to swing between the bearings and having a hub with an inclined slot, a yoke engaging the pulley to slide it, a rod secured to the yoke and slidable in the hub and the bearings, and a pin on the rod and extending into the slot in the hub and co-acting means on the handle and the casing for locking the handle in normal position.



1,664,440. TOOL FOR TURNING CRANK PINS AND THE LIKE. FREDERICK G. WACKER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Automotive Maintenance Machinery Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 20, 1924. Serial No. 738,737. 10 Claims. (Cl. 82—4.)

1. A hand-tool for truing crank pins and the like, comprising, in combination, a work-receptive jaw, and a tool carrying jaw in opposed relatively-movable relation, a handle-formed shank fixed to one said jaw and guidingly engaging the other, relatively-movable jaw, means for adjusting the relatively-movable jaw along said shank and positioning it positively at desired distance from the shank-carried jaw, a wide turning-blade positively positioned in the tool-carrying jaw with its protruding cutting-edge toward the shank and workpressing means carried by the tool-carrying jaw between said blade and the shank and yieldable with respect to said jaw for engaging the work in advance of blade-engagement therewith.

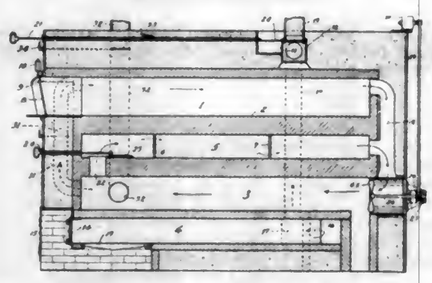
1,664,441. CIGARETTE-CASE ATTACHMENT. RUSSELL S. WEHLER, York, Pa. Filed Feb. 17, 1927. Serial No. 169,039. 4 Claims. (Cl. 206—38.)

... The combination with a cigarette case, a removable concealed compartment therefor, a sliding closure for said compartment, said closure having means to resiliently snap the same in place when in operative position, and means for withdrawing said compartment from the flexible case to obtain access thereto.



1,664,442. MECHANICAL STUD-DRIVING DEVICE. LOUIS A. WEIL and CHARLES F. WEIL, Detroit, Mich. Filed June 19, 1925. Serial No. 38,291. 5 Claims. (Cl. 81—53.)

1. A stud driver adapted to a power machine for setting threaded stud bolts into machine parts, comprising a cylindrical driving head, means for attaching the said driving head for the power spindle of an operating machine, a cylindrical casing attached to the driving head for retaining the working parts therein, helical cams formed on the end of the driving head, a threaded stud driving thimble mounted in the end of the cylindrical casing and projecting therefrom, a helical cam locking disc interposed between the end of the driving head and the driving thimble, and means for locking and driving a threaded stud therein.

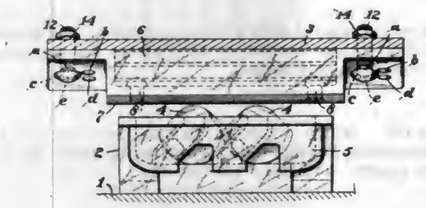
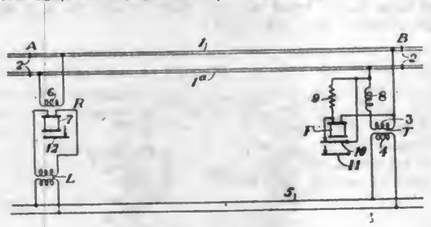
1,664,443. OVEN. ROBERT W. WILLIAMS and HARRY R. WILLIAMS, Brooklyn, and IRWIN ELLIOTT, New York, N. Y., assignors to Williams Oven Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 13, 1925. Serial No. 49,974. 5 Claims. (Cl. 107—55.)



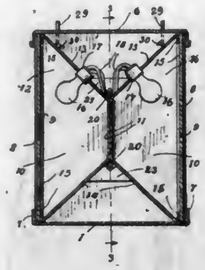
5. In a baker's oven, a structure having a baking chamber, a heating chamber, a heating flue extending through the floor of the baking chamber, a door for said baking chamber, a conduit connecting the heating chamber with the door end of said baking chamber, a valve to control said conduit, another conduit connecting the heating chamber with one end of the heating flue through the floor of the baking chamber, a valve to control the last named conduit, conduit means coanecting the rear end of the baking chamber and the corresponding end of the heating flue with the heating chamber, means associated with said conduit means for causing a circulation of air between said chambers through said conduits and conduit means, means for supplying heat to said heating chamber, whereby the proportions of hot air conducted from the heating chamber to either the flue or baking chamber may be selectively varied, and another valve controlled conduit connecting the heating chamber to the exterior of the structure, whereby when the baking chamber door is opened and the conduits connecting the heating chamber with the heating flue and baking chamber are closed, cold air may flow through the baking chamber to the heating chamber to cool the same to the desired extent.

1,664,444. SADDLE AND CENTER JOINT CAP. ALFRED R. WILSON, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Hutchins Car Roofing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 5, 1926. Serial No. 99,948. 9 Claims. (Cl. 105—457.)



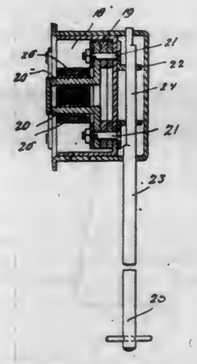
3. In a car roof, a ridge pole a center joint or junction cap, a saddle plate, said cap and plate being formed with engaging parallel portions and a saddle bolt riveted to the said parallel portions and securing said cap and plate to said ridge pole.

1,664,445. SIDE BEARING. WILLIAM E. WINE, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Feb. 23, 1927. Serial No. 170,389. 5 Claims. (Cl. 308—226.)



5. In combination with a body bolster having a sloping lower surface of a wedge shaped body side bearing having its lower surface horizontal and its top surface shaped to conform to the slope of said body bolster, said body side bearing being provided with ends having plane surfaces throughout their length and provided with holes, means for positioning the body side bearing along the said lower surface of said body bolster, said means incorporating members passing respectively through the holes at the ends of side bearings and the sloping part of the bolster and at right angles thereto.

1,664,446. RAILWAY-TRACK CIRCUIT APPARATUS. HENRY S. YOUNG, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 7, 1926. Serial No. 140,009. 10 Claims. (Cl. 246—34.)

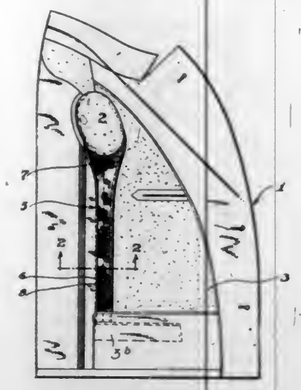


1. In combination, a section of railway track, a source of current connected across the rails of said section, a relay connected across the rails of said section through an impedance, and a shunt around said impedance including a front contact of said relay.

1,664,447. LANTERN. GEORGE E. ALLEN, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Aug. 24, 1926. Serial No. 131,250. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—11.)

1. A lantern comprising a casing open at opposite sides and having opposed side walls, transparencies closing the open sides of the casing, reflectors in said casing having contacting intermediate portions and portions diverging therefrom and engaging said transparencies, bracing means for the side walls of the casing extending between diverging portions of the reflectors above and below their contacting intermediate portions and engaging the adjacent inner ends of their diverging portions to retain the reflectors in place, and means for supporting illuminating means in the casing between the reflectors and transparencies.

1,664,448. LOUD-SPEAKER UNIT. PETER AMATO, Lynn, Mass. Filed May 5, 1926. Serial No. 106,912. 1 Claim. (Cl. 179—114.)



A sound reproducing unit, comprising a housing, a sound reproducing structure having a full floating mounting on said housing, a casing slidable in said housing, electromagnetic means mounted in the casing operably associated with the sound reproducing structure adapted to operate said structure for reproducing sound waves, and a rod member rotatably mounted in the housing and having an eccentric connection with said casing operable to slide the casing in the housing in the rotation thereof for varying the volume of sound reproduction of said unit.

1,664,449. COAT SHIELD. WILLIAM BLUMENTHAL, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Dec. 4, 1926. Serial No. 152,624. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—93.)

The combination with a cont, of a shield attached to the inside thereof underneath the arm pit, an outside pocket, said shield composed of a straight portion reaching downward substantially on the level with the outside pocket, a widened portion at the top where it reaches the arm pit, one side of said shield sewed to the coat lining and the other side sewed to the body of the coat and a strip of binding sewed to the shield for reenforcing the edges.

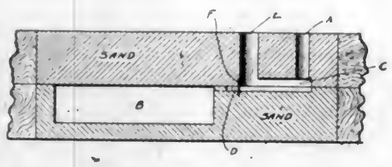
1,664,450. FIRE EXTINGUISHER. GEORGE W. BURKE, Jr., Dayton, Ohio. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,490. 4 Claims. (Cl. 169—28.)

1. In a fire extinguisher, the combination of a barrel-like container for the fire extinguishing material, a pistol hand grip projecting from said barrel and formed with a cartridge chamber in communication with said barrel to receive a pressure generating cartridge, and cartridge-firing means including a trigger located adjacent to said hand grip.



1,664,451. DUPLEX BRAKE. NIELS A. CHRISTENSEN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 10, 1925. Serial No. 10,287. 13 Claims. (Cl. 188—152.)

8. In brake mechanism of the character described, the combination of concentric brake drums constructed and arranged to form an annular space between oppositely disposed braking surfaces, a contracting type brake within said space engageable with the braking surface of small diameter, an expanding type brake within said space engageable with the braking surface of large diameter, levers operatively connecting the ends of said brakes whereby movement of said levers acts to apply both brakes, a fluid-pressure-operated motor having parts in thrusting engagement with said levers and operable to move the same to make a brake application, and means including springs secured to both brakes for releasing the same from said drums.

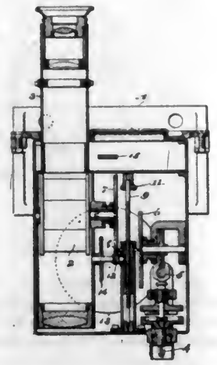
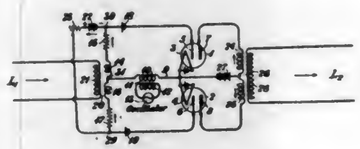
1,664,452. MOLD. SAMUEL DANIELS and GEORGE J. HIMMELEIN, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Dec. 4, 1925. Serial No. 73,200. 6 Claims. (Cl. 22—134.)



1. In a mold, a mold cavity proper, a pouring sprue, a passageway between the cavity and sprue, a fusible plate in said passageway and a skim-gate connected in said passageway between the plate and the sprue.

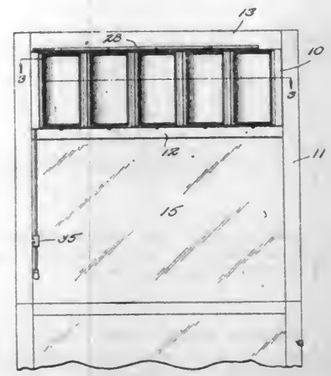
1,664,453. MANUAL MORSE MULTIPLEX SYSTEM. JOSEPH HERMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 13, 1923. Serial No. 668,383. 28 Claims. (Cl. 178—17.5.)



1. The method of signaling, which consists in transmitting direct current telegraph impulses of variable duration at a certain dot rate, and translating the impulses into impulses having substantially the same wave form but a higher dot rate without overlapping successions of impulses from the same circuit.

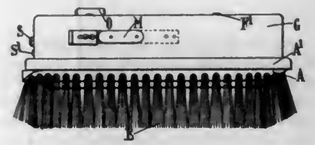
1,664,454. AIRCRAFT GROUND-SPEED INDICATOR. FRANKLIN L. HUNT and ROY C. SYLVANDER, Washington, D. C. Filed Oct. 19, 1923. Serial No. 669,618. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.)

1. In combination with a viewing piece, a prism, means for rotating said prism in the field of said viewing piece to produce a substantially stationary field of view, and means to determine the speed of rotation of said prism, and means between the said prism and the said speed determining means shiftable in accordance with altitude to alter the indicated speed of the said prism.



1,664,455. ELECTRICAL TRANSLATING CIRCUIT. ROBERT W. KING, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 4, 1922. Serial No. 526,924. 4 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

3. In a modulating system, the combination with a modulator having a plurality of vacuum tubes symmetrically disposed therein of a source of current to be modulated, means to apply like currents from said source to each of said vacuum tubes, a source of modulating current and a source of direct current potential common to the grids of the said tubes and connected unsymmetrically therewith to control the degree of modulation.



1,664,456. VENTILATOR. JOHN LINZ, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Apr. 12, 1927. Serial No. 183,128. 4 Claims. (Cl. 98—98.)

1. A ventilator comprising a casing open at its front and rear and having spaced arcuate slots in one of its horizontal walls, shutters mounted for pivotal movement between said walls concentric with said slots, a rod extending longitudinally of the casing, pins extending through the arcuate slots and connecting the shutters and rod and means associated with the rod to move the latter longitudinally to adjust the shutters.

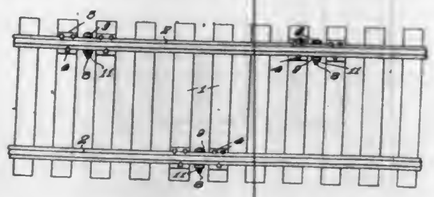
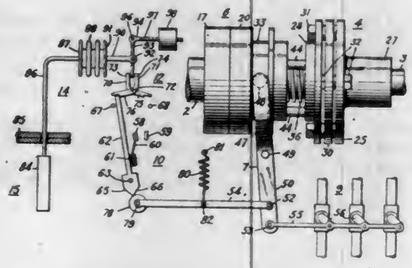
1,664,457. ELECTRICAL HAIR OR MASSAGE BRUSH. ALFRED LLOYD, London, England, assignor to Milan Francis Pratt, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Apr. 10, 1926, Serial No. 101,142, and in Great Britain Sept. 18, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 174—173.)



1. A "military" type hair brush comprising electrically conductive brisles, a battery mounted on the back of the brush towards one end thereof with one pole of said battery connected through a press contact switch to a detachable metallic cover for the back of the brush and the other pole in contact with a plate in circuit with an adjusting screw for a trembler make and break device, an induction coil mounted on the back of the brush with one pole of the primary winding connected to the armature of the make and break device and the other pole to the said metallic cover, a plurality of tappings from the secondary winding connected to a multiple-way switch with an operating handle projecting through the metallic cover and the latter being connected to the other end of the secondary winding of the induction coil so that in use the secondary circuit is completed through the metallic cover and the hand and body of the user.

1,664,458. ANCHOR PLATE. CRES MARKS, Corona, N. Mex. Filed Jan. 14, 1927. Serial No. 161,147. 1 Claim. (Cl. 238—289.)



The combination with the rails of a railway track and ties on which the rails rest, of plates of a length to rest on two of such ties and to receive the rails thereon, spikes passing through the plates and contacting with the base flanges of the rails, each of said plates having a central reduced portion of a width equaling that of the base flange of the rail and said reduced portion having a transverse channel therethrough, a bolt seated in the channel and having rail engaging means on one end thereof, and a nut screwed on the second end of the bolt to contact with the edge of the plate and with one edge of the base flange of the rail.

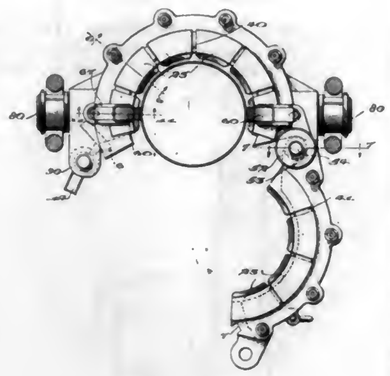
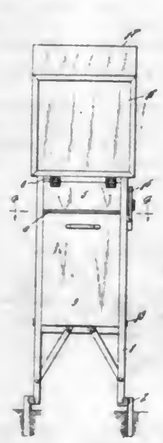
1,664,459. CONTROL MECHANISM. CHARLES THOMAS MASON, Sumter, S. C. Filed Mar. 28, 1922. Serial No. 547,594. 16 Claims. (Cl. 236—90.)



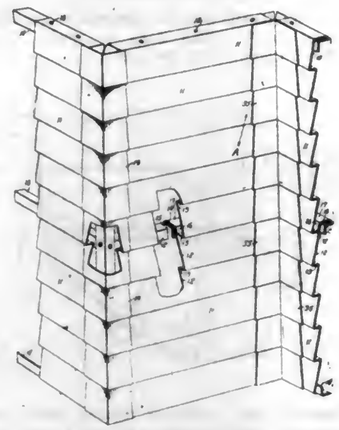
1. In a control mechanism, the combination with driving and driven members having a slip connection therebetween, of control means, means responsive to relative movement of the driving and driven members for actuating said control means to operative and inoperative positions, and automatically-releasable means for locking said control means in said positions.

1,664,460. POCKET CONSTRUCTION. FRED MAYER, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Aug. 8, 1924. Serial No. 730,876. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—247.)



1. An article of wearing apparel comprising a main body portion, and a pocket-defining facing portion attached to said body portion, said pocket-defining facing portion having its open end of reduced size but of relatively great expansibility transversely as compared to the longitudinal expansibility of said open end, the remaining portion of said pocket-defining facing portion being of relatively slight expansibility transversely as compared to the longitudinal expansibility of said remaining portion.

1,664,461. CASING ELEVATOR. GUSTAVUS A. MONTGOMERY, Titusville, Pa. Filed Sept. 15, 1925. Serial No. 56,527. 24 Claims. (Cl. 294—102.)



1. A casing elevator comprising a sectional body, slips mounted on the sections of the body, and a sectional carrier for controlling the position and movement of the slips in all positions of the sections of the body.

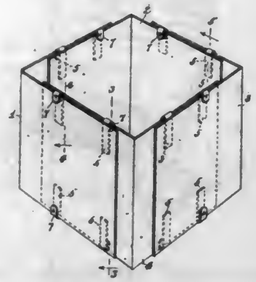
1,664,462. MAIL BOX. GOTTLIEB MUEHLEISEN, Alma, Wis., assignor to National Soil Conservation Company, Alma, Wis. Filed Apr. 4, 1924. Serial No. 704,216. 1 Claim. (Cl. 232—24.)

A structure of the class described, comprising a framework, a casing carried thereby, a horizontal partition in the casing dividing the same into a small upper compartment and a large lower compartment, a door for closing the upper compartment, said door being hinged at its upper edge and the door opening having inclined end walls which act to hold the door in a downwardly and outwardly sloping position, a tiltable member in the large compartment consisting of a bottom, a front and tapered sides, pivot pins carried by the member at the lower front corner thereof for engaging the lower walls of the casing and a stop on said member for limiting its outward movement.

1,664,463. METAL-BUILDING CONSTRUCTION. JOHN J. MURYN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Nov. 30, 1925. Serial No. 72,156. 9 Claims. (Cl. 189—86.)

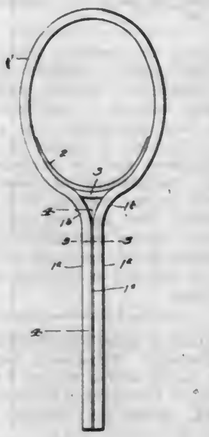
4. In a building construction, the combination of metal sheets formed to present the appearance of weatherboards, and concealed connecting means between adjacent sheets to internally secure them to a frame at their juncture.

9. In a building structure having externally corrugated side walls, a corner closure therefor comprising a sheet metal structure having connected upright portions angularly disposed to fit the corner and extended over several corrugations of said side wall, each portion being corrugated to match said corrugations and to make face to face contact therewith throughout said corrugations.



1,664,464. CANDY BOX. FREDERICK A. PURCHAS, McGraw, N. Y. Filed Dec. 3, 1926. Serial No. 152,471. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—87.)

1. A box simulating a log cabin in appearance and including a body and a cover, the walls of said body comprising front, rear and end walls composed of superimposed logs, the logs at right angles to each other having interengagement, a catch supported by the body and adapted to engage the cover, and one of the logs of the box operatively engaging the catch and adapted to be moved to operate the catch.



1,664,465. PARTITIONING DEVICE. FREDERICK A. PURCHAS, McGraw, N. Y. Filed Dec. 9, 1926. Serial No. 153,653. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—7.)

A partitioning device of the character described, comprising a plurality of bendable sections, coupling devices on the respective sections adapted to engage other sections, said coupling devices comprising metal straps secured to the sections and having tongues overlapping the edges of adjacent sections, and spurs on said tongues adapted to be projected into the material of the sections and hold the latter in their positions of adjustment.

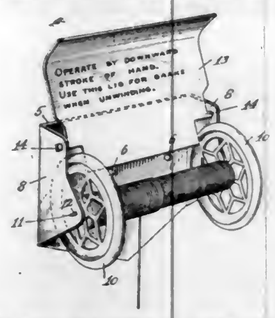
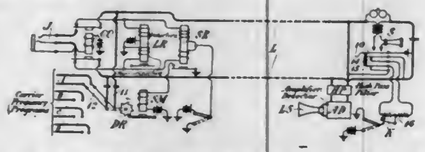
1,664,466. TENNIS RACKET. MILTON B. REACH, Springfield, Mass., assignor to A. G. Spalding & Bros., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 12, 1927. Serial No. 205,115. 4 Claims. (Cl. 273—73.)



3. A tennis racket having a bow portion and integral handle portions, a substantially crescent shaped strip secured to the inner face of the bow and bridging the throat and leaving the throat open below the strip, a filler strip of softer material than the handle portions to opposite faces of which filler strip the handle portions are adhesively secured, the end of said filler strip forming a terminus for the open throat.

1,664,467. HOUSEHOLD TWINE REEL. HENRY O. ROESKE, Belfast, N. Y. Filed Apr. 28, 1927. Serial No. 187,143. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—156.)



1. In a household twine-reel, a bracket-plate, a reel journalled therein and consisting of a shaft or drum provided with a pair of fly-wheels, one at each end, journals supported on the bracket, and a gravitating brake-plate pivotally mounted on the bracket and resting gravitatingly upon the top edges of the fly-wheels, the pivots for this brake-plate being so located that the plate may be swung upwardly and backwardly to a position to rest out of braking action.

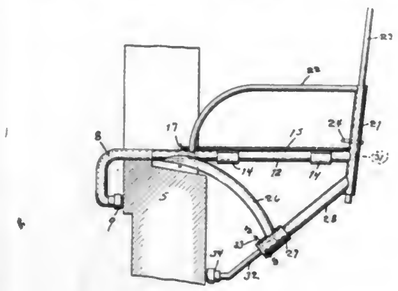
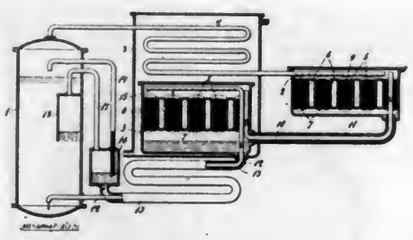
1,664,468. PROGRAM-SELECTING CIRCUITS. MAURICE E. STRIEBY, Millburn, N. J., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 10, 1923. Serial No. 679,722. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—2.)



1. In a program transmitting system, a subscriber's telephone line terminating in subscriber's telephone apparatus at the subscriber's station, switching means at the central office whereby a connection may be established between said subscriber's line and another subscriber's line, a plurality of trunks at the central office upon which programs may be impressed, a directively operated switch independent of said first mentioned switching means at the central office for establishing connections between said line and any desired trunk to exclusion of other trunks, and means at the subscriber's station for controlling the operation of said switch over the two sides of the line in parallel with the receiver on the switch hook.

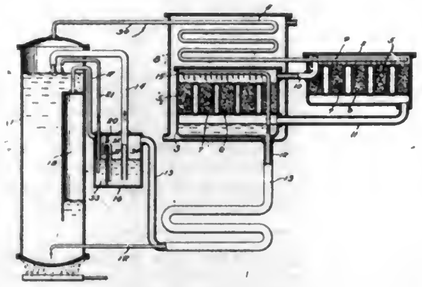
1,664,469. RAILWAY-TRAFFIC-CONTROLLING APPARATUS. HOWARD A. THOMPSON, Edgewood Borough, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 11, 1926. Serial No. 128,594. 9 Claims. (Cl. 246—34.)



1. In combination with a section of railway track, a relay having its terminals connected with one end of one rail and with the other end of the other rail, respectively and a source of energy having its terminals connected with the free ends of such rails, respectively.

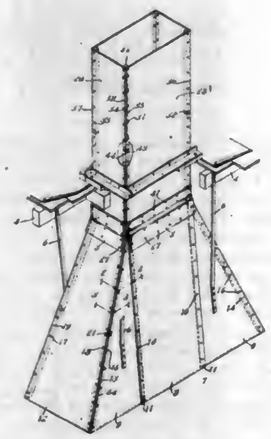
1,664,470. WINDOW SEAT. GEORGE J. TRIGONIS, San Francisco, Calif. Filed June 4, 1926. Serial No. 113,762. 1 Claim. (Cl. 304—27.)

In a window seat, a pair of tubular spaced members, hooked members slidably engaged in said tubular members, means for maintaining said hooked members in adjusted position, vertically disposed tubular members secured to said first mentioned tubular members, a U-shaped back rest, vertically adjustably held in said upright members, and legs slidably secured to said device, for the purpose specified.



1,664,471. REFRIGERATION. BALTZAR CARL VON PLATEN, Ystad, and CARL GEORG MUNTERS, Dala-Jarna, Sweden, assignors, by mesne assignments, to Electrolux Servel Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 6, 1924, Serial No. 697,418, and in Sweden Mar. 8, 1923. 23 Claims. (Cl. 62—118.)

1. That improvement in the art of refrigerating through the agency of an absorption system including a generator containing a first body of absorption liquid and an absorber containing a second body of absorption liquid which consists in forming a third body of absorption liquid, generating a gas pressure reacting against the first body, the second body and the third body and causing movement of said third body between the absorber and generator due to said gas pressure.



1,664,472. REFRIGERATING APPARATUS. BALTZAR CARL VON PLATEN and CARL GEORG MUNTERS, Stockholm, Sweden, assignors to Electrolux Servel Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Mar. 6, 1924, Serial No. 697,418, and in Sweden Mar. 8, 1923. Divided and this application filed June 8, 1926. Serial No. 114,425. 9 Claims. (Cl. 62—119.)

1. Refrigerating apparatus comprising a generator, a condenser, an evaporator, an absorber, an upwardly extending riser conduit opening into said generator and arranged to communicate with the liquid space of the absorber, a second conduit connected to communicate with said generator and arranged so that pressure variations occurring within the same are transmitted to liquid in said riser conduit, means to form a pool of liquid in communication with said second conduit and means to apply an excess pressure to said pool and to liquid in said riser conduit to move liquid in the riser conduit into the generator, said means operating to move the liquid of said pool to uncover the end of said second conduit communicating therewith to equalize the excess pressure.

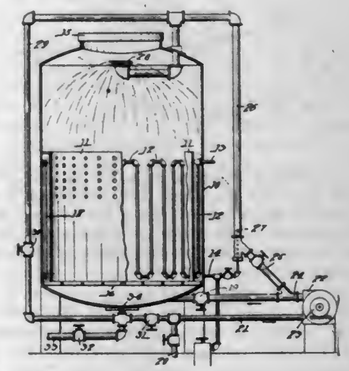
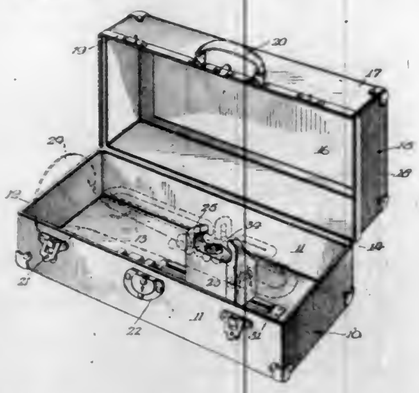
1,664,473. SMOKE JACK. SAMUEL A. WILLIAMS, Waukegan, Ill., assignor to Johns-Manville Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 3, 1925. Serial No. 6,596. 4 Claims. (Cl. 104—52.)



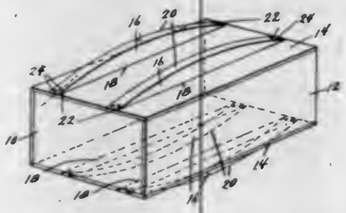
2. A smoke jack comprising walls of sheets of bonded asbestos angularly disposed and substantially meeting along their adjacent margins, corner members conforming to the angle thus defined, countersunk openings passing through the corner members in a plurality of directions, fastening means seated therein and joined to the marginal portions of the walls, and cementitious material covering said fastening means.

1,664,474. SALTING APPARATUS. DAVID R. BAILEY, Sacramento, Calif., assignor to California Almond Growers Exchange, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Sept. 27, 1924. Serial No. 740,321. 4 Claims. (Cl. 107—43.)



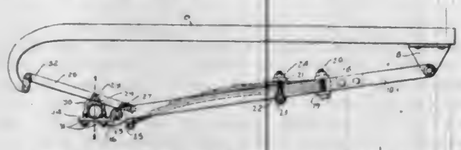
1. A salting apparatus comprising a reticulated salting tray receiving material to be salted at one end and fed by the motion of the tray to the opposite end, a salt hopper having a plurality of discharge outlets spaced apart for discharging salt onto the material fed over the tray at successive points, means for reciprocating the tray and means for discharging the salt from said outlets.

1,664,475. KIER. JOSEPH CYRUS BONNEAU, Webster, Mass. Filed Mar. 16, 1927. Serial No. 175,848. 3 Claims. (Cl. 8—18.)



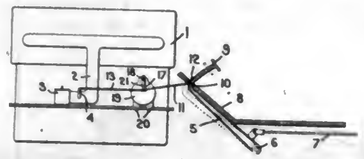
1. In a kier, the combination with a tank, of a grating across the bottom thereof to support the goods and permit circulation of liquid therethrough, a perforated partition spaced from the wall of the tank extending upwardly from said grating, steam coils in the space between the tank wall and the partition, means for spraying liquid in the top of the tank above the space within said partition, means for introducing liquid into the bottom of the tank below the partition, piping for introducing the liquid into said spraying means at the top, and means whereby the exhaust steam from said coils is introduced into the last-named piping to heat the liquid and assist its flow.

1,664,476. CASE FOR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. AMBROSE C. GEIB, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Geib & Schaefer Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 3, 1926. Serial No. 91,906. 5 Claims. (Cl. 206—13.)



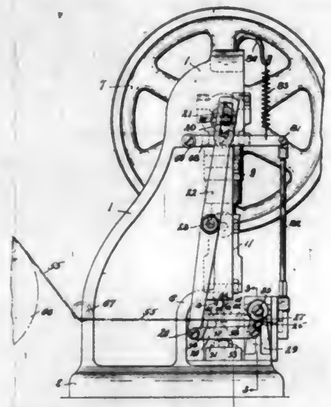
1. The combination with a case for a musical instrument comprising a body-section and a cover-section hinged together, of a block provided with means for retaining the instrument, means to slidably connect the block to a wall of the case, and means to clamp the block in an assigned position.

1,664,477. SHIPPING CASE. JOHN B. HUNZELMAN, Somerville, Mass., assignor to Wm. F. Schrafft & Sons Corp., Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 26, 1925. Serial No. 39,839. 7 Claims. (Cl. 217—5.)



1. A rectangular shipping case having flat side and end walls and straight edges and having at least one of its long side walls formed with a flat internal face and an outer supporting-face which is convex along its length only and is co-extensive with the length of the side wall between two of the straight edges.

1,664,478. SPRING SUSPENSION FOR VEHICLES. JAMES A. LUKE, deceased, Cleveland, Ohio, by Howard J. Luke, administrator, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 5, 1927. Serial No. 210,887. 9 Claims. (Cl. 267—19.)

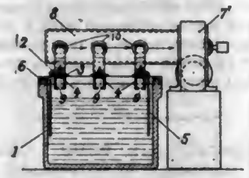


1. The combination with a body frame and axle, of a thrust frame pivotally connected between the body frame and the axle, a spring fixed to the thrust frame, and a lever and link connection between the body frame and the spring, the lever being fulcrumed upon the axle.

1,664,479. THROTTLE CONTROL FOR AUTOMOBILES. EMROE A. MACKEAN, Saugus, Mass. Filed Sept. 30, 1927. Serial No. 223,179. 4 Claims. (Cl. 192—3.)

2. In an automobile, the combination with a foot brake pedal, of a throttle-controlling member, a connection between said member and pedals which will transmit gentle movement from the pedal to the controlling member but which is disruptable under heavy strain, an inertia device associated with said connection and which interposes sufficient resistance to a sudden movement of the pedal to cause said connection to be disrupted.

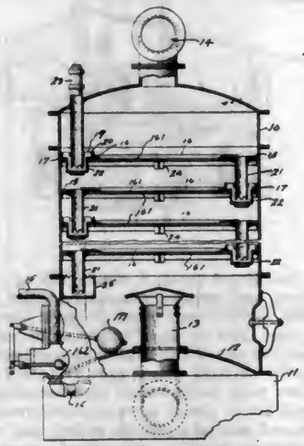
1,664,480. MANUFACTURE OF PRIMER ANVILS. JAMES A. MURPHY, Lowell, Mass., assignor to United States Cartridge Co., Lowell, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 27, 1923. Serial No. 654,171. 19 Claims. (Cl. 29—34.)



1. A machine for making primer anvils comprising means for advancing a sheet of metal therethrough, means for shaping a portion of said sheet into a hollow cone, the outer and inner surfaces of which having different conical angles, and means for cutting the portion so shaped from the metal sheet.

10. A machine for making primer anvils comprising a punch with an ovoido-conical point and an annular shoulder at its base, a die block having in registry with said punch a conical depression with a cylindrical surface at its base and apex, said punch and die block being adapted to press and shape between them a sheet of metal, and an extruding punch having an ovoido-conical point and an annular shoulder at its base, and adapted to register with a corresponding aperture in the die block and with a shaped portion of said metal sheet and to cut from the latter a right-cylindrical section with longitudinal grooves therein.

1,664,481. RUBBER VULCANIZATION ACCELERATOR. CLAYTON OLIN NORTH, Talmadge Township, Summit County, and WINFIELD SCOTT, Akron, Ohio, assignors to The Rubber Service Laboratories Co., Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 17, 1924. Serial No. 756,619. 12 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

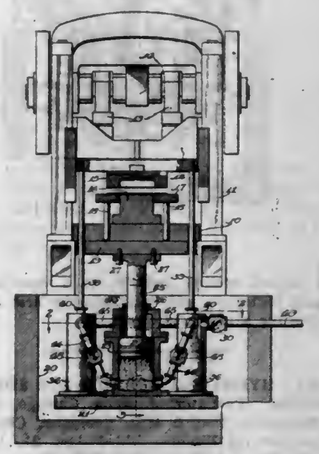


2. The process of manufacturing vulcanized rubber which comprises plasticizing rubber, adding thereto sulfur, and a small quantity of a compound formed by the reaction of hydrogen sulfid upon the ammonia addition product of a straight chain aldehyde and heating the mixture so formed.

1,664,482. WITHDRAWAL OF VAPORS AND GASES FROM GALVANOTECHNICAL TANKS. WILHELM ANTON FRANZ PFANHAUSER, Leipzig, Germany. Filed Dec. 16, 1925, Serial No. 75,824, and in Germany Mar. 18, 1925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—5.)

1. In an electrolytic apparatus in which deleterious vapors and gases are developed during the operation of the process practiced therein, means comprising hollow members arranged above the electrolyte and having apertures permitting the reception of said gases, and means for positively insuring the collection of the gases developed and rising from said apparatus in said pipes.

1,664,483. APPARATUS FOR ABSORBING FLUIDS FROM GASES. EMIL PIRON, New York, N. Y., assignor to Piron Coal Distillation Systems, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 30, 1921. Serial No. 504,505. 4 Claims. (Cl. 261—114.)

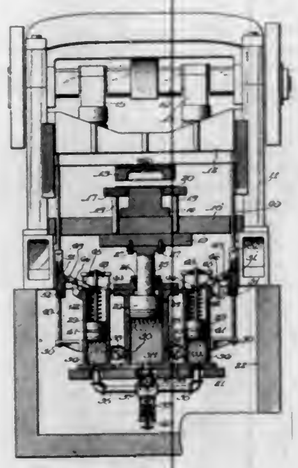


1. An absorption device comprising a horizontal foraminous member, a menstruum inlet at one side of said member and a menstruum outlet at the other side thereof, and guides between said inlet and said outlet arranged to divide the menstruum into a plurality of defined streams flowing across said member.

1,664,484. METHOD OF REMOVING TAR FROM GASES. EMIL PIRON, New York, N. Y., assignor to Piron Coal Distillation Systems, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 25, 1925. Serial No. 18,102. 2 Claims. (Cl. 23—3.)

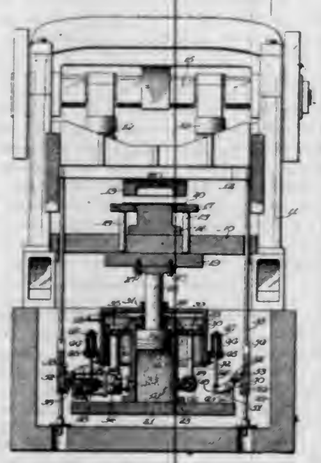
1. In the art of wood distillation, the method of removing tar and tar-forming elements from distillation gases, which consists in washing said gases with a scrubbing medium having substantially no chemical action upon the tar constituents to remove the greater portion thereof, heating said gases, then scrubbing said gases with a sulphuric acid solution while maintaining the temperature of the gases during said scrubbing steps above the condensing point of the non-tar vapors, condensing the pyroligneous acid, heating a portion of the non-condensable gases formed and adding it to the gases prior to the scrubbing with sulphuric acid to constitute said heating step, said heating being sufficient in amount to keep the temperature during the step of scrubbing with sulphuric acid above the condensing point of the non-tar vapors.

1,664,485. HYDRAULIC CUSHION FOR SHEET-METAL PRESSES. FREDRICH J. RODE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Marquette Tool & Mfg. Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 15, 1927. Serial No. 184,070. 14 Claims. (Cl. 267—1.)



1. A sheet metal working machine embodying a work holding element, an hydraulic cushion for resisting the movement of said element in one direction, said cushion embodying cylinder and piston members one of which is acted upon by said element, a conduit for leading the liquid from one side to the other side of the piston, a valve for controlling the conduit, variable resistance pressure means acting upon the valve and against which pressure the valve is adapted to be opened by pressure upon the liquid by the movement of the said element, means for restoring the work holding element, the last said means embodying cylinder and piston members, means whereby the liquid will be forced from the first to the second said cylinder when the said valve is opened, and means for forcing the liquid from the second said cylinder back into the first said cylinder to thus restore the work holding element.

1,664,486. HYDRAULIC CUSHION FOR SHEET-METAL PRESSES. FREDRICH J. RODE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Marquette Tool & Mfg. Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 21, 1927. Serial No. 185,489. 14 Claims. (Cl. 267—1.)



1. In a sheet metal press a pressure pad, an hydraulic cushion for resisting the movement of the pad in one direction and embodying cylinder and piston members one of which operates upon the pad, a second cylinder and piston members, a conduit for leading the liquid from the pressure side of the first said piston to the pressure side of the other piston, variable resistance means for controlling the conduit and operable upon by the liquid pressure to open the conduit, a conduit for leading the liquid back from the second to the first recited cylinder, a check valve in the last said conduit, and means rendered active by a movable part of the press at a predetermined time in the cycle of operation of the press for moving the piston in the second recited cylinder in a direction to force the liquid therefrom and back into the first said cylinder to restore the said pressure pad.

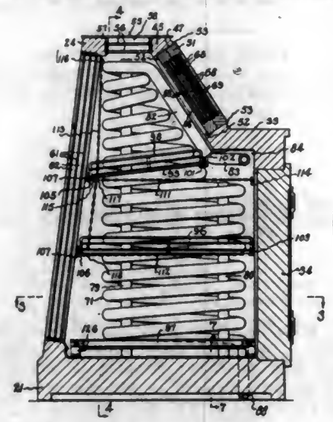
1,664,487. HYDRAULIC CUSHION FOR SHEET-METAL PRESSES. FREDRICH J. ROSE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Marquette Tool & Mfg. Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 21, 1927. Serial No. 185,490. 14 Claims. (Cl. 267—1.)

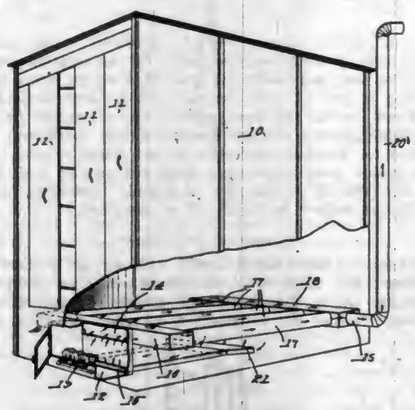
1. In a sheet metal working press a pressure pad, an hydraulic cushion for resisting the movement of said pad in one direction and embodying cylinder and piston members one of which members operates upon the pad, an additional and movable cylinder, a stationary piston co-operating with the latter, a conduit for leading liquid from the pressure side of the first said piston between the said movable cylinder and stationary piston, variable resistance means for controlling, said conduit, a second conduit for leading the liquid from between the stationary piston and movable cylinder back to the pressure side of the first said piston to restore the latter, means for controlling the last said conduit, a normally inactive resilient element carried by the movable cylinder, a lever mounted upon a fixed pivot and operable upon said resilient element, and means connected with a movable part of the press for operating the lever at a predetermined time in the cycle of operation of the press to create energy in the said resilient element to restore the said movable cylinder.

1,664,488. CENTRIFUGAL PUMP. CHRISTOPHER A. SCHELLENS, Marblehead, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to C-S Engineering Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 1, 1924. Serial No. 723,469. 9 Claims. (Cl. 103—88.)



1. In a centrifugal pump, a runner having a plurality of axial inlet and radial discharge passages of quadrilateral cross section, two walls of each passage being formed through part of their length as helical portions and through the remainder as circular portions of spiral circumferential surfaces spaced radially from each other; the other two walls being formed from surfaces which at the inlet end are in planes spaced circumferentially from each other and are substantially radial, and which are warped therefrom helically into planes perpendicular to the axis and spaced axially from each other.

1,664,489. REFRIGERATOR DISPLAY CASE. GUSTAV SCHMIDT, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Cincinnati Butchers' Supply Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 30, 1927. Serial No. 243,559. 5 Claims. (Cl. 62—37.)



1. A refrigerator display case comprising a base arranged to be supported on the floor and posts extending upwardly from the front portion of said base for dividing the front portion of the case into display openings arranged side by side lengthwise of the case, the upper portion of the rear wall of the case sloping forwardly to form an interior of the case which contracts cross-sectionally at its upper portion, and refrigerating elements provided with contracting upper portions and arranged crosswise of the interior of the case in rear of said posts respectively and extending into said contracting upper portion of said interior for dividing said interior into display sections in rear of said respective display openings.

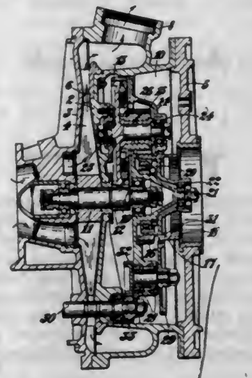
1,664,490. LAUNDRY DRIER. WILLIAM C. SCHRENKEISEN, Mount Vernon, N. Y., assignor to Hill Laundry Equipment Co., Inc., Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 14, 1926. Serial No. 115,850. 3 Claims. (Cl. 34—40.)

1. In a laundry drier, the combination with a gas heated fire box, cross ducts at the front and rear, into the front one of which the box delivers the fumes and a series of horizontal flues connecting the two ducts and conducting the fumes from one to the other, of a damp air intake having its inlet near the floor of the drier under the flues and conducting the damp air from the bottom of the drier near the center thereof into the fire box below the burners therein and below one of said cross ducts.



1,664,491. COMBINED SHOWER CABINET AND TUB. SAMUEL SIEGEL, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 16, 1925. Serial No. 9,393. Renewed Sept. 15, 1927. 5 Claims. (Cl. 4—146.)

1. A construction for bath rooms comprising a tub, a rigid shower cabinet superstructure provided upon one end portion of the tub and utilizing the tub as the drain pan therefor, a wall of the said superstructure extending across intermediate the ends of the tub to complete the shower bath cabinet and hingedly movable into an open position in which it extends along a side of the tub so as to permit of the normal use of the tub for a tub bath.

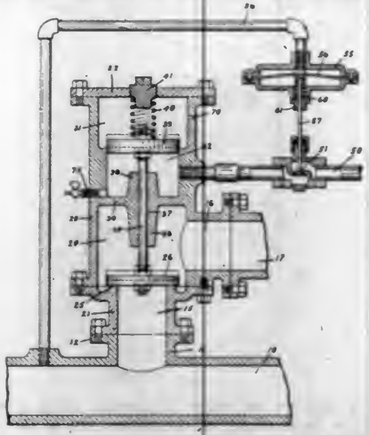
1,664,492. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. FREDERICK ROBERTSON SMITH and SPIRITO MARIO VIALE, Coventry, England. Filed May 12, 1926, Serial No. 108,647, and in Great Britain May 16, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—55.)



1. In an internal combustion engine having radial cylinders, the combination of a blower mounted coaxially with the engine crankshaft and attached to the crankcase, a casing enclosing said blower adjacent and attached to the crankcase, a recess in the side of said casing adjacent said crankcase, a detachable carrier plate within said recess, and transmission gearing for driving said blower supported by said plate, said transmission gearing being supported on spindles mounted in bearings in the casing on one end and in bearings in the carrier plate on the other end, substantially as set forth.

1,664,493. VALVE. HARRY F. SMITH, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Gas Research Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 27, 1922. Serial No. 532,145. 5 Claims. (Cl. 137—53.)

3. A pressure relief valve comprising a casing, a valve member within said casing constructed to normally open under the influence of a predetermined pressure within the said casing, a spring cooperating with said valve for resisting opening movement of said valve member until a predetermined pressure has been reached, means actuated by the pressure within said valve casing for forcing said valve from its seat when a definite pressure in excess of the said predetermined pressure has been reached, and means for automatically rendering ineffective said forcing means when the valve member has been opened a predetermined distance.

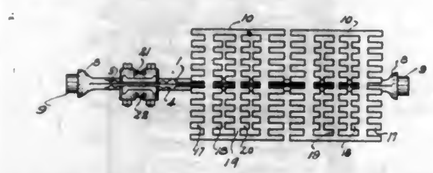
1,664,494. RADIO APPARATUS. HARRY F. SMITH, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Gas Research Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 30, 1927. Serial No. 179,575. 2 Claims. (Cl. 175—359.)

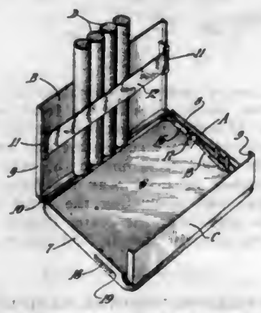


1. A radio apparatus of the class described comprising a coil of wire, a nonmagnetic secondary member extending longitudinally of said coil and formed of a number of separate spaced conductive discs having very short length in the direction of the coil axis and having high electrical conductivity in a direction transverse of the coil axis, said coil of wire being adapted to carry power currents and having very low inductance at commercial power frequencies and very high inductance at high frequencies.

1,664,495. VARIABLE-INDUCTANCE APPARATUS. HERBERT VADERSEN, Elizabeth, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 26, 1924. Serial No. 695,214. 6 Claims. (Cl. 171—242.)

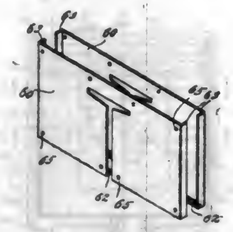
1. In combination, a cylindrical coil comprising a helical conductor, a rotatable shaft positioned coincident with the axis of said coil, a support pivoted upon said shaft, a contact arm slidable in said support, and a contact wiper on said arm engaging said conductor.

1,664,496. GRATE BAR. CALVIN RETICUS WAID, Birmingham, Ala., assignor to W. C. Appleby, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Dec. 26, 1923. Serial No. 682,762. 11 Claims. (Cl. 126—176.)



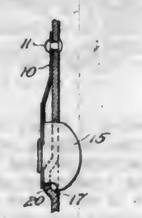
1. In a grate, an assembly bar having rocker trunnions, a plurality of duplicate grate segments having spaced supporting webs detachably mounted on said bar, and a shaker attachment clamped to the base of said bar between the supporting webs of said segments.

1,664,497. RUG AND STRAND THEREFOR. PHILIP C. WAITE, Oshkosh, Wis. Filed Mar. 11, 1927. Serial No. 174,503. 6 Claims. (Cl. 28—1.)



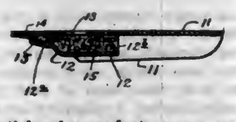
1 A rug strand composed of a plurality of flat braids both spirally coiled together with the convolutions lying flatwise over and under one another, each flat braid comprising a pair of core sections having yarns braided in and out around the core sections, and a central line of stitching passing through the alternately overlapped flat braids for holding the braids in flat coiled relation and the braids being alternately displayed on the same side of the strand as parallel diagonally extending uninterrupted stripes, substantially as described.

1,664,498. CIGARETTE CASE. FRANK E. WAKEFIELD, Elgin, Ill., assignor to Illinois Watch Case Company, Elgin, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 7, 1927. Serial No. 173,256. 3 Claims. (Cl. 206—41.)



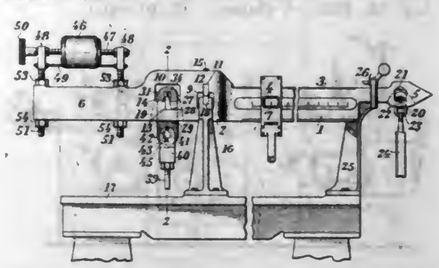
2. A case having marginal walls, a pair of covers hinged to opposite walls of the case and adapted conjointly to provide a closure therefor, means for removably supporting in one cover articles which are swung out of the case when both covers are opened, and latch means carried by the case for releasably holding either or both of the two covers in closed position upon the case, substantially as described.

1,664,499. BEAM HANGER. HUGH J. BAKER, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed July 12, 1926. Serial No. 121,782. 4 Claims. (189—35.)



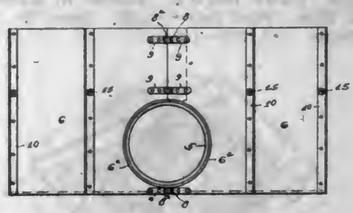
1. A bracket for supporting a joist from a girder, said joist having one or more longitudinal flanges, said bracket being formed of sheet metal and cut out to fit against one side and over the top of the girder, said bracket being provided with a seat adapted to receive and support the joist, the material of said bracket being bent along the outer vertical edge to form a flange, the flanges of said joist being notched for the reception of said bracket flange.

1,664,500. CATCH FOR CASES AND THE LIKE. GEORGE T. BATES, Elgin, Ill., assignor to Illinois Watch Case Company, Elgin, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 18, 1926. Serial No. 81,946. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—87.)



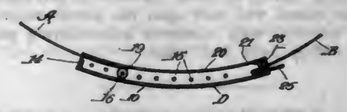
The combination with a case and cover therefor of a spring bar fastened at one end to a wall of the case, there being a finger catch extended from the bar to releasably hold the cover upon the case, a flat button connected to the bar at a point remote from its fastened end and extended through the case wall wherein is a closely surrounding aperture for this purpose, the case wall adjacent said aperture being inset at one point and the button having an overhanging shoulder adapted to engage with said inset wall portion when a push-in pressure is applied thereto, the button shoulder being normally substantially flush with the outer face of the case wall and serving as a stop, when engaged therewith, to limit further inward movement of the catch, substantially as described.

1,664,501. WRITING PEN. ISRAEL BENJAMINS, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 10, 1926. Serial No. 115,040. 2 Claims. (Cl. 120—114.)



1. As an article of manufacture a removable pen point, comprising a main body, a bracket, secured thereto in a way to form an integral structure therewith, and absorbent material, supported by said bracket in contact with the underside of said pen point near the forward end thereof, said bracket and said pen point having therebetween an opening at the forward end thereof, to allow said material to absorb ink therethrough when said end is dipped into an inkwell.

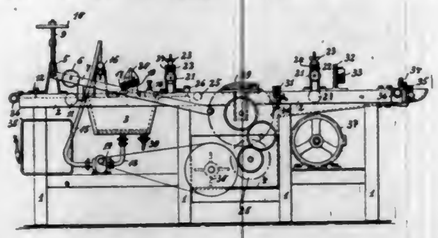
1,664,502. WEIGH BEAM. ALFRED BOUSFIELD, St. Johnsbury, Vt., assignor to E. and T. Fairbanks and Company, St. Johnsbury, Vt., a Corporation of Vermont. Filed Jan. 22, 1926. Serial No. 82,918. 2 Claims. (Cl. 265—49.)



1. In combination, a weigh-beam having a T-shaped recess formed therein, comprising a rectangular opening extending laterally of said weigh-beam and a vertical slot arranged centrally of said weigh-beam and extending downwardly from said rectangular opening, a pivot in said rectangular opening and means for positively clamping said pivot in position.

1,664,503. BULKHEAD WALL FOR CULVERTS. CARL M. CORNELL, Buffalo, S. Dak., assignor of one-half to Wynn M. Bennett, Buffalo, S. Dak. Filed June 29, 1927. Serial No. 202,301. 6 Claims. (Cl. 61—16.)

1. A bulkhead wall of the character described made in two sections, each of said sections comprising a vertical wall portion and a floor portion, the confronting edges of said wall portion being complementally cut out to fit about a culvert pipe, means for drawing said sections toward each other to bind them upon a culvert pipe, and braces engaged with said floor portion and said wall portion.



1,664,504. ADJUSTABLE BRACELET. SIDNEY C. EPPENSTEIN, Elgin, Ill., assignor to Illinois Watch Case Company, Elgin, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 9, 1927. Serial No. 197,659. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—206.)

1. In combination with a pair of strap ends, a coupling member comprising a plate having spaced flanges each formed with a plurality of aligned openings, said coupling having slotted end walls extending between the flanges, one strap end extending through the slotted wall of one end of said coupling member and carrying a spring catch having oppositely extending trunnions receivable within any selected pair of said openings, and a spring catch extending longitudinally with the other strap end having means for detachably engaging the slotted end wall of the other end of said coupling member.

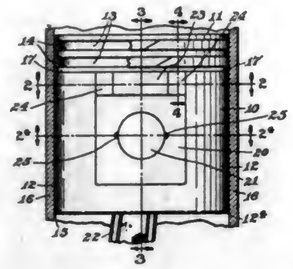
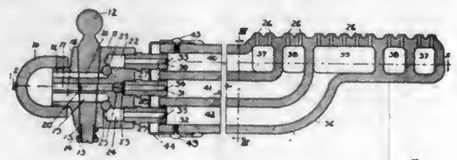
1,664,505. MACHINE FOR COATING OBJECTS. JOSEPH FRANZ, Berlin-Neutempelhof, Germany. Filed Nov. 18, 1926, Serial No. 149,104, and in Germany Aug. 12, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—41.)

1. In a machine for coating objects such as boards with colour, paint or the like in combination a spring actuated adjustable roller driven by a motor and pressed against the top of the object to be treated, a colour trough in communication with a spraying device actuated by a pump, a second colour trough arranged longitudinally behind the first mentioned trough, a feed roller in said second trough, a rotary brush-roller, cooperating with said feed roller and adjustable brushes fixed to the machine and extending into the path of the object to be treated so as to contact with the lateral surfaces of the latter.



1,664,506. GAME DEVICE. ERNEST W. GATES, Needham, Mass. Filed July 1, 1927. Serial No. 202,944. 4 Claims. (Cl. 273—119.)

1. A game device comprising a bed having a diversified surface including a protuberance simulating a volcanic mountain, an upstanding curb surrounding the bed, the summit of the protuberance being provided with an upwardly opening recess surrounded by a wall which simulates a crater, a plurality of loose balls adapted to be assembled in the recess, and a ball-supporting plunger formed to support said balls within the recess, and movable vertically therein to cause the balls to roll outwardly over the recess wall and upon the protuberance, the bed being provided with numbered ball-receiving pockets in which rolling balls may lodge.



1,664,507. LUBRICATING PISTON. CHARLES C. HANCH, Connersville, Ind. Filed Feb. 9, 1922. Serial No. 535,115. 13 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)

1. A piston for internal combustion engines, comprising a head and a skirt with a piston ring near the head end of the piston, said piston being provided with a substantially imperforate external circumferential passage at that side of said piston ring which is remote from the piston head, and being also provided in its outer face with a reservoir into which said circumferential passage feeds.

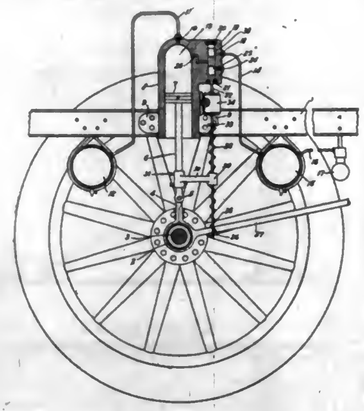
1,664,508. GAS BURNER. PHILIP S. HARPER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 26, 1921. Serial No. 439,905. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—105.)

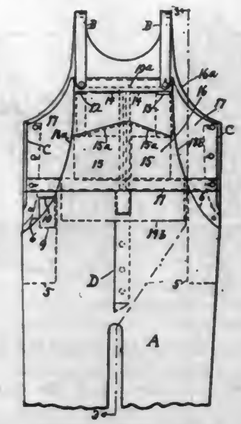


1. In a gas burner, a burner body member having a plurality of heating sections, said sections being arranged within the area covered by the usual cooking vessel, and having a plurality of burner ports in the upper side of each of said burner sections, a plurality of mixing tubes connecting directly into said sections, each tube to its respective section, each of the said mixing tubes being positioned one above the other, and each tube separated from another by a substantially horizontal wall; a valve casing having a plurality of passages therein leading to the said mixing tubes; and control means in the said valve casing.

1,664,509. GAS-RANGE BURNER. PHILIP S. HARPER, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 20, 1927. Serial No. 192,852. 5 Claims. (Cl. 158—104.)

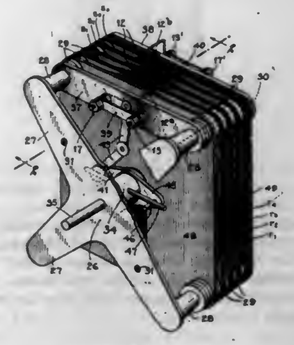
1. A double gas range burner with a gas cock having a single lever handle and having two gas nozzles, said nozzles projecting through an air shutter common to two mixing tubes into which said nozzles respectively discharge, one to each tube, each of said tubes leading to a burner section having a plurality of burner ports in the upper side thereof, one section having over twice the number of ports as the other section, said air shutter having an adjustable closing means intercepting air openings to both of said mixing tubes, the air opening to one tube being over twice the air opening to the other tube.

1,664,510. SHOCK ABSORBER. HOWARD R. HUGHES, Jr., Houston, Tex. Filed Jan. 9, 1924. Serial No. 685,103. 2 Claims. (Cl. 267—65.)



1. In a vehicle including a frame and axle, a cylinder, a piston in said cylinder, a rod on said piston, said cylinder and piston being connected between said frame and axle, a tank for air under pressure, a pipe connecting the tank and said cylinder beyond said piston, a valve in said pipe, a valve stem on said valve having resilient connection with said piston and a dash pot on said stem acting to resist movement of said stem and valve, said valve controlling the air to said cylinder to maintain the normal position of said piston therein.

1,664,511. INFORMATION DISPLAY DEVICE. ELTON ISBELL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 9, 1927. Serial No. 174,044. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—86.)

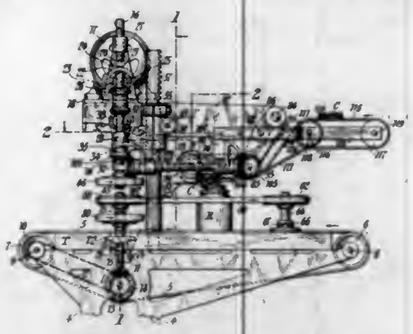


1. In an article of the character described, a supporting plate, a cover plate adapted to be slid to and from a position overlapping the supporting plate, a pair of spaced, axially parallel rollers mounted on the cover plate, a data-carrying tape applied at its opposite ends to the rollers and extending along the underside of the cover plate, means whereby one of said rollers is adapted to be revolved to wind the tape thereonto from the other roller; there being a sight opening in the cover plate between the rollers and giving visibility to a portion of the data tape where it extends between said rollers.

1,664,512. OVERALLS. ALFRED JOHNSON, Richfield, Minn. Filed Mar. 6, 1926. Serial No. 92,753. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—79.)

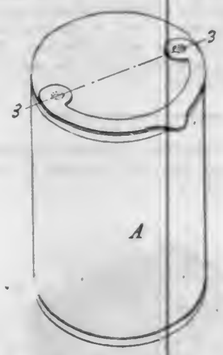
As a new article of manufacture, overalls provided with a breast flap above the belt line and shoulder straps detachably securable to the upper part of said flap, a belt seam, a bib sewed to the upper edge of said breast flap and extending to the belt seam and widened at said latter seam to provide upright openings at the edges of said bib, and between it and the breast flap a pocket extending below said belt seam interiorly of the overall front and opening upwardly into the space between the breast flap and said bib.

1,664,513. VARIOMETER. LESTER L. JONES, Oradell, N. J. Filed Jan. 23, 1923. Serial No. 614,404. 19 Claims. (Cl. 171—119.)



1. A variable inductance comprising a stator formed of a set of flat coils each coil comprising oppositely wound coil sections wound in a single plane, and a rotor also formed of a set of flat coils each coil comprising oppositely wound coil sections wound in a single plane, the coils of the stator set and the coils of the rotor set being arranged in alternating interleaving relation.

1,664,514. CAPPING MACHINE. ERIC B. KRAMER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 7, 1924. Serial No. 718,422. 6 Claims. (Cl. 226—88.)



1. In a machine of the character described the combination of means for advancing a receptacle, means for screwing a cap in a clockwise direction onto the receptacle, cap feeding means comprising a chute for receiving the cap, a pair of pivotally mounted arms, a cap rotating wheel mounted in the free end of each of said arms, means for rotating said wheels in opposite directions for rotating the cap in anti-clockwise direction, and means for releasably retaining the cap at the delivery end of said chute.

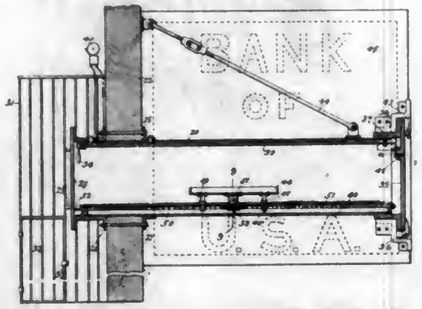
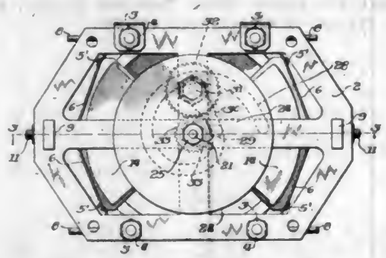
1,664,515. OPENING DEVICE FOR CANS. WILLIAM R. LAMBERT, Norphlet, Ark., assignor of one-fifth to Orin Gilstrap, Norphlet, Ark. Filed Nov. 6, 1926. Serial No. 146,690. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—53.)



1. In a can of the class described wherein the same is formed in its top with a pair of spaced openings, a flat strip lying flush against the top of the can, the ends of the strip being enlarged for disposition completely over the respective openings in the top of the can, said enlarged ends of the strip being soldered to the top of the can for maintaining the can sealed, and means formed on the strip to facilitate the removal of the same from the can to uncover the opening.

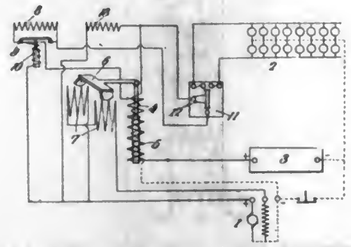
1,664,516. SHADE HOLDER. LAWRENCE H. LEVINSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,441. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—136.)



The combination with a shade supporting wire ring of a flat metal ring provided with a plurality of integral flat extensions at its circumference and in the same plane, a plurality of wires secured to said wire ring and brazed to the underside of said extensions, said wire ring, wires and flat ring being formed to be substantially in the same plane, and a depending circular and threaded flange at the central aperture of said flat ring and normal thereto and adapted to screw over a lamp socket.

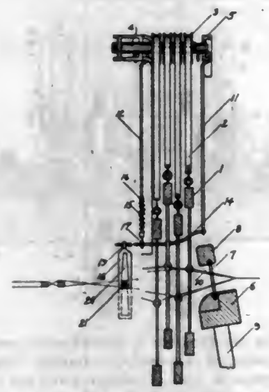
1,664,517. SYSTEM OF TRANSPORTATION. HENRY JOHN LIEBL, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Mar. 5, 1926. Serial No. 92,650. 3 Claims. (Cl. 214—38.)

1. A system for introducing articles into and removing them from a building comprising a tunnel communicating with a building at a distance from the ground, means for opening and closing said tunnel and a carriage movable lengthwise in said tunnel.



1,664,518. ELECTROSTATIC CONDENSER. JOHN F. LINDBERG, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Reliance Die & Stamping Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 21, 1927. Serial No. 177,043. 1 Claim. (Cl. 175—41.5.)

An electrostatic condenser including a rotator; a gear member carried by and coaxial with the rotor; a second gear member in actuating relation to the first; a crank coupled with the second gear member to turn it and thereby turn the first gear member and the rotor; a cam in actuating relation with said crank; and a rotatable handle coaxial with the rotor and coupled with the cam to turn it, the cam being formed to vary the rate of turning movement of said crank, and thereby of the rotor, with respect to the rate of turning movement of the handle.



1,664,519. AUTOMATIC REGULATION IN ELECTRIC-LIGHTING SYSTEMS. FREDERICK CHARLES LYNE, Westminster, London, and JAMES ETCHELLS, Aston, Birmingham, England, assignors to Vickers Limited, Westminster, London, England. Filed Apr. 25, 1927, Serial No. 186,360, and in Great Britain Mar. 30, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—313.)

1. An electric lighting system comprising in combination a dynamo, a battery, connections whereby said battery may be supplied from said dynamo, a lamp load, a field regulating resistance for said dynamo, electromagnetic means including a controlling coil whereby the amount of said field regulating resistance in series with the field winding of said dynamo may be varied, a series resistance, connections whereby said lamp load and said controlling coil may be supplied from said dynamo through said series resistance, a further resistance and connections whereby said further resistance and said controlling coil are connected in series with said dynamo.

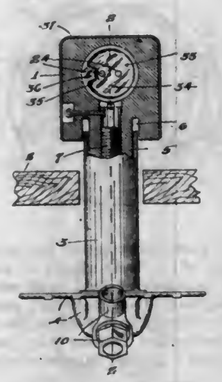
1,664,520. HARNESS-OPERATED STOP-MOTION DEVICE FOR LOOMS. JOAO MAOINA, New Bedford, Mass. Filed May 31, 1927. Serial No. 195,411. 4 Claims. (Cl. 139—337.)

1. A harness operated stop motion for use in combination with the warp stop motion of a loom, comprising means suspended from said loom and disposed transversely within the harness members, a drop member attached to said means and being adapted when lowered of coacting with a normally moving part of the warp stop motion to automatically stop the loom, said drop member being substantially O-shaped and having a tapered slot therein, said tapered slot being adapted to freely inclose the normally moving part of the warp stop motion during the normal operation of a loom.



1,664,521. CUSHION FOR SINK STRAINERS. ANNE D. MAYETTE, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Mar. 9, 1925. Serial No. 14,085. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—137.)

A cushion for the feet of culinary utensils formed from resilient material and having a frusto-conical shape of oval cross section, a cavity formed in said cushion which is substantially circular in one plane and substantially rectangular in a plane at right angles thereto, said cavity being formed with a restricted opening at its top and of sufficient depth to allow said cushion to engage the bottom of the utensil whereby to prevent moisture from entering said cavity around the opening.

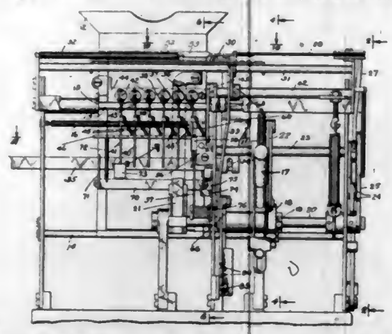
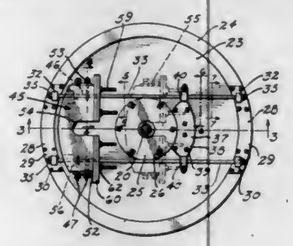
1,664,522. CONTROLLING MEANS FOR STARTERS FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. WILLIAM METZROTH, Syracuse, N. Y. Original application filed Oct. 13, 1922, Serial No. 594,249. Divided and this application filed June 3, 1925. Serial No. 34,580. 1 Claim. (Cl. 70—127.)



In a locking mechanism, the combination of a stationary tubular guide and an operating member comprising a head mounted on the end of the guide and reciprocally movable relatively thereto, the head having a groove at its lower face for receiving the upper end of the guide, the head also having a stem movable in the guide and the head also having a passage extending transversely thereof and of the upper end of the tubular guide, a locking bolt movable in the transverse passage and having a recess movable into and out of alinement with the groove and with the upper end of the tubular guide and mechanism carried by the head for operating the locking bolt.

1,664,523. IN-AND-OUT MACHINE. JOSEPH WILLIAM MILES, London, England, assignor to International Time Recording Company of New York, Endicott, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 23, 1924, Serial No. 694,525, and in Great Britain Aug. 8, 1923. 12 Claims. (Cl. 234—43.)



1. In a recording machine which includes a record sheet holder adapted to receive a record sheet therein and record making devices in operative relation to said holder, with a single means for moving and positioning the sheet holder with relation to the record making devices when making a record indication on said sheet, means for eliminating said first named positioning means and interposing another positioning means when making a succeeding record indication on said sheet.

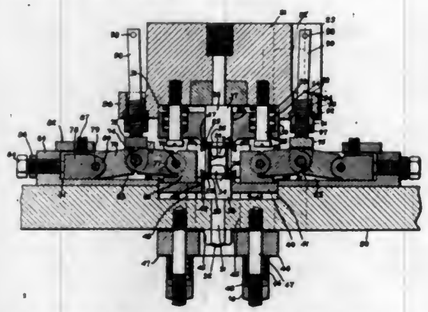
1,664,524. BAND-WHEEL COUNTERBALANCE. MAX J. MILZ, Taft, Calif., assignor to Midway Iron Works, Inc., Taft, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed July 12, 1926. Serial No. 121,825. 10 Claims. (Cl. 74—71.)

4. In a band-wheel construction for derrick equipment, the combination of: a band-wheel; a pair of rods extending across one face of said band-wheel on opposite sides of an imaginary diametral line; means for attaching the opposite ends of said rods to the peripheral portion of said band-wheel; means for placing said rods under tension; and a counter balance carried by said rods.

1,664,525. PIT COVER. JOHN HENRY OWENS, Elgin, Ill. Filed Sept. 21, 1927. Serial No. 220,983. 3 Claims. (Cl. 94—34.)

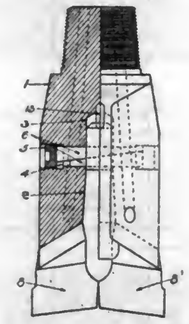


1. A public utility manhole comprising an open pit having upright walls provided with recesses in the upper edges thereof, a structural steel beam removably seated in said recesses and spanning the pit, a hinge pin anchored to one of said walls, and a cover mounted on said pin and loosely supported on said beam.

1,664,526. BACK-SPRING CONSTRUCTION FOR SEATS. FREDRIC A. PETTINGELL and ALEXANDER CARLSON, Dayton, Ohio, asignors to Dayton-Wright Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 28, 1923. Serial No. 620,595. 4 Claims. (Cl. 155—181.)

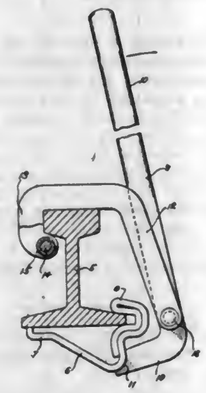
1. A seat-back spring construction including a frame having a plurality of relatively strong coiled springs arranged along the bottom of said frame and a plurality of other relatively weak coiled springs distributed over the remaining area of the frame, said strong springs being bound together along their front coils by a comparatively rigid member whereby the bottom portion of said spring construction is more rigidly held in place.

1,664,527. COMMUTATOR-RIVETING MACHINE. LORA E. POOLE, Anderson, Ind., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Delco-Remy Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 22, 1926. Serial No. 124,181. 12 Claims. (Cl. 218—1.)



7. A riveting machine for a commutator comprising an annulus of insulated segments, clamping rings for engaging the segments, and a tubular rivet for holding the rings in spaced relation, which comprises in combination a base for supporting the commutator, a head movable relative to the base, a device carried by the head for deforming an end of the tubular rivet, a member supported by the head and adapted to engage a clamping ring of the commutator, clamping blocks supported by the base and adapted to apply lateral pressure to the commutator segments, springs for transmitting motion from the head to the member which engages the clamping ring, and mechanism operated by the head for advancing and retracting the clamping blocks relative to the commutator.

1,664,528. ROTARY DRILL BIT OF THE FLAT-BLADE TYPE. CLARENCE E. REED, Wichita, Kans. Filed Nov. 5, 1925. Serial No. 67,001. 2 Claims. (Cl. 279—103.)



1. In combination in a rotary deep well drilling tool of fish tail type, a main body of flat fish tail form provided with a shank at its upper end for attachment to a drill stem, said flat body having an axial socket in its lower end consisting of an upper cylindrical portion, an intermediate frusto-conical, thrust-sustaining portion tapering upwardly, and communicating at its upper end with the lower end of the cylindrical portion, and a lower beveled wedge-shaped portion tapering upwardly into communication with the lower end of the frusto-conical portion and extending flatwise across the lower end of the body to form a terminal wedge-shaped cutter receiving groove therein, a flat tapered and beveled cutter blade in said socket and groove having a shank with a cylindrical upper part, and a frusto-conical lower part all to fit the said socket and groove, and means for drawing the shank with its blade into said body to seat them rigidly in the body, the walls of said groove overhanging the blade so as to take the torque.

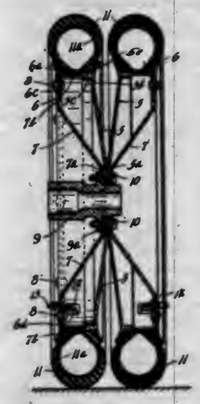
1,664,529. TOOL. FRANK J. SCHROEDER, Altoona, Pa., assignor to Continental Railway Supply Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 8, 1927. Serial No. 182,125. 2 Claims. (Cl. 81—15.)

1. A tool for positioning rail anchors on rails including a bar having a right angled end portion, defining a jaw, the free end of the jaw being curved to engage the anchor, and means carried by the bar to grip the rail to hold the tool while the jaw is being moved forwardly in the act of positioning an anchor.



1,664,530. DISPLAY STAND. WARREN J. SHAY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Columbus McKinnon Chain Company, Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 26, 1925. Serial No. 64,799. 2 Claims. (Cl. 211—13.)

1. A tire chain display stand, comprising in combination a central disk; and a noninflatable annulus surrounding the disk and mounted thereupon to receive a tire chain, said annulus having the size and shape of an automobile tire and formed of overlapping sections of sheet material that are arc shaped in cross-section and one of which embraces the other and has a crimped edge to hold the sections assembled and in abutting engagement with the opposite sides of the disk, and a stand for supporting the annulus in an upstanding position.

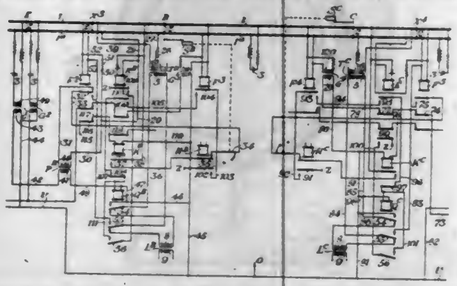
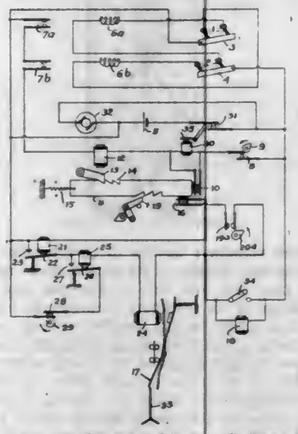
1,664,531. WHEEL FOR AUTOMOBILES. HALBERT E. THOMPSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed June 10, 1926. Serial No. 114,976. 4 Claims. (Cl. 301—63.)



1. A wheel structure having in combination, a pair of disks, one having flanges at its periphery forming respectively the face and one side of the rim and the other having a flange at its periphery forming the other side of said rim, said disks having central conical portions extending axially of said wheel in the same direction and having inner flanges disposed in planes substantially at right angles to the axis of said disks, a hub member extending through said disks and having a circumferential flange adjacent said inner flanges and a plurality of circumferentially spaced bolts passing through said inner flanges and threaded into said flange of said hub.

1,664,532. RAILWAY-TRAFFIC-CONTROLLING APPARATUS. HOWARD A. THOMPSON, Edgewood Borough, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 13, 1927. Serial No. 191,059. 3 Claims. (Cl. 246—34.)



1. In combination, a stretch of railway track along which traffic moves in both directions, said stretch being divided into blocks and also into a short eastbound reset section and a short westbound reset section, means operating during the passage of a train in either direction through said stretch to supply train governing current to the rails of each block under the control of traffic conditions in advance of the block, means normally operating to supply train governing current to the rails of each reset section regardless of traffic conditions in advance of such section, means operating while an eastbound train occupies said westbound reset section to discontinue the normal supply of train governing current to such section and to supply train governing current to such section under the control of traffic conditions in advance of the train, and means operating when a westbound train occupies said eastbound reset section to discontinue the normal supply of train governing current to the rails of such section and to supply train governing current to the rails of such section under the control of traffic conditions in advance of the train.

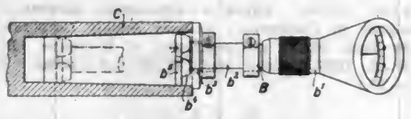
1,664,533. MACHINE FOR COMPARING PUNCHED CARDS. HERMANN ADALBERT WEINLICH, Berlin, Germany, assignor to The Tabulating Machine Company, Endicott, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 24, 1926. Serial No. 156,977, and in Germany June 10, 1926. 8 Claims. (Cl. 209—110.)

1. A record controlled machine including means for automatically comparing data designations on successive controlling records and means controlled by said first named means for sorting the records according to like and unlike data designations on successive records.



1,664,534. CIRCUIT CONTROLLER. FRANK DEWEY ZIMMERMAN and ELLIS MCKINLEY PYLE, Jerome, Pa. Filed May 26, 1926. Serial No. 111,813. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—59.)

1. A controller attachment, comprising a rotatable electric conductor contact disk, a control member having an arcuate surface engaging the periphery of said disk and adapted to be rotated thereby, an insulating segment in said control member adapted to engage the disk in one position of the control member, means for rotatably mounting the control member operable to normally hold said control member in engagement with the disk, and means for limiting the extent of rotation of said control member in either direction.

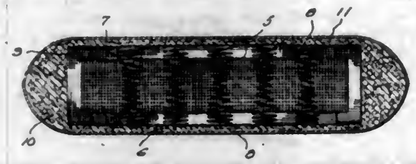
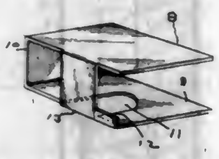
1,664,535. METHOD OF TESTING TAPER HOLES. MAX BARTHOLDY, Essen, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Jan. 4, 1926. Serial No. 79,222, and in Germany Sept. 5, 1925. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—178.)



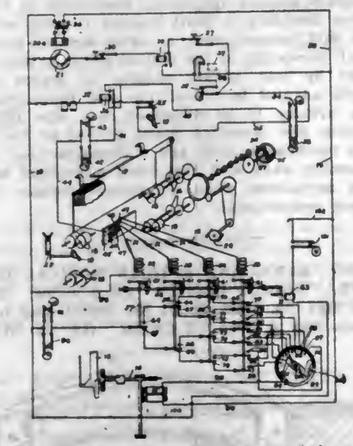
The method of testing a plurality of taper holes by means of adjustable hole gages adapted to indicate variations from measurements for which they are set and having adjustable stops for limiting the extent of their projection into a hole, which consists in setting one such gage in accordance with the diameter of a comparison piece at one transverse plane, and adjusting its stop to correspond with such plane, setting another such gage in accordance with the diameter of said comparison piece at another transverse plane and correspondingly adjusting its stop, and then successively introducing each of said gages into the taper holes to be tested and observing the comparative diameters indicated by said gages.

1,664,536. TRAFFIC LIGHT. NEWTON S. BEMENT, Ann Arbor, Mich. Filed Aug. 24, 1926. Serial No. 131,288. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—7.1.)



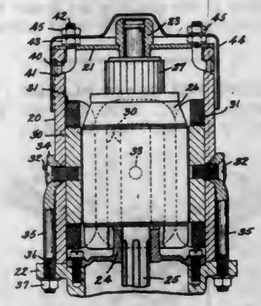
1. A light deflector for traffic lights comprising a series of comparatively thin metal plates having concave reflecting surfaces and convex nonreflecting surfaces, and flanges on the straight edges of each of said plates, substantially as set forth.

1,664,537. SLEEPING PILLOW. WILLIAM J. BLANKINSHIP, Valdosta, Ga. Filed Oct. 11, 1927. Serial No. 225,493. 2 Claims. (Cl. 5—342.)



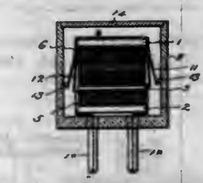
1. In a sleeping pillow of the character described, a core consisting of a pair of concentrically arranged cylinders of slightly flexible material, expansible coil springs located within the innermost cylinder and in longitudinally spaced relation, expansible springs arranged between these cylinders at the ends of the first mentioned spring and a covering for said core.

1,664,538. SAFETY DEVICE FOR BRAKE BEAMS. LLOYD J. BROWN, Evanston, Ill., assignor to E. Payson Smith, Springfield, Ill. Filed Apr. 7, 1925. Serial No. 21,827. 3 Claims. (Cl. 85—5.)



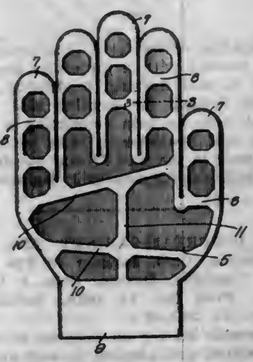
1. A blank for a safety device for brake beams comprising a flat plate body having a recess extending inwardly from one side edge, and two flanges of different length projecting beyond the body line from the same side edge in which the recess is formed.

1,664,539. BRUSH READING DEVICE FOR COMBINATIONAL HOLE RECORDS. JAMES W. BRYCE, Bloomfield, N. J., assignor to The Tabulating Machine Company, Endicott, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 11, 1924. Serial No. 719,453. 22 Claims. (Cl. 235—92.)



8. In a combinational index point record controlled machine adapted to operate concurrently upon a plurality of character designating record fields, analyzing means for simultaneously sensing a combinational index point designation while the records are in motion and means for converting said combinational reading into a time differential equivalent.

1,664,540. DYNAMO FRAME. WILLIAM A. CHRYST, Dayton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Delco-Remy Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 27, 1925. Serial No. 52,927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 172—36.)



1. A dynamo frame comprising, in combination, a field shell, pole pieces, an end frame adapted to abut the end of the field frame, bolts having threaded shanks extending through the end frame, and located along the exterior of the field shell, common means for securing to the exterior of the shell a portion of the bolt and to the interior of the shell a pole piece, and nuts cooperating with the threaded shanks of the bolts for clamping the end frame to the shell.

1,664,541. TUNED TRANSFORMER. GEORGE H. COOPER, Hartford, Conn. Filed Aug. 3, 1927. Serial No. 210,354. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—356.)

1. The method of producing a tuned transformer which consists in winding primary and secondary coils of predetermined definite numbers of turns upon a spool of insulation and tuning the same by folding a thin narrow strip or strips of iron over the end and down the sides of said spool.

1,664,542. GLOVE PROTECTOR. JAMES B. DOUGLASS, Harvey, Iowa. Filed May 12, 1925. Serial No. 29,755. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—161.)

1. A glove protector, of elastic material and integral throughout, comprising a palm portion to cover the palm of the glove, a wrist portion and finger stall portions to cover the front and sides of the respective finger stalls of the glove, a plurality of spaced strip portions connecting the opposite sides of each finger stall portion, beyond the base of said portion, and a strip portion connecting the opposite sides of the palm portion inwardly of the bases of the finger stall portions and spaced forwardly from the wrist portion.

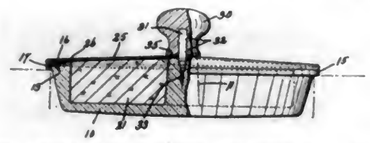
1,664,543. JOINT FOR GLASS PLATES. LEA EASTERMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Oct. 12, 1926. Serial No. 141,073. 5 Claims. (Cl. 189—78.)

1. A joint fastening device for glass window plates in abutting relation, comprising a pair of opposed metallic members adapted to be disposed respectively at the inner and outer sides of the glass plates, resilient cushioning pads disposed in recesses in the opposing surfaces of said metallic members, said pads being adapted to bear against the surfaces of the glass plates, a transparent glass cover plate overlying the outer metallic member, and clamping means for imposing a clamping pressure between said metallic member, said clamping means holding the glass cover plate in position free from clamping pressure.



1,664,544. SIGHTING DEVICE. EDWARD A. EVERETT, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 18, 1926. Serial No. 82,156. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—14.)

1. In a sighting device for a light projector, the combination, a housing with a projecting lens, a source of illumination in said housing, a sighting device in the wall of said housing for locating said source in the axis of said lens, an arm supporting a sighting tube for aligning said projector, a stem carrying said arm and a receptacle in the wall of said housing off-set from the axis of said lens for detachably supporting said stem.

1,664,545. ICE-CREAM-CABINET LID. HARVEY D. GEYER, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Inland Manufacturing Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 15, 1926. Serial No. 154,910. 3 Claims. (Cl. 220—9.)

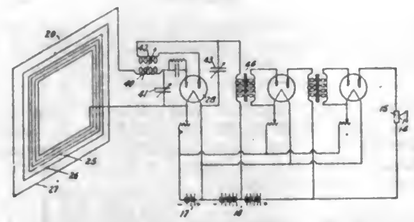
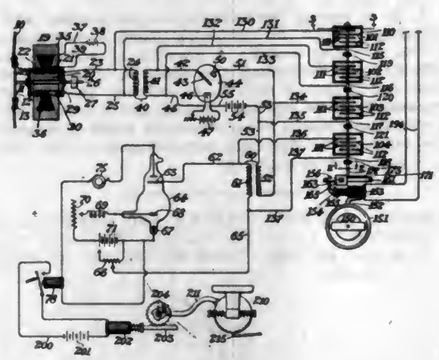
1,664,546. VENDING MACHINE. ANSEL P. GILBERTSON, Wausau, Wis. Filed Mar. 2, 1925. Serial No. 12,680. 4 Claims. (Cl. 312—84.)



1. In a vending machine of the class described the combination of a casing including a body providing a compartment therein and a closure member connected to said body for closing said compartment, said body including a rear wall and a bracket plate extending across the forward part of said compartment adjacent said closure member, dispensing mechanism in the compartment including a shaft bearing in said rear wall and in said bracket plate, a clutch member carried by the shaft forwardly of the bracket plate, a wall carried inwardly by said closure member in spaced relation therewith adapted to extend into said compartment for guiding articles to be dispensed onto said dispensing mechanism, and operating means carried by the closure member including a shaft and a clutch member adapted to releasably mesh with the clutch member of said dispensing mechanism when the closure member is shut over said compartment.

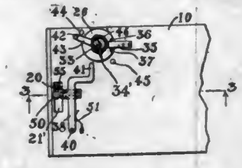
1,664,547. BANJO AND SIMILAR MUSICAL INSTRUMENT. NORTON GREENOP, Leigh-on-Sea, England. Filed Mar. 23, 1926, Serial No. 96,801, and in Great Britain May 4, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 84—271.)



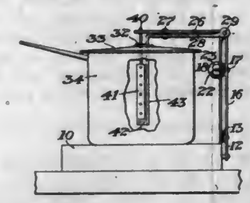
1. In a banjo, an outer wooden hoop, a metal resonator plate within said hoop and comprising a central resonating portion and an upstanding wall having an offset flange secured to said wooden hoop, a vellum carrying ring located within the resonator plate and having oppositely offset flanges, elements for spacing one of said flanges of the vellum carrying ring from the resonator plate, a vellum straining ring surrounding the vellum carrying ring, and bolts engaging said vellum straining ring and passing through the resonator plate thereby to press said vellum mounted on said vellum straining ring against the vellum carrying ring and pressing the latter against said spacing elements.

1,664,548. RADIO APPARATUS. DAVID GRIMES, Grasmere, N. Y. Filed May 27, 1922. Serial No. 564,227. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—33.)

1. In a radio apparatus, a loop antenna comprising a plurality of substantially parallel turns of wire unequally spaced.



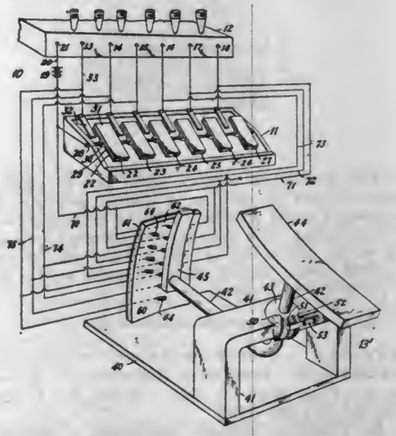
1,664,549. SYSTEM OF CONTROL BY COMPRESSIONAL WAVES. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed June 7, 1917, Serial No. 173,332. Renewed Oct. 28, 1925. 41 Claims. (Cl. 114—21.)



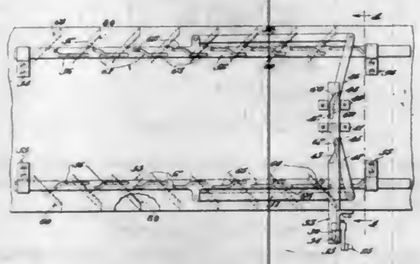
1. A system for the distant control of a movable body, comprising receiving means tuned to respond selectively to radiant oscillations, in combination with means automatically operative to vary the tuning of said receiving means in response to a variation in the direction of movement of said movable body.

1,664,550. SHUTTER-CONTROL MECHANISM. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Jan. 21, 1921. Serial No. 438,865. 2 Claims. (Cl. 95—31.)

1. In a camera, the combination of a shutter, a pivoted lever for operating said shutter, a pivoted locking arm having its free end movable into the path of movement into the shutter lever for effectively preventing the operation of said shutter lever, a detent to hold the locking lever inoperative, said detent having an extension, a cam lug carried by the shutter lever for engaging the extension of the detent during the operation of the shutter lever thereby releasing the locking lever, an oscillatory feeding mechanism for light sensitive material, a trip member arranged to be operated by said feeding mechanism for moving the locking lever into unlocking position, and a yielding element for retaining the locking lever in locked position.

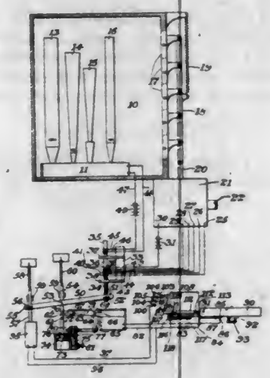


1,664,551. THERMOSTAT CONTROL FOR COOKING UTENSILS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Dec. 19, 1923. Serial No. 681,544. 5 Claims. (Cl. 236—20.)



1. In a cooking utensil, the combination of a vessel, an element positioned therein responsive to variations in temperature, a source of heat spaced from the vessel, a plurality of movable vanes each including a layer formed of heat insulating material interposed between the vessel and the heat source to control the temperature of the vessel between predetermined temperature limits, and means operatively interconnecting said element and said vanes.

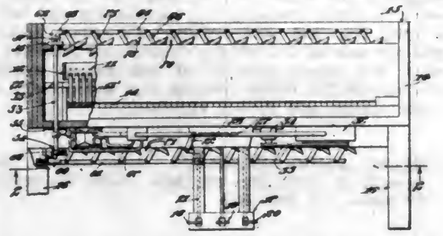
1,664,552. PEDAL CONTROL FOR PIPE ORGANS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Aug. 21, 1924. Serial No. 733,258. 7 Claims. (Cl. 84—343.)



5. A control mechanism for musical instruments comprising a terminal bank having fixed contacts arranged in rows, a movable contact, a pedal for actuating said movable contact in one direction to select a desired row and in a different direction to select desired fixed contacts in the selected row.

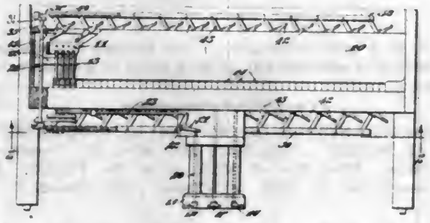
1,664,553. SUCCESSIVELY-OPERATED TONE MODULATOR. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Aug. 12, 1925. Serial No. 49,823. 12 Claims. (Cl. 84—182.)

10. A modulating system for a pianoforte, comprising a plurality of resonating chambers, a plurality of sound wave reflectors for each of said chambers for variably controlling the volume of sound emitted from the respective chamber independently of the other chambers, a tone modulating pedal, and means including a pin and slot connection operatively interconnecting said pedal with said sound wave reflectors for variably positioning the same.



1,664,554. PIPE ORGAN FOR PRODUCING A PIANO EFFECT. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Aug. 17, 1925. Serial No. 50,688. 8 Claims. (Cl. 84—346.)

8. The combination with an organ key, an organ swell chamber having an opening, a shutter normally closing said opening and a plurality of sound producing elements positioned within said chamber and actuated by said key, of a motor for actuating the shutter, and an inertia controlled device variably operative under control of said key for controlling said motor.



1,664,555. POWER-OPERATED TONE-CONTROL MECHANISM. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Sept. 2, 1925. Serial No. 54,078. 8 Claims. (Cl. 84—182.)

5. In a musical stringed instrument a plurality of strings tuned to the notes of the musical scale, a sounding board adjacent said strings, a substantially sound proof casing having metal lining and surrounding said board and said strings and forming two enclosed resonating chambers, a plurality of centrally pivoted metal lined reflecting devices for each of said resonating chambers for controlling the sound emitted therefrom, a pneumatically operated two-way bellows for selectively rotating said reflectors in either direction, a pneumatic pump, and a control valve interposed between the pump and the bellows for selectively controlling the movement of the reflectors.

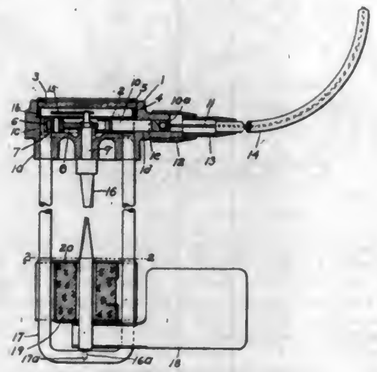
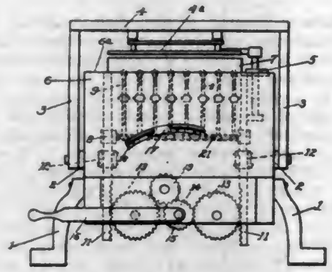
1,664,556. MODULATING REFLECTORS FOR CONTROLLING THE RATE OF CHANGE OF SOUND EMISSION. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, Jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Jan. 28, 1926. Serial No. 84,274. 9 Claims. (Cl. 84—182.)



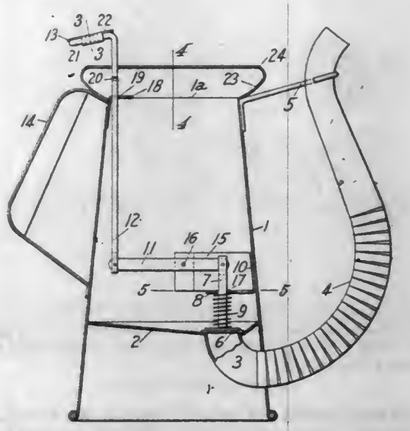
8. In a musical instrument, the combination with a vibratory element for producing damped compressional waves, a casing therefor, a plurality of movable sound reflectors for controlling the emission of sound therefrom and formed to restrict the emission of sound when the reflectors are partially opened, and a variable speed mechanism arranged to accelerate the speed of opening of the reflectors substantially proportionally to the extent of opening provided thereby.

1,664,557. AIR-PUMP STROKE AND PRESSURE INDICATOR. JAMES W. HANNAN, Coffeyville, Kans. Filed Dec. 16, 1926. Serial No. 155,316. 17 Claims. (Cl. 73—56.)



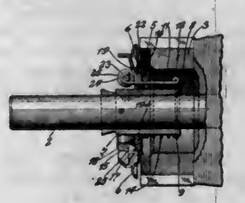
1. In combination with a cylinder having a piston therein, a gauge, means connecting the gauge with the cylinder for indicating pressures existing in the cylinder, and means operatively following the piston for cutting the gauge into operation at the limits of travel of the piston to determine air pressures existing in the cylinder with respect to the location of the piston in the cylinder.

1,664,558. LIQUID GAUGE. HERBERT HASTINGS, Brighton, N. Y. Filed Sept. 10, 1921. Serial No. 499,695. 21 Claims. (Cl. 73—82.)



1. In a liquid gauge, the combination of a float with means for guiding it, a rotatable member adapted to have its rotation controlled by the float and means other than the float adapted to be driven by the impact or movement of the liquid that supports the float for moving the rotatable member.

1,664,559. MOLDING MACHINE. EDWARD C. HOLMES, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed May 9, 1925. Serial No. 29,211. 3 Claims. (Cl. 22—14.)

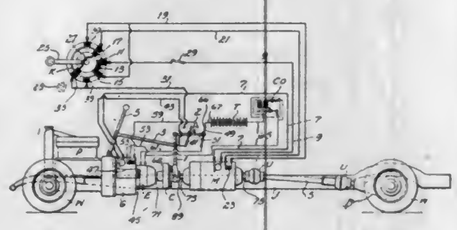


1. In combination with a molding machine, a movable top head element and a stationary bottom table element with apertures in the table element and a housing element outside the table element with means for reciprocatingly moving the housing element with relation to the table element, spirally fluted patterns rotatively mounted within the housing element, and a stationary element with projecting elements adapted to project within the flutes of the patterns, and means for moving the housing element, and the spirally fluted patterns adapted to form female impressions in a mold on the table top.

1,664,560. MEASURING CAN. ROBERT D. HUGHES, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Huffman Manufacturing Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 18, 1927. Serial No. 184,502. 7 Claims. (Cl. 221—16.)

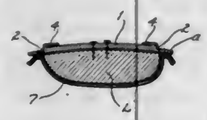
1. In a measuring can, a body portion having an open upper end and having an outlet near its lower end, and a guard rim extending outwardly about the entire circumference of the upper edge of said body portion and having its outer portion turned upwardly and inwardly.

1,664,561. SHORT-CIRCUITING MECHANISM. JOSEPH J. JANCA, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to The Emerson Electric Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Dec. 24, 1925. Serial No. 77,646. 10 Claims. (Cl. 172—279.)



1. A short circuiting mechanism comprising a contact member movable to make and break contact with commutator segments, an actuator for moving the contact member to contact with the commutator segments, a plurality of arms each pivoted at one end and having its other end free, and a roller connected to and movable with the free end of each of said arms and arranged to operate by centrifugal force to engage and move said actuator and thereby said contact member into contact with the commutator segments.

1,664,562. AUTOMOTIVE DRIVE. THORVALD JENSEN, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to The Winther Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 8, 1926. Serial No. 86,793. 3 Claims. (Cl. 290—16.)



1. A vehicle drive comprising a prime mover, driving wheels for the vehicle, a generator driven by the prime mover, a motor adapted to receive energy from the generator and drive the vehicle, an electrical connecting circuit between the motor and generator for transferring said energy, a direct mechanical connection between the prime mover and the driving wheels, a clutch interposed in said mechanical connection, and means for closing the electrical circuit and opening said clutch at one operation, said means being adapted to also open the electrical circuit and close the clutch at one operation and means for throwing a battery charging circuit into connection upon closing the clutch.

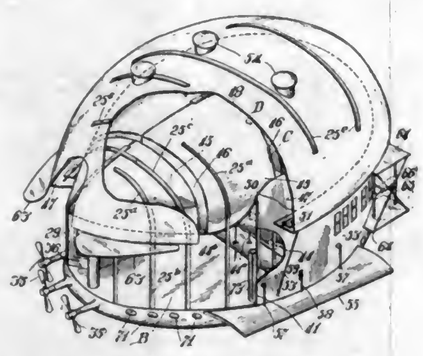
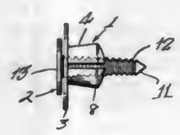
1,664,563. SHOE. RICHARD KENNETT, St. Louis, Mo., assignor of one-third to Seth Randall, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Nov. 8, 1926. Serial No. 147,027. 2 Claims. (Cl. 36—16.)



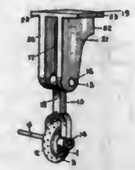
1. A shoe embodying an upper and a single sole, said sole having its margin channeled from one side of the breast to the other to form a channel leaf and sewing lip, and split from the heel part to the break of the ball portion, a metallic shank cemented into the sole between the layers thereof formed by the split, the margin of the upper and a welt thereover stitched to the sewing lip of the sole, the said channel leaf being cemented over the stitches, and a heel secured to the heel seat.

1,664,564. CULINARY STRAINER. ABE LIPNER, Indiana Harbor, Ind. Filed Apr. 21, 1927. Serial No. 185,402. 7 Claims. (Cl. 53—8.)



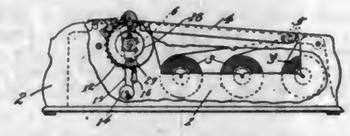
1. A strainer of the character described, consisting of a sheet metal ring made channel shape to receive and fit over the upper edge of a cooking vessel and extend completely about the same, a screen carried by the ring and extending completely over the opening within the same, and means within the channel of the ring and carried thereby for releasably connecting the same to the upper edge of the vessel on applying the ring thereto.

1,664,565. AIRSHIP. LAWRENCE W. MAMMEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 26, 1925. Serial No. 52,553. 29 Claims. (Cl. 244—6.)



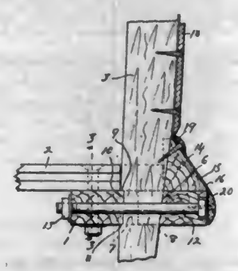
1. An air ship, comprising a main or hull portion provided with a deck, side walls and a ceiling or top for the deck, the walls being formed to provide an air passage from end to end of the ship, an offset or pocket formed in the ceiling intermediate of the ends of the passage to constitute a vacuum chamber.

1,664,566. FASTENER. WILLIAM MARSHALL, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Briggs Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Original application filed Aug. 25, 1924, Serial No. 734,127. Divided and this application filed June 7, 1926. Serial No. 114,335. 4 Claims. (Cl. 85—32.)



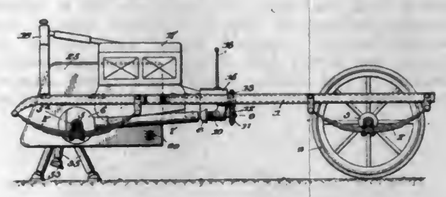
1. A fastener element of the class described formed of sheet metal and comprising a base having an opening therein, and a plurality of longitudinally extending prongs projecting from said base at the edges of said opening and having their end portions extending freely inwardly toward a common center, the thickness of said prongs being substantially the same throughout their length, said prongs being arcuate-shape in cross section and forming a hollow longitudinally split tube for insertion through an opening in a suitable support, said tube having an annular hollow bulging portion at its outer end, the area of the base and the cross sectional area of said bulging portion being larger than the cross-sectional area of the tube at a point between said base and bulging portion whereby said base and bulging portion will retain said element in place when inserted for use in an opening in a support, said bulging portion being contractable so that the cross-sectional area thereof when contracted is substantially equal to the normal cross-sectional area of said tube at the intermediate point aforesaid thereof to permit the passage of said bulging portion through an opening of a size substantially equal in area to the normal cross-sectional area of said intermediate portion, said bulging portion being formed of resilient material so that said bulging portion will automatically expand to normal position after passing through such opening and will engage over an edge of the opening to prevent accidental withdrawal of said element from said opening.

1,664,567. POWER-TRANSMITTING DEVICE. CHARLES MCPHERSON, Montreal, Quebec, Canada, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Friction Power Corporation Limited, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Apr. 14, 1924. Serial No. 706,617. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—26.)



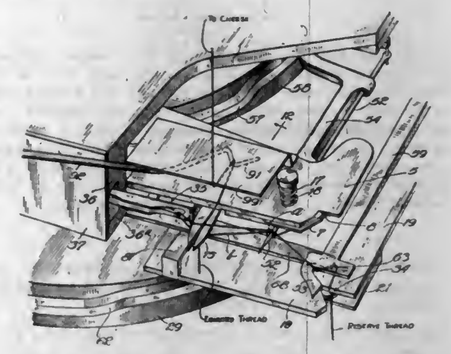
In power transmission for train lighting purposes, a truck bracket formed with a base and parallel hangers therefrom constituting a pivot bearing therebetween and closed in at the inner ends to form a housing and an abutment for a spring, a rocker arm having a central pivot orifice journalled in said pivot bearing, a loose spring engaging the inner end of said arm and said abutment and enclosed by said housing, a friction roller and transmission shaft therefrom journalled at the outer end of said rocker arm, a car axle and a friction disk fixedly mounted on said axle and driving said friction roller.

1,664,568. MANIFOLDING MACHINE. ALBERT W. METZNER, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to John Q. Sherman, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Feb. 18, 1924. Serial No. 693,484. 6 Claims. (Cl. 271—2.4.)



1. In a manifolding machine, a paper feeding device having a rotating member, a power means, a pawl and ratchet drive intermediate the power means and the rotating member and means adapted to hold the pawl out of engagement during desired portions of a single operation of the power means, said pawl holding means comprising a member, having an arc shaped flange concentric with the movement of the pawl and the pawl having an extension to be engaged by said flange, said flange having an edge presenting pawl engaging zones of different length dependent upon the position of said member.

1,664,569. BUS-BODY CONSTRUCTION. NUGENT MILNER, Evansville, Ind., assignor to Graham Brothers, Evansville, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,739. 4 Claims. (Cl. 296—29.)

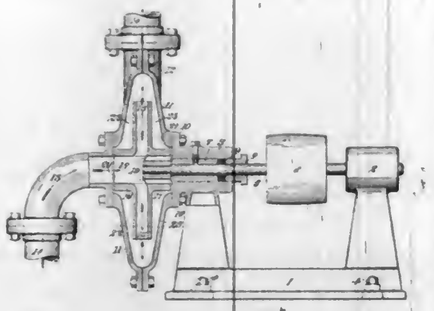


1. In a vehicle body, a sill having cooperating sections, a bar secured to one section and cooperating therewith to form a guard rail, and flooring secured to the other section and constituting an abutment for the bar.

1,664,570. PROPELLING MECHANISM FOR VEHICLES. LOUIS PERILLI, Portsmouth, N. H. Filed Sept. 15, 1923, Serial No. 662,850. Renewed July 26, 1927. 11 Claims. (Cl. 180—8.)

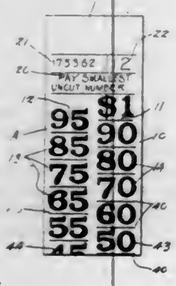
1. The combination with a vehicle, of means for propelling the same, comprising a group of three steppers at each side of the vehicle, means for oscillating the same, and means for so shifting each stepper as it oscillates that the end thereof maintains a substantially constant distance from the vehicle frame during the working stroke, said means being constructed so as to hold two of each group of steppers in contact with the ground at the start and finish of each step.

1,664,571. METHOD OF AND MEANS FOR TYING WEAVERS' KNOTS. BURT A. PETERSON, Rockford, Ill., assignor to Edgar S. Nethercut, Evanston, Ill. Filed Nov. 18, 1921, Serial No. 516,010. Renewed Feb. 14, 1927. 52 Claims. (Cl. 289—3.)



1. A knot-tying mechanism comprising, in combination, means for holding and guiding a thread, a reciprocatory device operable into engagement with said thread to form a loop therein, a member movable from a position at one side of the plane of movement of said device into engagement with said loop to carry the strands thereof to a position at the opposite side of the plane of movement of said device, a second member movable into engagement with one of the strands of said loop to position it in crossed relation with reference to the other strand, said device being operable to engage said crossed strand and draw it through said loop to form a second loop, means for inserting a second thread through said second loop, and means for drawing the second loop together with said inserted thread through the first loop.

1,664,572. CENTRIFUGAL PUMP. OSCAR POULSEN, Alameda, Calif. Filed May 10, 1920, Serial No. 380,256. Renewed Mar. 5, 1927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—112.)



1. A centrifugal pump comprising in combination a casing, consisting of two sections, substantially alike and secured together, and having central annular portions, a suction pipe provided with a flange secured to the an-nular portion of one of said sections and a bearing on the side opposite said suction pipe secured to the annular portion of the other of said sections, an impeller centrally located within said sections, said impeller being spaced from the casing sections to provide a variable pressure chamber on each side of said impeller, said impeller having a uniform shaped hub on each side thereof, and having their opposite extremities positioned internal to said annular portions with a light clearance therebetween, one of said hubs abutting said flange on said suction pipe and the other having longitudinal channels therebetween abutting the bearing, the width between the hubs being less than the width between the suction pipe flange and bearing, said flange, hubs and bearing, cooperating with said annular portions to form a chamber on each side of said hubs of substantially the same diameter, surrounding the entire diameter of said hubs and adapted to connect directly at one time one of said variable pressure chambers with the suction pipe.

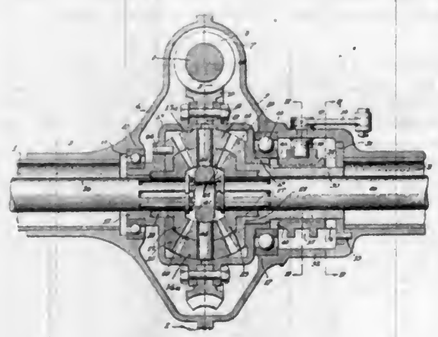
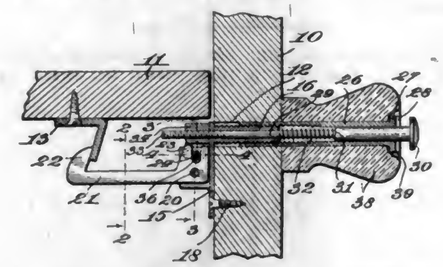
1,664,573. RESTAURANT CHECK. CHARLES T. RASCHICK, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Oct. 6, 1922. Serial No. 592,725. 1 Claim. (Cl. 283—60.)



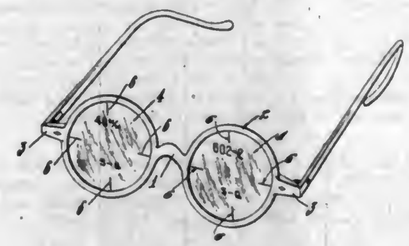
A check having a plurality of numerals arranged in adjacent columns thereon and adapted to be transversely severed to indicate the amount payable at the line of severance thereof, said numerals being arranged in said columns in alternate arithmetical progression.

1,664,574. DISPENSING PUMP. CHARLES SPAETH, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Marvel Equipment Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 28, 1924. Serial No. 695,640. 5 Claims. (Cl. 221—67.



1. A liquid dispensing device comprising a discharge nozzle and a display tube for the liquid being dispensed, said nozzle having upwardly directed inlet ports of restricted area for said tube to jet a fine stream of oil upwardly into said tube, and said tube having outlet ports of capillary size with respect to said liquid.

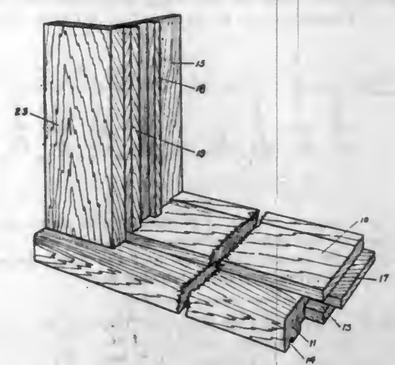
1,664,575. TRANSMISSION MECHANISM. CHARLES F. STAPLES, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, of one-half to Lloyd M. Field, Alameda, Calif., and one-half to Arthur A. Wiedemaier, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 29, 1925. Serial No. 33,610. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—99.)



1. In a differential mechanism, a driven casing, inner differential gears and pinions arranged in said casing and adapted to be driven from said casing, shafts adapted to be driven by said differential gears and pinions, a gear reduction for said differential mechanism interposed between said driven casing and said inner differential gears and pinions for translating motion from said casing to said inner differential gears and pinions, said gear reduction including outer differential gears and pinions in said casing about said inner differential gears and pinions, and a spider having arms passed through said pinions for carrying the same, one of said outer differential gears being constantly fixed to said casing and meshed with said outer pinions; and means adapted for controlling the other of said outer differential gears to have a reduction of speed from said differential casing to said shafts.

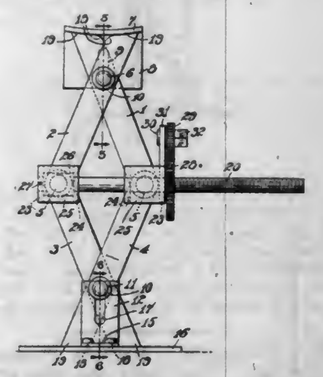
1,664,576. PUSH CATCH FOR DOORS. THOMAS F. STUART and HENRY A. MOORE, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed July 16, 1926. Serial No. 122,820. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—127.)

1. A door latch comprising a tubular housing that is adjustable in length, a knob removably mounted on the outer portion of said tubular housing, a plate at the inner end of said housing, which plate is adapted to be secured to the door to which the latch is applied, a latching hook pivotally mounted on said plate, a spring-held push rod passing through the tubular housing, a member adjustably mounted on the inner end of said push rod and a pin and slot connection between said adjustable member and the inner end of said latching hook.



1,664,577. OPHTHALMIC MOUNTING. JAMES A. SWEENEY, Providence, R. I., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Bausch and Lomb Optical Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 3, 1923. Serial No. 678,086. 9 Claims. (Cl. 33—200.)

1. A fitting frame comprising two lens-holding rims, a bridge connecting the rims, and lenses in the rims, the center of each lens being transparent to permit unobstructed vision therethrough to the eyes of the patient being fitted, there being an indicator for indicating the centers of the rims.



1,664,578. SASH FRAME. CHARLES L. THORNBERRY, Lincoln, Nebr. Filed Mar. 16, 1926. Serial No. 95,090. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—11.)

A window frame including a pair of pulley stiles and a sill, said pulley stiles being provided with grooves for the reception of sash stops, said sill having an inner and an outer member, a tongue projecting inwardly from the top edge of the outer of said two members, the inner of said two members being provided with a groove for receiving said tongue, and tenons projecting laterally from the inner only of said two members, said pulley stiles being provided with transverse grooves for receiving said tenons.

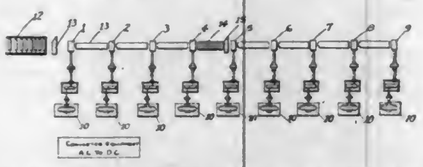
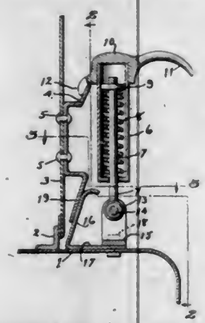
1,664,579. LIFTING JACK. B WICKLIFFE TWYMAN, Marysville, Mich. Filed June 8, 1925. Serial No. 35,694. 1 Claim. (Cl. 254—126.)



In a lifting jack the combination with a flat base plate having a vertically disposed lug thereon, of a pair of crossed arms having their lower ends pivotally connected at their crossing point and having their lower ends rounded and bearing on said base plate, said vertically extending lug preventing said arms from tilting from the vertical, a pair of upper crossed arms pivotally connected at their crossing point and having their upper ends rounded and pivoted at their lower ends to the upper ends of the lower crossed arms, a collapsing and expanding screw connected at the pivotal juncture of one of each pair of arms and having a threaded connection at the pivotal juncture of the opposite arms, a saddle block resting upon the free ends of the upper crossed arms and having a down turned side member provided with connecting means for connecting the same with the crossed arms while permitting the block to move vertically.

1,664,580. ROLLING METAL STRIPS. JOHN B. TYTUS, Middletown, Ohio, assignor to The American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 11, 1926. Serial No. 115,385. 1 Claim. (Cl. 80—60.)



A strip rolling process which consists in passing a piece of metal through a series of stands of rolls arranged as a continuous mill so as to produce long, single thickness strips of great width, which consists in forming a piece of convex cross section, and in giving an active pass to the strip, in the finishing stands at least, which reduces the center of the piece in each stand more than the edges, said active pass in said finishing stands at least applied so as to engage a restricted portion of the metal with a minimum of flexibility, such as is applied when small diameter rolls engage the piece, and the small diameter rolls are backed up by large diameter rolls.

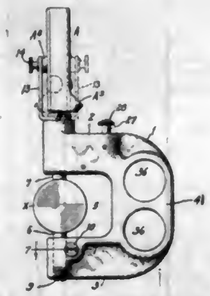
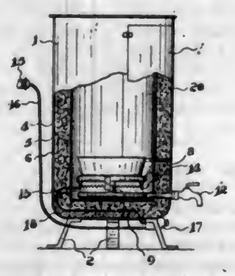
1,664,581. HOOD CLAMP FOR AUTOMOBILES. Louis C. VANDERLIP, Elkhart, Ind. Filed Dec. 11, 1926. Serial No. 154,055. 14 Claims. (Cl. 292—114.)



1. In an automobile hood-clamp, the combination with a hood of a combined keeper and cam element rigidly secured to the hood exterior, a spring-actuated hold-down clamp positioned exteriorly of the hood and connected with said keeper, and a stationary cam element arranged exteriorly of the hood and adapted to coact with the cam section of said keeper for laterally projecting the hood.

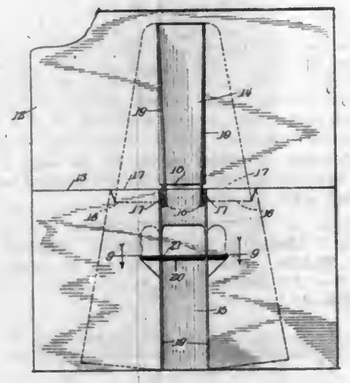
1,664,582. FASTENER. JINDŘICH WALDES, Prague, Czechoslovakia. Filed Sept. 20, 1924, Serial No. 738,738, and in Germany Mar. 6, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 24—95.)

1. In combination with a carrying material a fastener of the type described, comprising a hood element bearing against one face of said material and having a pin-admitting aperture and a hollow interior, comprising arched top and arched sides merging into a smooth surface having a gently changing curvature throughout and being free from abrupt changes in curvature, a pin member having a head bearing against the other face of said material, and having a straight pin portion of materially smaller cross-section at its level nearest the pin-admitting aperture than that of said aperture, and having a bent portion formed into a coil within the hood, the parts of said pin located within the hood being smoothly coiled out of the axial line of the pin in opposite direction therefrom, said coil operating as a fixed, locked tension control agent for the carrying material, the lower faces of said agent fitting with snug surface-engagement against the lower faces of the arched sides of the hood interior at opposite sides of the axial line of the pin while the upper face of said agent fits with snug surface engagement against the arched top of the hood interior, said coil making rigid the hood structure by making continuous uninterrupted contact between the outer surface of the coil and the inner surface of the hood, said continuous contact beginning from a point to one side of the pin axis, lower than the wide portion of the side arch of the interiorly and extending continuously in contact with the inner surface of the hood, to a point lower than such wide portion of the side arch of the hood interior as faces an opposed part of the pin axis, the coil being of such character as results from initially introducing a relatively long pin having its point initially bent to one side, through the carrying material, into cotnact with the arched top of the hood interior and then applyng pressure between the pin head and the hood until the carrying material is tightly clamped therebetween.



1,664,583. SNAP GAUGE. ERNEST O. WHEELOCK, Rockford, Ill. Filed May 15, 1925. Serial No. 30,425. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—147.)

1. A snap gauge having, in combination, a body provided with a contact, a contact plunger slidably mounted in said body, a sleeve having a screw-thread connection with the body, the contact plunger extending into said sleeve, a coiled expansive spring within said sleeve and bearing against said contact plunger to move it toward said contact, a testometer having an externally tapered sleeve which fits within a correspondingly tapered opening in the sleeve in alinement with the contact plunger, said testometer comprising a contact plunger mounted in the second-mentioned sleeve and extending into position for engagement by the first contact plunger, and an angular bracket one arm of which has an opening through which the first-mentioned sleeve extends, said sleeve having a flange overlying said bracket arm whereby the bracket may be clamped to the gauge body by means of the first-mentioned sleeve, said testometer being detachably secured to the other arm of said bracket.



1,664,584. ELECTRIC COOKING AND HEATING APPARATUS. JOHN H. WILLIAMS, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 6, 1925, Serial No. 20,988, and in Canada Jan. 5, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—39.)

2. In an electric stove, a chamber having outer and inner walls suitably spaced and lined and a cover closing in the top, a coil of pipe having a liquid receiving end outside the chamber on one side and a faucet end beyond the other side, a plurality of clamps encircling the coil and having screw fasteners, and a resistance wire held in said clamps adjacent to said coil and supported thereby.

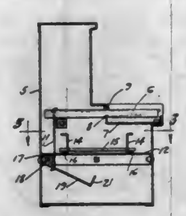
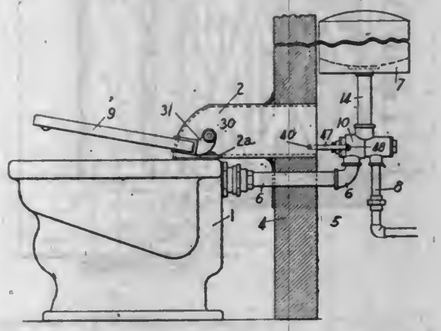
1,664,585. FOLDING DISPLAY CARD. HENRY ZIEMMERMAN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Chicago Cardboard Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 4, 1925. Serial No. 27,737. 8 Claims. (Cl. 40—150.)



1. The combination of a folding display card and an easel therefor including a section foldable doubly upon itself when in supporting position to compensate for and to permit the forward folding and unfolding of the card.

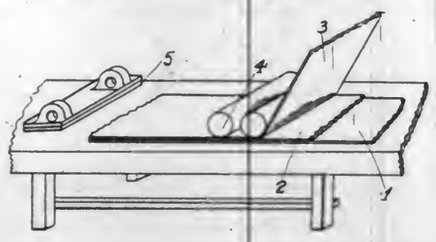
1,664,586. SWITCHING APPARATUS. LLEWELLYN T. BARNES, Hempstead, N. Y., assignor to The Gem Engineering Corporation, Hempstead, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 5, 1925. Serial No. 73,462. 7 Claims. (Cl. 200—90.)



1. In a switching apparatus, a master control comprising a switch unit, adapted to operate similar units, having a pair of pivotally mounted mercury tube switches angularly disposed in relation to each other, so that one is closed, while the other is open, electrical means connected to the said closed switch to reverse the position of the said switches, and mechanical means to return the said switches to their original position to cause them to be opened and closed alternately.

1,664,587. PIANO. CHARLES E. BLALACK and GEORGE H. ECKSTEIN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 12, 1925. Serial No. 14,967. 8 Claims. (Cl. 84—404.)

1. In a toy piano, the combination of a case having key mounting, a row of keys pivotally disposed therein and extending into the case, said case having a music bar support disposed therein, a row of music bars mounted on said support, a shaft extending along and mounted upon said support, a row of hammers pivotally mounted on said shaft, each hammer being formed of sheet metal having lateral bearing ears at one end and an upturned head at the other, said keys and said hammer having aligned holes, link rods loosely extending through said holes and having laterally directed locking ends, said keys, music bars and hammers being arranged in a tier with the row of music bars in the center.



1,664,588. FLUSHING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS FOR CLOSETS. HENRY C. BOWLUS, Springfield, Ohio, assignor to Arthur D. Hosterman, Springfield, Ohio. Filed May 7, 1925. Serial No. 28,575. 11 Claims. (Cl. 4—21.)

1. In a device of the character described, a bowl, a flush pipe connected with said bowl, valve mechanism to control the flow of water through said flush pipe, a ventilating conduit mounted at the top of said bowl in open communication therewith and having its rear end connected with an outlet, a shaft rotatably mounted in the walls of said conduit and extending beyond said walls, an arm connected with said shaft, an actuating rod arranged within said conduit, connected at one end with said arm and connected at its other end with said valve mechanism, a spring acting on said rod to move the same in one direction, a seat, and hinge members for said sent mounted on the respective ends of said shaft for rotary movement with relation thereto, said hinge members and said ends of said shaft having cooperating parts to cause said seat to be partially elevated by the action of said spring and to cause said actuating rod to be moved against the tension of said spring by the movement of said seat in one direction but permit said seat to be moved in the other direction independently of said shaft.

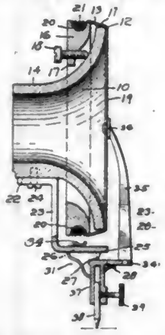
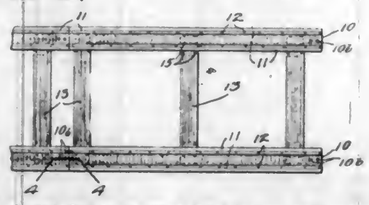
1,664,589. FLOOR COVERING. NEIL L. CAMPBELL, Glendale, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Carthage Mills Incorporated, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 29, 1926. Serial No. 98,144. 8 Claims. (Cl. 154—49.)

1. A floor covering comprising a sheet of material as a base, a coat of paint thereon having the quality of being hard when dry, and a textile material embedded into the paint, with none of said paint penetrating to the upper surface thereof.



1,664,590. CIRCUIT CAMERA. ARTHUR V. CASSAL, Rochester, N. Y. Filed July 24, 1923. Serial No. 653,459. 59 Claims. (Cl. 95—15.)

1. A camera having a box, a compartment partitioned off at one rear corner of the box, a compartment partitioned off at another rear corner of the box with a narrow opening between them through which the light can pass from the lens to the film, a mirror mounted to cover said opening and being mounted at an angle to reflect the image from the lens to a vertical opening in one of the vertical sides of the camera.



1,664,591. SOUND BOX FOR SOUND-REPRODUCING MACHINES. AUGUSTUS CLOT, West New York, N. J. Filed May 3, 1927. Serial No. 188,496. 4 Claims. (Cl. 274—35.)

4. A sound box for sound reproducing machines comprising, a shell embodying a tube which flares outwardly, a flexible fibrous diaphragm arranged at the outer large end of the shell and passed over its periphery and extending to the rear of the same, a tension ring surrounding the reduced portion of the shell and disposed rearwardly of the large end and having a groove upon its periphery, means for binding the edge of the diaphragm within the groove of said ring, adjusting screws carried by the ring and engaging the rear side of the large end of the shell, a bracket carried by the shell, a stylus pivoted upon the bracket, and a lever connected with the stylus and with the diaphragm.

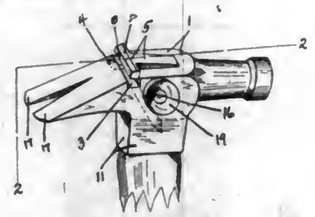
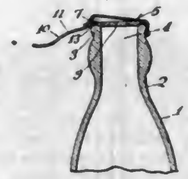
1,664,592. VEHICLE SUPPORTING DEVICE FOR SOFT ROADS. RALPH M. COOLEY, St. Paul, Minn. Filed May 16, 1927. Serial No. 191,645. 10 Claims. (Cl. 238—14.)



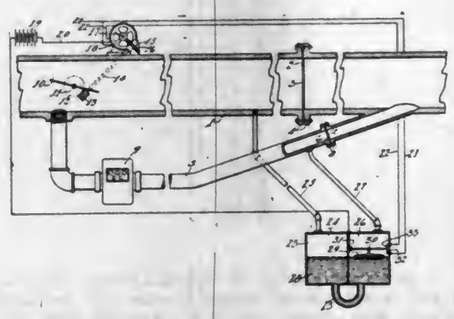
1. A device for supporting vehicles on soft roads comprising a pair of trough-shaped members of sheet material, rigid members secured to said trough-shaped members at each edge thereof and extending longitudinally thereof, and spaced transverse members connecting said trough-shaped members and holding the same in parallel relation.

1,664,593. OIL-TUBE CAP. JAMES W. COFFMAN, Webb City, Okla. Filed Feb. 7, 1927. Serial No. 166,457. 2 Claims. (Cl. 166—16.)



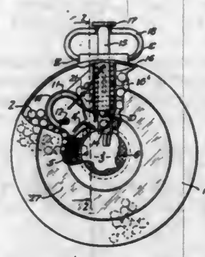
1. A device of the class described comprising a cap, a gasket in the cap, an eye on the cap, a cable engaged with the eye, an oil well tube engaging apparatus, a pulley mounted in the apparatus, said cable being trained over said pulley.

1,664,594. CLAW HAMMER. CHARLES D. CUMMINGS, Tully, N. Y. Filed Apr. 9, 1927. Serial No. 182,888. 5 Claims. (Cl. 7—8.)



2. In a device of the class described, a hammer head, a recess in the top of said head, a movable member in said recess pivotally mounted in one end thereof and movable to a vertical position with respect to said recess, and a slot in the other end of said recess adapted to receive the head end of a nail under said movable member.

1,664,595. CRIMPED-CAP OPENER. FRANK L. DARLING, Long Beach, Calif. Filed July 16, 1926. Serial No. 122,909. 12 Claims. (Cl. 215—46.)

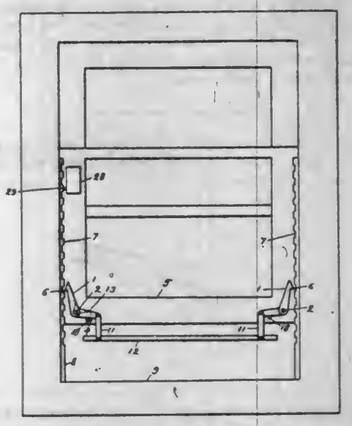


1. A crimp cap opener comprising in combination a bottle, a cap having a crimped flange, an opener formed of strip material having a reverse bend, the two sides of the strip engaging underneath the crimp of the cap at a considerable distance apart circumferentially of the bottle neck and the crimp to bend the flange outwardly a considerable distance circumferentially.

1,664,596. METHOD OF CONTROLLING THE FLOW OF FLUIDS IN CONNECTED CONDUITS AND DEVICE THEREFOR. JOHN C. DIEHL, Erie, Pa. Filed Jan. 4, 1924. Serial No. 684,313. 8 Claims. (Cl. 73—68.)

8. In a fluid flow controlling device, the combination of two conduits branching from a common source and having constrictions therein forming orifices of definite relation, and means automatically responsive to relative pressure changes at corresponding sides of the orifices to maintain an equal pressure and consequent definitely related flow through the orifices.

1,664,597. CIGAR LIGHTER. LESTER P. DITTEMORE, Topeka, Kans. Filed July 14, 1926. Serial No. 122,421. 6 Claims. (Cl. 67—7.)



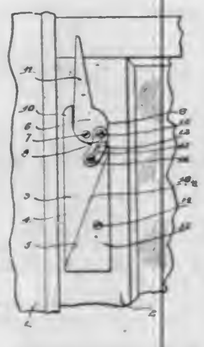
1. In a cigar lighter, a case functioning as a container for ignitible pellets, an ignition chamber concentrically positioned in said case, woven wire fabric covering one end of said chamber, a lid having an annular woven wire fabric concentrically positioned thereon and adapted to encompass the opposite side of said chamber, a plunger radially positioned in said case, means for feeding the pellets beneath the inner end of said plunger, ignition means for the pellet when driven within said ignition chamber.

1,664,598. PLASTIC HYDRATED LIME AND PROCESS OF MAKING IT. HIPPOLYT DITTLINGER, New Braunfels, Tex. Filed June 25, 1926. Serial No. 118,518. 10 Claims. (Cl. 23—186.)

9. As a new article of manufacture a shattered hydrate of lime of finish plasticity as freshly made into putty.

1,664,599. SAFETY DEVICE FOR WINDOWS. FRANK DZIERZENGA, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 28, 1927. Serial No. 171,571. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—25.)

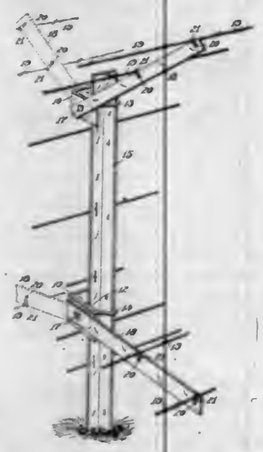
1. In a safety device for windows, the combination with catches pivotally connected with the window sash, of a bar, operating connections between said bar and said catches, strips with notches, attached to the sides of the window casing, said catches being adapted to engage said notches when said bar is raised.



1,664,600. AMYLACEOUS MOLDED PRODUCT AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. CARLETON ELLIS, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Ellis-Foster Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 13, 1926. Serial No. 108,987. 10 Claims. (Cl. 106—22.)

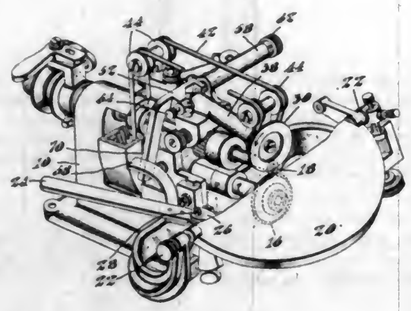
1. A thermoset molded product comprising cassava starch, sulphur and a filler.

1,664,601. CASSAVA-STARCH PLASTIC COMPOSITION AND METHOD OF MOLDING SAME. CARLETON ELLIS, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Ellis-Foster Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 27, 1926, Serial No. 112,177. Renewed July 14, 1927. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—55.)



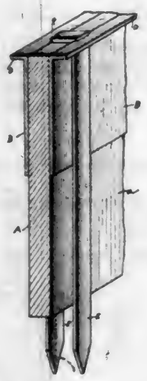
3. The process of making molded articles from a mixture of cassava starch, rosin, wood flour and water, which comprises hot-pressing such a mixture in a suitable mold and permitting the escape of steam during the pressing stage.

1,664,602. SASH HOLDER. DANIEL S. EVERETT, Jordan, N. Y. Filed Feb. 26, 1926. Serial No. 90,790. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—342.)



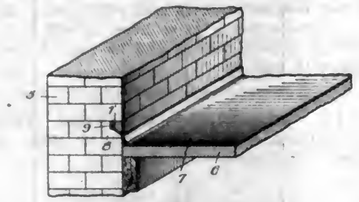
1. A sash holder comprising a wedge having two surfaces at angles to each other other than right angles, one of said surfaces being adapted to cooperate with a part to hold the sash in an adjusted position, a rocking member having a straight line surface for cooperating with the other surface of the wedge when the latter is in holding position and means for moving said wedge into engagement with the rocking member including a pivoted eccentric engaging said wedge.

1,664,603. FENCE GUARD. JAMES C. FARRINGTON, La Fayette, Ind. Filed Mar. 20, 1924. Serial No. 701,934. 2 Claims. (Cl. 256—11.)



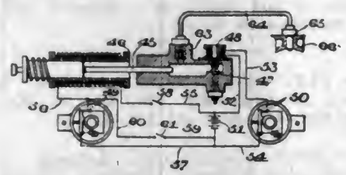
1. A fence guard comprising an L-shaped bracket, means for securing one leg of the bracket to the post with the legs of the bracket substantially at right angles to the post, and with the free leg of the bracket traversing the fence plane, and a wire carrying arm clamped to said free leg.

1,664,604. MACHINE FOR TRIMMING RUBBER HEELS. SIDNEY J. FINN, Beverly, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 3, 1926. Serial No. 85,718. 14 Claims. (Cl. 104—63.)



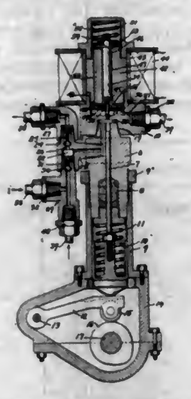
5. A machine for trimming the overflow from molded rubber articles comprising rotary shearing cutters and means for driving them, a work-engaging table relatively to which an article of work may be fed in cooperative relation to said cutters, a rotary disk the marginal portion of which is in lapped relation to one of the said cutters and is provided with a flat work-engaging face, and means for driving said disk to feed an article of work held manually against said flat face.

1,664,605. EXPANSION-JOINT INSTALLER. ALBERT C. FISCHER, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 16, 1925. Serial No. 44,137. 8 Claims. (Cl. 94—51.)



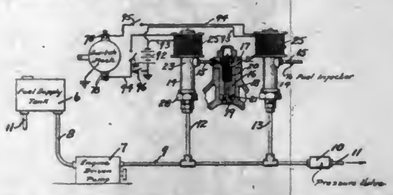
1. An installing device for expansion joints, comprising a pair of metal plates adapted to enter into embracing relation with opposed sides of an expansion joint, said plates having outwardly presented flanges, openings in the flanges, and stakes separable from the plates adapted to engage said openings, and extend downwardly over the sides of the joint for holding the plates to the joint and vertically support the joint prior to the formation of the concrete sections between which the joint is to be installed.

1,664,606. FLASHING FOR ROOFS OR THE LIKE. ALBERT C. FISCHER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 24, 1927. Serial No. 163,052. 9 Claims. (Cl. 108—26.)



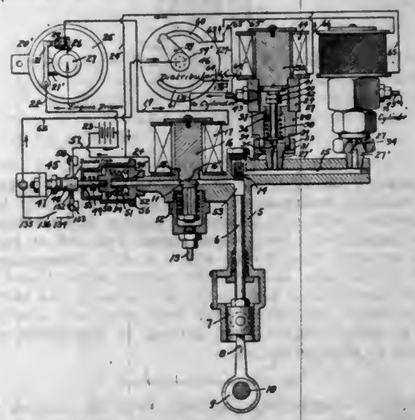
1. A flashing of the class described, comprising separable companion members adapted to enter into engagement with one another to provide a joint between them for the reception of the edge of a roof covering, said members being formed of a homogeneous mixture waterproofing binder and fiber.

1,664,607. FUEL-INJECTION SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Sept. 4, 1923. Serial No. 660,840. 7 Claims. (Cl. 123—140.)



1. In a fuel injection system, the combination with a pump having a valve controlling passage to its fuel supply, of an electromagnet so located as to act directly on said valve for moving it in one direction to control the amount of fuel delivered by the pump, means for energizing said magnet, and adjustable engine-controlled means for controlling the operation of said energizing means.

1,664,608. FUEL-INJECTION SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,830. 9 Claims. (Cl. 123—140.)

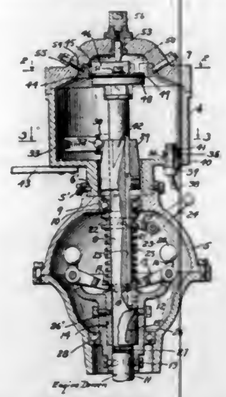


1. In a fuel injection system, the combination with a pump having a valve controlling passage of fuel to its fuel supply, of an electromagnet for controlling the operation of said valve, means for energizing said magnet, and engine-operated circuit control mechanism including means adjustable to vary the time said energizing means is rendered operative, and means adjustable to vary the duration of operation of said energizing means whereby to vary the operation of said valve and hence cause the pump to deliver variable quantities of fuel at the desired time during its working stroke.

1,664,609. FUEL-INJECTION SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed July 28, 1924. Serial No. 728,805. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—32.)

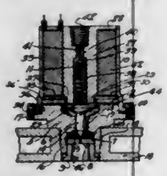
1. In a fuel injection system, the combination with a multicylinder engine, of a supply pipe containing fuel at injection pressure, means for supplying said pipe with fuel, branch conduits from said supply pipe leading to each cylinder of the engine, a fuel-pressure-operated injector controlling the passage of fuel from each branch conduit to the cylinder supplied thereby, an electromagnetically-operated valve in each branch conduit and constituting the sole means for controlling the operation of the fuel injector associated with that conduit, a source of electrical current, and circuit control means operated by the engine, for controlling the supply of current to the operating magnet of each electromagnetically-operated valve.

1,664,610. FUEL-FEEDING SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Jan. 8, 1925, Serial No. 1,828. Renewed July 18, 1927. 18 Claims. (Cl. 123—139.)



1. In a fuel feeding system for multicylinder internal combustion engines, the combination of a pump of variable delivery for delivering a metered charge of fuel to each of a plurality of engine cylinders during a complete engine cycle, a distributor valve for each cylinder controlling the passage of fuel from the pump to its cylinder, an electro-magnet for controlling each valve, and means for supplying current to each electro-magnet in predetermined order, including a current distributor and timing circuit control mechanism associated with said distributor.

1,664,611. FUEL-INJECTION SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Apr. 29, 1925. Serial No. 26,676. 8 Claims. (Cl. 123—32.)



1. In a circuit controller for fuel injection systems, the combination with a switch including a movable contact, of an engine-driven timing shaft, a cam on said shaft for controlling said movable contact, said cam being slidably mounted on said shaft and having a variable profile shiftable relative to said movable contact to vary the duration of the circuit closing periods of said switch to vary the duration of the injection period, and means for angularly shifting said cam and shaft simultaneously with the shifting of said cam on said shaft to vary the time of injection as the injection period is varied.

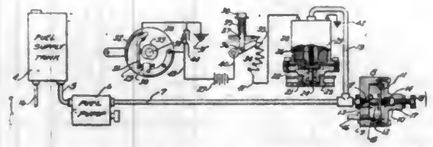
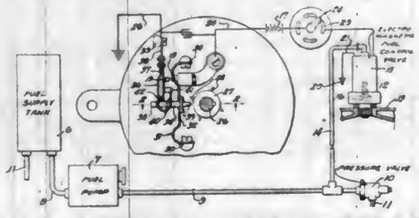
1,664,612. FUEL-CONTROL VALVE. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Nov. 4, 1925. Serial No. 66,769. 14 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)



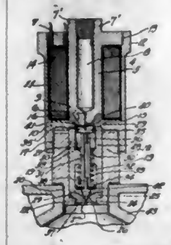
1. In an electromagnetically-operated control valve mechanism, the combination of a valve casing member, an iron-clad electromagnet having a fluid-tight pole face cooperating with said member to form a fluid-containing valve housing and including a central pole and an outer pole extending inwardly to within a short distance from said central pole, and a needle control valve biased to closed position and mounted in said housing and having an armature cooperating with said poles and overlying for a short distance that portion of the outer pole closest to said central pole.

1,664,613. ELECTROMAGNETIC VALVE. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Jan. 27, 1926. Serial No. 84,102. 7 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)



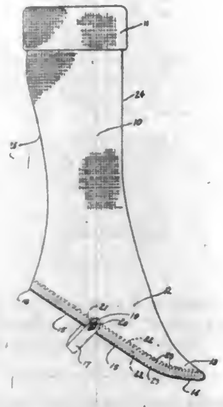
1. In an electrically-operated control valve mechanism, the combination of a valve casing member, an iron-clad electromagnet having a core including an inner pole, an outer pole surrounding the inner end of the core, and a sealing member interposed between the inner end portion of said core and said outer pole and clamped therebetween whereby said electromagnet has a fluid-tight pole face, said pole face cooperating with said valve casing member to form a fluid-containing valve housing, and a control valve mounted in said housing and having an armature cooperating with said poles.

1,664,614. FUEL-INJECTION SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 15, 1926. Serial No. 88,406. 14 Claims. (Cl. 123—32.)



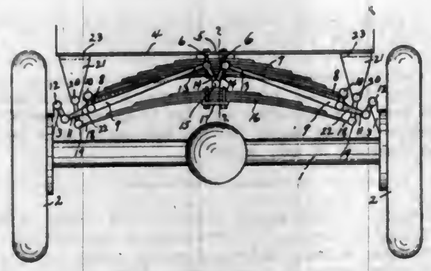
1. In a fuel supply system, the combination with a fuel metering device, of an electromagnet for controlling said device, a control circuit for said electromagnet including engine-controlled switch mechanism for controlling said electromagnet, and a variable resistance for varying the current supplied to said electromagnet and thus vary the action of said device and consequently the amount of fuel furnished the engine.

1,664,615. FUEL-INJECTION SYSTEM. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Mar. 26, 1926. Serial No. 97,637. 8 Claims. (Cl. 123—32.)



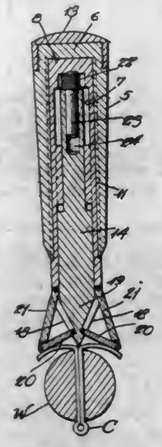
1. In a fuel injection system, the combination of a fuel-metering device, an electromagnet for controlling said device, and a control circuit for said electromagnet including means influencing the current supply to said magnet to actuate said device to supply substantially constant quantity fuel charges through a predetermined range of engine speeds and thereafter decreasing the amount of fuel above a predetermined engine speed and cutting off said fuel supply at a predetermined maximum speed.

1,664,616. FUEL-CONTROL VALVE. LOUIS O. FRENCH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed May 26, 1926. Serial No. 111,775. 11 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)



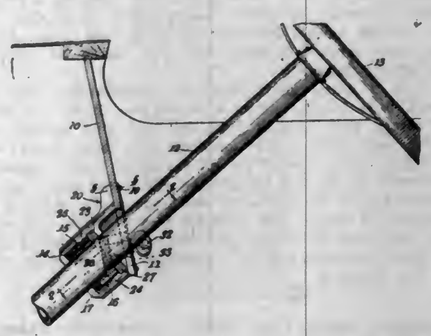
1. In an electromagnetically-operated valve mechanism, the combination with an electromagnet having a fluid-tight pole face including an inner and an outer pole, a clamping member associated with said outer pole and having a bore, a casing member removably fitting within said bore and clamped by said member against the pole face of said magnet, and a control valve working in said casing member and having an armature cooperating with said poles.

1,664,617. WOOLEN SPAT. ADOLPH L. FRIEDENTHAL, Portland, Oreg. Filed Apr. 29, 1927. Serial No. 187,630. 1 Claim. (Cl. 36—2.)



A spat comprising a body portion of ribbed relatively elastic material conforming closely to the shape of the wearer's leg, each end of said body portion terminating in an increasingly distended section the front of the edge of the bottom section being arcuately shaped to provide a snug fit about said wearer's shoe; the rest of said edge inclining upwardly along a straight line to a higher heel portion, and a detachable fastening means extending from one side of said spat to the other which construction allows the upward withdrawal of the spat to permit access to the shoe beneath, the interior surface of the whole edge of said distended section being provided with an elastic facing stitched thereto to prevent fraying and to preserve the elasticity thereof and snug engagement with the shoe aforesaid.

1,664,618. STABILIZING SPRING. JOHN W. FRY, Struthers, Ohio. Filed Mar. 28, 1927. Serial No. 179,157. 2 Claims. (Cl. 267—19.)



1. In a device of the class described, in combination with an axle and support members attached thereto, two levers inserted between two springs, the outer ends of said levers pivotally connected to the supports attached to the axle, the upper spring rigidly secured at a central point to a frame member to which is attached a body, a lower spring and means for securing outer ends of said lower spring to outer ends of the frame member above mentioned, inner ends of said levers pivotally attached to said lower spring, a curved upper surface on each of said levers, upturned ends of said upper spring, means for keeping said outer ends of upper spring under constant tension, substantially as described for the purpose set forth.

1,664,619. COTTER-PIN-SPREADING TOOL. ALBERT GIRARD, Canisteo, N. Y. Filed Mar. 18, 1927. Serial No. 176,494. 12 Claims. (Cl. 81—15.)

1. A cotter-pin spreading tool including a wedge member, spreading members hinged at the tapered sides of the wedge member to swing outwardly and forwardly relative to the latter, and means for swinging said spreading members.

1,664,620. LOCK FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. GEORGE A. GILLEN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Gillen, Kimmey, Baker Syndicate Inc., New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 6, 1926. Serial No. 92,978. 2 Claims. (Cl. 70—127.)

1. A motor vehicle steering post lock comprising a collar adapted to be fixed to the steering post, a second collar disposed adjacent the first collar and adapted to be rotatably mounted on the steering post, a casing fixed to the motor vehicle and surrounding said collars, pin tumblers carried by the casing for interlocking engagement with said fixed collar, said rotatable collar having cam faces thereon for engaging said pin tumblers, and key controlled means for turning said rotatable collar.

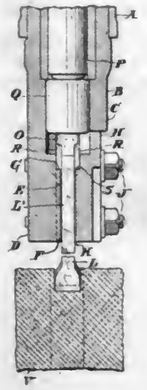
1,664,621. DEFLATION TOOL FOR TUBES OF PNEUMATIC TIRES. JUDSON L. GOFF, Topeka, Kans., assignor of one-half to John A. Goff, Topeka, Kans. Filed Aug. 29, 1927. Serial No. 216,217. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—27.)

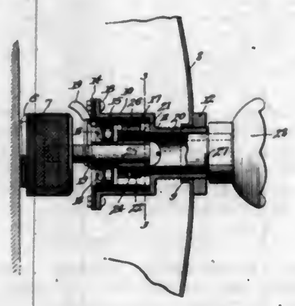
In a deflation tool for tubes of pneumatic tires, a tool of the kind described comprising a shaft having a handle on one end and a point on the opposite end, a slot diametrically passing through the shaft intermediate the handle and point, a V-shaped extension in the end of the slot adjacent the handle, all as and for the purpose described.

1,664,622. CRANK-SHAFT LATHE CHUCK. WILLIAM F. GROENE, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The R. K. Le Blond Machine Tool Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 20, 1925. Serial No. 38,459. 6 Claims. (Cl. 82—40.)



1. In a crank shaft lathe, the combination with a chuck body having shaft clamping means thereon arranged to surround a pin of the crank shaft, cheek grippers on the body for engaging the cheek of a crank shaft to center the shaft, said grippers comprising rotary bodies having intermeshing teeth, and cheek gripping jaws opposed to each other, and means for rocking one of the grippers.

4. In a crank shaft lathe the combination with a chuck body having journals lengthwise thereof, a pair of rotary pins in said journals, said pins having exposed ends formed with opposed cam faces to act as gripping jaws, and with intermeshing teeth whereby operation of one will operate the other, and said pins so mounted that the said jaws will engage the cheek of a shaft to be turned and mounted in the chuck, and center and grip the cheek, and means for operating the grippers comprising a bolt mounted off center in one of the grippers.



1,664,623. BROACHING TOOL. CHARLES C. HANSEN, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 8, 1926. Serial No. 80,017. 2 Claims. (Cl. 121—32.)

1. A broaching tool comprising a flat rectangular body portion of substantially uniform cross sectional area throughout its length to prevent flexion thereof, a portion of said body portion comprising a shank adapted to cooperate slidably with a guiding attachment, a shoulder at one end of said portion forming a head adapted to receive the blows of a rock drill piston and a cutting bit at the other end of the body portion, said bit being of substantially the same width as the body portion.

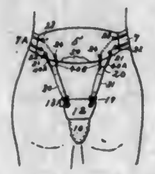
1. In an electric switch, the combination of a casing provided with switching contacts and having an aperture to receive a screw for fixing said casing in place; a switching element including a tubular actuator open at both ends and guided in a portion of said casing, the bore of said tubular actuator being alined with the aperture in said casing and so dimensioned as to permit the insertion of said screw.



1,664,625. ROTATION MECHANISM FOR ROCK DRILLS. GEORGE W. HULSHIZER, Stewartsville, N. J., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 4, 1927. Serial No. 172,731. 7 Claims. (Cl. 121—7.)

1. In a rock drill having a cylinder provided with a piston, rotation mechanism for the piston comprising a rotation ring having a bore, a rifle bar in the bore extending into the cylinder to interlock slidably with the piston, means disposed loosely in the bore, means rotatable in the bore for guiding said means, and a cam in the second said means integral with the rifle bar for forcing the first said means firmly into engagement with the rotation ring during one stroke of the piston, thus preventing rotation of the rifle bar and causing the piston to describe a partial revolution.

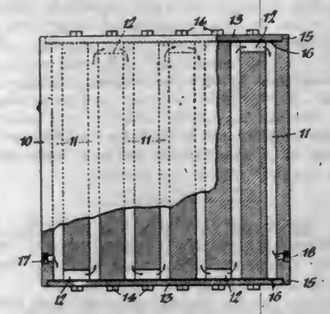
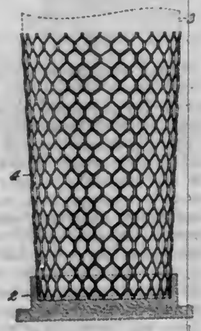
1,664,626. SANITARY PROTECTOR. YEI ITO, Selma, Calif. Filed Mar. 23, 1925. Serial No. 17,640. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—291.)



A catamenial sack support consisting of a belt having holes therethrough, said holes being adapted as a slideway for a string, said holes being arranged in pairs of two, the position of the holes on the left side of the belt being approximately similar to the arrangement of the holes on the right side thereof, an endless string for the right side of said belt and a separate endless string for the left side, each of said strings being threaded through one hole and back through the adjacent hole in said belt, each of said strings being attached at a loop at the front portion of the belt to a corner of the sack at the front portion thereof, and attached at the other loop end to a rear corner of said sack, said belt having a lining adapted to cover the holes and the portion of the strings on the inside of the belt.

1,664,627. SHADE ROLLER. BRONISLAW KACZMARSKI, Detroit, Mich. Filed Apr. 23, 1927. Serial No. 186,076. 1 Claim. (Cl. 150—29.)



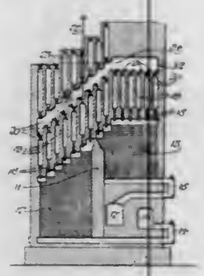
A shade-roller of the class described comprising a pair of end members, and a median part composed of a plurality of members each substantially triangular in cross-section and having its outer face curved at the arc of a circle to form with the other members the outer, substantially circular circumference of the roller, the outer ends of said members integral with said roller end members, one of said members sliding within the opening formed between the adjoining two members, bands for guiding and holding the members, a rack on one of said members, and a pawl pivotally secured intermediate its ends to the member next adjoining the member to which said rack is secured, and a spring plate yieldingly secured to the member next adjoining to the member carrying the rack to which the rear end of said pawl is secured for locking the parts in their relative adjusted positions.

1,664,628. FLUID-CIRCULATING PLATE. ARMIN GEORGE KESSLER, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to Farrel Foundry and Machine Co., Buffalo, N. Y., a Corporation of Connecticut. Original application filed Aug. 20, 1925, Serial No. 51,374, Patent No. 1,621,742, dated Mar. 22, 1927. Divided and this application filed June 14, 1926. Serial No. 115,858. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—17.)

3. A circulating plate of the character described, having a plurality of fluid-circulating channels having a common inlet and a common outlet and a recess in two opposing end walls thereof, the channels opening into said recesses, transverse grooves in the bottoms of said recesses forming connecting ports between said pair of channels, the grooves at one side of the plate being staggered with respect to those in the opposite side, cover plates seated in the recesses for closing the ends of said channels and the open sides of said grooves, each cover plate being common to the several channels and grooves opening in the corresponding recess, and means for detachably securing said cover plates in place.

1,664,629. METHOD OF PRODUCING TAPERED EXPANDED-METAL RECEPTACLES. HENRY KIELBERG, Martins Ferry, Ohio, assignor to Wheeling Steel Corporation, Wheeling, W. Va., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 10, 1926. Serial No. 101,201. 3 Claims. (Cl. 113—116.)

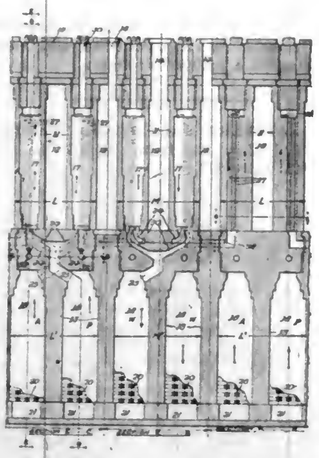
1. The method of producing tapered basket bodies, which consists in joining the ends of a rectangular expanded-metal sheet to form a cylinder, disposing said cylinder on end, and then lowering within said cylinder a tapered mandrel to effect gradual stretching of the sheet to conform to the size and shape of said mandrel.



1,664,630. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF MAGNESIUM OXIDE. WILLIAM KOEHLER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Dec. 21, 1923. Serial No. 681,979. 2 Claims. (Cl. 23—201.)

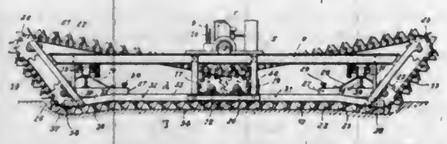
2. A cyclic process for obtaining magnesium oxide and calcium carbonate from raw dolomite, comprising calcining a mixture of magnesium chloride and raw dolomite to obtain magnesium oxide, calcium chloride, and carbon dioxide, collecting the carbon dioxide, dissolving out and collecting the calcium chloride, separately calcining a second portion of raw dolomite to obtain magnesium oxide and calcium oxide, and collecting the carbon dioxide, treating said magnesium oxide and calcium oxide with said calcium chloride and carbon dioxide to form magnesium chloride and calcium carbonate, separating said last obtained magnesium chloride and calcium carbonate, and utilizing the magnesium chloride for the decomposition of a new supply of raw dolomite as described in the first step of the process.

1,664,631. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF REFRACTORY MAGNESIA COMPOUNDS. WILLIAM KOEHLER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Mar. 15, 1926. Serial No. 94,961. 10 Claims. (Cl. 106—9.)



1. A process for the production of an oxide from dolomite comprising treating comminuted uncalcined dolomite with its lime equivalent of a metallic chloride, moderately heating the mixture, dehydrating the mass, dissolving out the calcium chloride formed and calcining the residue.

1,664,632. COKING RETORT OVEN. HEINRICH KOPPERS, Essen-Ruhr, Germany, assignor to The Koppers Development Corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 31, 1921, Serial No. 497,368, and in Germany Nov. 7, 1919. 4 Claims. (Cl. 202—9.)

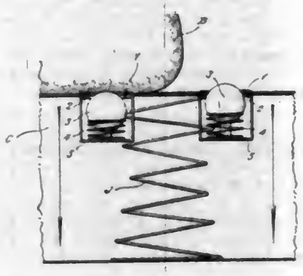


1. An inclined furnace chamber structure for producing gas and coke, comprising in combination: an inclined retort; vertical heating flues arranged alongside the lower end of said inclined retort having their lower ends arranged in an inclined plane substantially parallel to the plane of inclination of said retort; vertical heating flues arranged alongside the upper end of said inclined retort having their lower ends arranged in a substantially horizontal plane; a regenerator below and communicably connected with the vertical flues alongside the lower end of said retort; a regenerator below and communicably connected with the vertical flues alongside the upper end of said retort, each of said regenerators being adapted to alternate for inflow and outflow; the regenerator for the vertical flues alongside the lower end of said retort having its upper part arranged stepwise, each step being directly connected with a vertical flue, and the regenerator for the vertical flues alongside the upper end of said retort having the major portion of its upper part in a single horizontal plane for direct connection with its vertical flues; a waste gas collecting channel above said vertical flues and communicably connected therewith, said channel being inclined throughout a portion of its length over the vertical flues alongside the lower end of said retort, and extending horizontally throughout a portion of its length over the vertical flues alongside the upper end of said retort; the furnace structure being formed to provide a charging platform over said horizontally extended portion of the waste gas collecting channel.

1,664,633. COKING RETORT OVEN. NATHANIEL G. PARRY, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to The Koppers Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 6, 1921. Serial No. 498,872. 10 Claims. (Cl. 202—9.)

1. In a coking retort oven, in combination: a plurality of coking chambers; heating walls contiguous to such coking chambers and respectively constituted of vertical combustion flues disposed into pairs; vertical out-flow channels in each heating wall communicably connected with a pair of combustion flues; duct means extended beneath the coking chambers, said duct means communicably connecting the individual vertical out-flow channels of one heating wall respectively with the individual vertical out-flow channels of an adjacent heating wall; and crosswise regenerators parallel with the coking chambers and the heating walls, such regenerators being disposed into in-flow and out-flow operating pairs; each regenerator of each pair being communicably connected with the combustion flues of a pair of adjacent heating walls; substantially as specified.

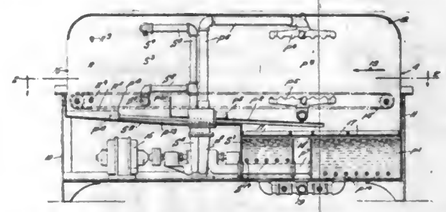
1,664,634. ROAD-SUBGRADING MACHINE. HERMAN K. LEHMER, Rockford, Ill. Filed Mar. 19, 1927. Serial No. 176,614. 12 Claims. (Cl. 37—109.)



1. In a machine of the character described, a supporting frame having driving means carried thereby, a pair of laterally spaced track beams on which said frame is supported and along which the same is arranged to be fed, means for adjusting said beams as to pitch and elevation so as to determine the grading or banking of the road, one or more endless chain belts having ground cutting and conveying means operating thereon transversely with respect to said beams crosswise of the road, and a guide frame providing guideways for said belts whereby to determine the conformation of the crown of the road produced.

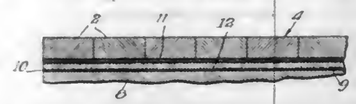
1,664,635. MILK-BOTTLE CLOSURE AND METHOD OF APPLYING SAME. DONALD G. MAGILL, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Can Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 12, 1923. Serial No. 674,156. 1 Claim. (Cl. 215—38.)

A closure for milk bottles and the like, having in combination a bottle formed with an internal seat at its mouth, a disk in said seat, and a seal of latex applied in liquid form over said disk and the neighboring portion of the bottle and forming with said disk an hermetic and easily peelable and removable closure, said latex solidifying to produce an elastic non-constricting and sanitary seal which tears readily for the opening of the bottle.



1,664,636. COOLING DEVICE. AUGUSTINE MAYER, St. Augustine, Fla. Filed Sept. 27, 1926. Serial No. 138,005. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—179.)

1. A cooling device for a seat comprising an inflated cushion provided with a plurality of check valves consisting of spring pressed members disposed below the valve seats and having portions extending above the surface of the cushion, some of said valves being disposed within that area of the surface of the cushion with which the body of the user contacts, and others of said valves being disposed without that area of the surface.



1,664,637. WASHING MACHINE. HENRY R. MERSELES, Bronxville, and PEIRCE M. WOOD, New Rochelle, N. Y., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Hobart Manufacturing Company, Troy, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 12, 1924. Serial No. 719,262. 5 Claims. (Cl. 141—9.)

1. A dish-washing machine having a casing providing a long hood, means for guiding the articles to be washed through said hood, a rotary liquid distributor located in said hood near its entrance end, a rinse spray located in said hood near its exit end, and a fixed projector extending transversely across the hood between the rotary projector and the rinse spray and arranged to project across the hood a curtain of liquid which screens the rinse spray from the liquid discharged by the rotary distributor.

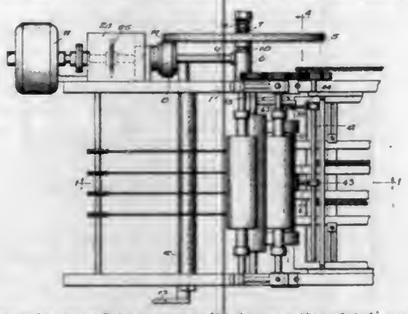
1,664,638. FLOOR CONSTRUCTION. JOSEPH H. MITTER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 23, 1926. Serial No. 89,087. 5 Claims. (Cl. 94—3.)

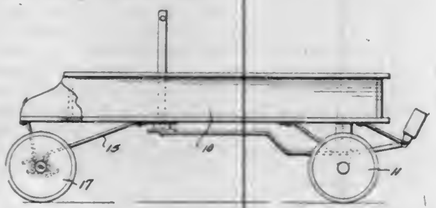
5. A floor of the kind described, comprising a base, a layer of plastic material on the base adapted to provide a level top surface and a layer of tile bonded to the plastic material by a layer of sheet fibrous material, the fibrous sheet material having the tile secured to the top surface of the fibrous sheet material by suitable cementitious material, and the lower side of said fibrous sheet material having a granular coating adapting it to be bonded to the plastic material.

1,664,639. HEEL-ASSEMBLING MACHINE. ELMER R. POPE, Hamilton, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 3, 1926. Serial No. 85,681. 7 Claims. (Cl. 12—50.)



1. A duplex heel assembling machine, comprising two heel shaped assembling forms, and a separate, manually operable, pressure applying pad for each form, said pads being respectively movable toward and away from the forms and being so connected to each other that movement of one pad toward one form causes movement of the other pad away from the other form.

1,664,640. SHEET FEEDING AND DRIVING MEANS. CLAUDE L. POST, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 3, 1924. Serial No. 741,426. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—26.)



2. In a device of the kind described and in combination, driving mechanism comprising a driven element and a driving element, said elements each relatively adjustable whereby movement of one element away from the other disengages them from operative relation, and movement of the other element engages them when the said first element is moved in a normally inoperative driving position, and one of said elements having a cylindrical face engageable with the other element in each of the driving positions.

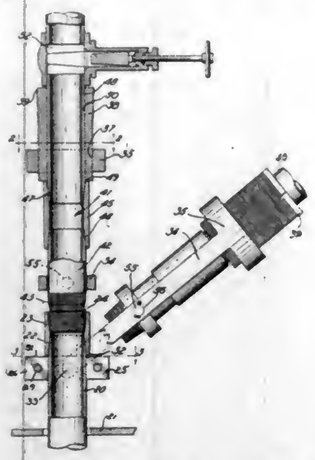
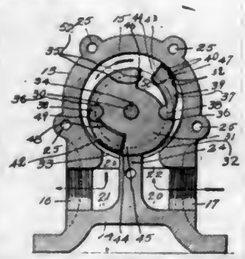
1,664,641. COASTER WAGON. PAUL K. RAASCH, East Akron, Ohio. Filed Apr. 14, 1927. Serial No. 183,765. 2 Claims. (Cl. 208—34.)



1. In a child's wagon or coaster having a floor, front steering wheels, a crank shaft mounted upon the wagon at the rear thereof and rearward of the rear edge of the floor and below the body, and having pedals mounted directly upon the crank shaft whereby it may be operated, wheels mounted upon the ends of the crank shaft, and means for transmitting power from the crank shaft to said wheels.

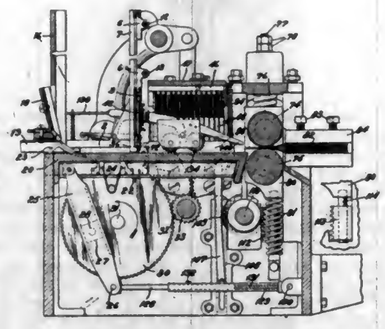
1,664,642. URINAL FOR AUTOMOBILES AND THE LIKE. GEORGE N. RANDLE, Oakland, Calif. Filed Nov. 30, 1925. Serial No. 72,076. 1 Claim. (Cl. 4—110.)



In an automobile having a floor, an elongated casing extending longitudinally of said automobile, an outlet pipe secured to said casing and opening to the rear of said vehicle, a tube pivoted at one end to said outlet pipe and adapted in one position to lie within said casing, a basin on the other end of said tube, and a support in said casing for holding said tube inclined downwardly toward said outlet pipe.

1,664,643. CAPPING DEVICE FOR OIL WELLS. CHESTER A. RASMUSSEN, Long Beach, Calif. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 118,955. 12 Claims. (Cl. 166—15.)

1. A control means for capping the tubing of a flowing oil well comprising: securing means adapted to be secured to said tubing below the upwardly projecting open end thereof; reins pivoted at their lower end to said securing means so that they can swing about a horizontal axis passing through said tubing near the axis thereof; a threaded member carried by the upper end of said reins; capping means; and a rotatable member through which said capping means extends threaded in said threaded member and engaging said capping means to force it downwardly into a position where it may be secured in fluid-tight relationship with said tubing.



1,664,644. ROTARY PUMP. ARTHUR E. SIMPSON, West Frankfort, Ill., assignor of one-seventh to H. L. Webb, one-seventh to J. M. Harris, one-seventh to B. H. Webb, one-seventh to T. M. Silkwood, one-seventh to R. P. Blake, and one-seventh to C. E. Pitchford, West Frankfort, Ill. Filed June 2, 1924. Serial No. 717,307. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—140.)

1. A rotary pump comprising a housing having a base, a cylinder formed in said housing above said base, a rotor eccentrically mounted in said cylinder, a pair of substantially triangular pistons pivotally mounted at their rear ends and diametrically opposite each other in said rotor and adapted to contact with the periphery of said cylinder, a plurality of intersecting ribs formed on the outer face of said pistons, bearing metal located between said ribs, a suction chamber formed in said base, a delivery chamber formed in said base, a plurality of laterally spaced parallel passages gradually increasing in depth and having ports therein at their point of greatest depth for connecting the suction and delivery chambers with the interior of the cylinder, and an abutment located between said ports and said passages and the chambers in the base, said abutment being in constant contact with the rotor.

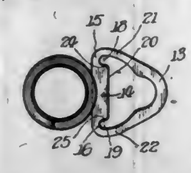
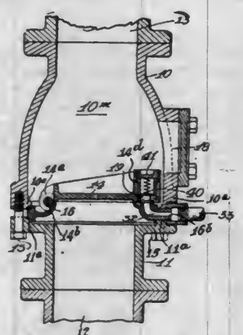
1,664,645. EVENING AND GRADING MACHINE. GEORGE L. SMITH, Manchester, N. H. Filed Feb. 7, 1923. Serial No. 617,521. 25 Claims. (Cl. 69—13.)



1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of feeler mechanism for detecting variations in the thickness of a piece of sheet stock, said mechanism comprising a series of feelers arranged to engage the stock simultaneously, said feelers being individually movable in conformity to the thickness of the portions of the stock engaged thereby and being operative to detect the thinnest portion of the stock so engaged, a magazine for holding a supply of said pieces of stock, a rigid table for supporting the pieces of stock while they are engaged by said feelers, means for feeding the pieces of stock one at a time from said magazine over the surface of said table and positioning them for engagement by said feelers, and additional means under control of said feeler mechanism and independent of said feeding means for subsequently treating said pieces of stock in accordance with the thickness determinations made by said feeler mechanism.

1,664,646. PORTABLE OVERCAST. FREDERICK A. SWEET, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 119,090. 5 Claims. (Cl. 61—42.)

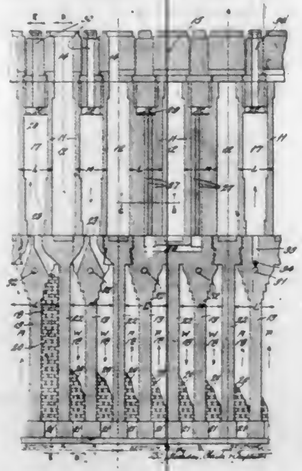


1. A portable overcast comprising a collapsible framework having portal posts spaced apart from each other transversely and longitudinally, transverse chord members and longitudinal side members extending between said portal posts, a ridge member extending between said chord members, and arched body plates, detachably connected at their upper ends to said ridge member and at their lower ends to said longitudinal side members.

1,664,647. MEANS FOR ATTACHING COILED SPRINGS. OSCAR J. SUNDSTRAND, Rockford, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Sundstrand Corporation, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 22, 1923. Serial No. 676,374. 4 Claims. (Cl. 267—73.)

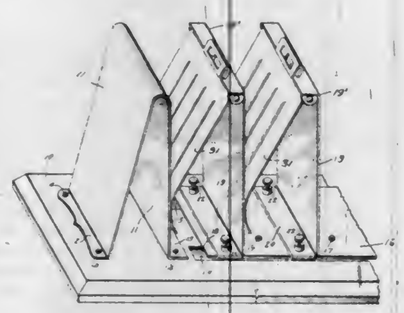
1. An attaching element for a coiled spring comprising a piece of relatively thin material having an opening adjacent one edge thereof, said opening having two notches extending toward said edge, the notches being adapted to receive opposite sides of a coil of the spring.

1,664,648. VALVE FOR FIRE-EXTINGUISHING SPRINKLER SYSTEMS. EMIL TYDEN, Evanston, Ill. Filed Jan. 29, 1924. Serial No. 689,355. 2 Claims. (Cl. 277—20.)



1. In a construction of the class indicated a main valve body and an immediately antecedent water pipe element on which said valve body is mounted at the intake of the latter; a valve seat member peripherally dimensioned for clamping engagement between the facing surfaces of said valve body and pipe element marginal with respect to the registering apertures of said parts; and means for securing the valve body and pipe element together adapted for clamping said valve seat between said marginal areas, said valve seat member being dimensioned as to thickness for exposing a substantial width of peripheral area outwardly between the two members between which it is clamped, said valve seat member having formed in it an auxiliary duct opening at the inner end in the direction toward the seating movement of the main valve and opening at the outer end through the exposed periphery of said valve seating member, and a valve carried by the main valve for controlling the inner end of said duct.

1,664,649. COKING RETORT OVEN. JOSEPH VAN ACKEREN, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to The Koppers Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 6, 1921, Serial No. 498,796. Renewed Jan. 29, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 202—9.)



1. In a coking retort oven, in combination: a plurality of coking chambers; heating walls contiguous to such coking chambers and respectively comprising vertical combustion flues; vertical out-flow channels communicably connected with a pair of combustion flues; duct means extended beneath the coking chambers, said duct means communicably connecting transversely of the intervening coking chambers the vertical outflow channels of alternate heating walls respectively with the corresponding vertical out-flow channels of intermediate heating walls; and crosswise regenerators parallel with the coking chambers and the heating walls, such regenerators being disposed into in-flow and out-flow operating pairs, both regenerators of each pair corresponding to and being communicably connected with combustion flues of only a single heating wall; substantially as specified.

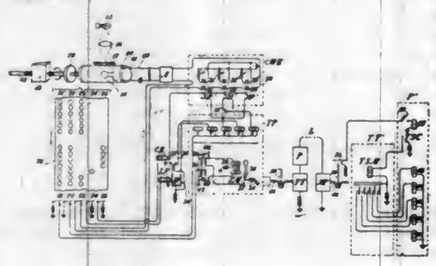
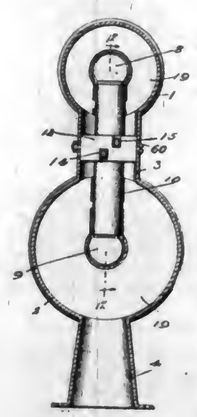
1,664,650. CHECK-SORTING RACK. WYNAND VAN KORLAAR, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed July 29, 1925. Serial No. 46,921. 4 Claims. (Cl. 211—11.)



1. A sorting rack comprising a base, guide means on the base, an end member secured to said base, and movable partitions carried by said guide means, said movable partitions comprising a base adapted to overlap the outer edges of said guide means, means for engagement with said guide means for holding said partition base on said guide means in a predetermined position, an upstanding plate carried by said partition base, a hinged presser member mounted on said upstanding plate, spring means for urging said hinged presser member outwardly and against the adjacent partition, and indicating means mounted on said partition.

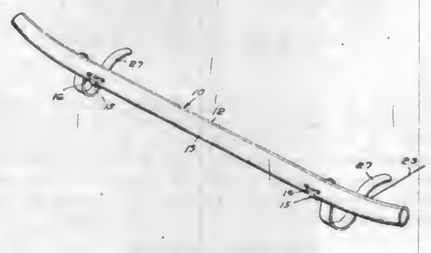
1,664,651. TAPPET FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. ITALO VIRONDA, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed Oct. 5, 1927. Serial No. 224,186. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—90.)

2. A tappet head having a reduced interiorly screw-threaded stem, a slack take-up having a reduced exteriorly screw-threaded shank screwed into said stem, a jam-nut fitted on said shank and abutting said stem, said take-up having an enlarged screw-threaded extremity, a thimble screw-threaded onto said enlarged screw-threaded extremity, a push-rod having an annular groove near its upper end fitted into a reduced open end of said thimble and abutting said take-up, a split ring fitted into said annular groove and occupying a position within the bottom of said thimble and its interior wall to prevent the withdrawal of said push-rod, and a jam-nut run on the enlarged end of said take-up and abutting said thimble to prevent the loosening of the parts.



1,664,652. PICTURE-TRANSMITTING SYSTEM. EDWARD F. WATSON, Larchmont, and ALLAN WEAVER, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 26, 1924. Serial No. 702,108. 8 Claims. (Cl. 178—11.

1. In combination, a photoelectric cell, a glass drum to carry a picture film, means to rotate the drum and traverse it along its axis, means to direct a beam of light through a spot of the film on the drum to said cell, so that as the drum rotates and advances, such spot will describe a helical course relatively thereto, selector magnets, means to control them by the effect of the said cell according to the light incident thereon, means to punch in a tape the code combinations determined by said selector magnets, and means to punch carriage return and line feed code combinations in the same tape when the edge of the film intersects the beam of light incident on the said cell.



1,664,653. SIGNAL LANTERN. EDWARD J. WELDER, San Antonio, Tex. Filed Aug. 3, 1920. Serial No. 400,897. 2 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)

2. In a signal lantern, a casing comprising spaced hoods and a reduced tubular portion joining the hoods, an insulating bracket mounted within the casing and comprising oppositely extending attaching arms and posts extending centrally from and disposed at rightangles to said arms, said arms having a central opening extending longitudinally therethrough and their outer ends shaped to conform to the cross sectional shape of the tubular portion of the casing, a bolt extending through the opening and the tubular portion of the casing to secure the bracket in position and lamp sockets mounted upon the posts and extending into the casing heads.

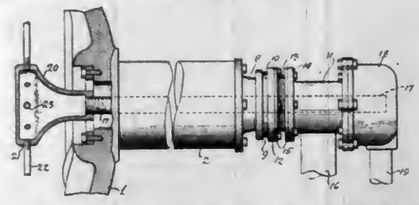
1,664,654. COMBINED BUMPER AND SAFETY APPLIANCE. JOSEPH H. WHITE, Florence, S. C., assignor of one-half to Hal H. Harbin, Florence, S. C. Filed Aug. 11, 1927. Serial No. 212,337. 9 Claims. (Cl. 293—41.)

1. In a combined bumper and safety appliance, a tubular bumper element embodying a relatively stationary bumper section and a movable bumper section, means to lock the movable bumper section in a closed position, means to automatically shift the movable bumper section to an open position when released, and a self-opening safety appliance adapted when collapsed to be stored within the tubular bumper element and attached to the stationary bumper section.



1,664,655. VEHICLE SPRING. WERNER ARNOLDS, Porta Westfalen, Germany, assignor to F. H. Westerschulte, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 9, 1924. Serial No. 685,278. 4 Claims. (Cl. 267—20.)

1. In a vehicle having a frame and an axle, a cylinder pivoted to siad frame and having a restricted open end, a piston in said cylinder, a stem fixed to said piston and projecting out of said open cylinder end, a compression spring in said cylinder between said piston and restricted end, and resilient means pivotally connecting the projecting end of said stem with said axle, said means comprising a second cylinder with its closed end rotatably mounted on said axle, and having a restricted open end, a piston in said second cylinder, a stem fixed to said piston and projecting from said second cylinder, and means pivotally connecting the projecting ends of said two stems.

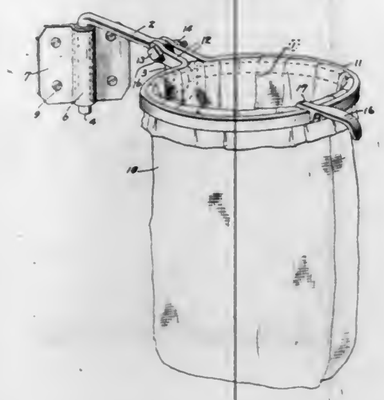
1,664,656. DRIER CONSTRUCTION. EARL E. BERRY, Beloit, Wis., assignor to Beloit Iron Works, Beloit, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed May 10, 1926. Serial No. 107,851. 2 Claims. (Cl. 34—4.)

1. A steam heated drying cylinder having an inner peripheral groove and a hollow trunnion formed on one end thereof, a condensate removal conduit separately mounted in said hollow trunnion and extending through the end of said cylinder, a manifold mounted on the inner end of said conduit and a plurality of condensate conducting means removably secured to said manifold and adjustably extending into said groove.



1,664,657. APPARATUS FOR USE IN MAKING SHOES. FREDERIC E. BERTRAND, Lynn, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 18, 1922, Serial No. 561,901, and in Great Britain May 25, 1921. 27 Claims. (Cl. 12—123.)

1. A shoe support comprising, in combination, means for supporting a heel in upright position, a support for the forward end of a shoe clamped against the heel, said support being mounted for independent tilting and up-and-down adjustment relatively to the heel supporting means, and a member carried by said adjustable support and slidingly clamped therein to engage the side of the shoe to prevent it from turning.

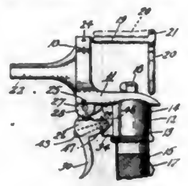
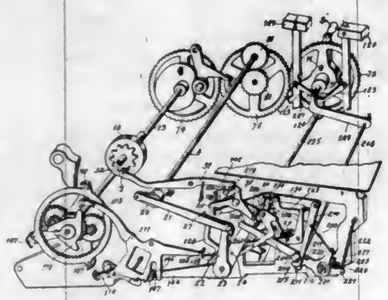
1,664,658. JELLY-BAG HOLDER. CLYDE P. BLAZER, Nehalem, Oreg. Filed Feb. 21, 1927. Serial No. 169,934. 2 Claims. (Cl. 83—26.)



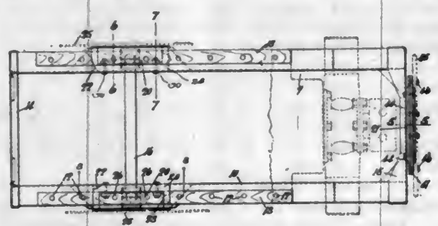
1. In combination, a supported bracket presenting a vertical guideway, a rod adapted to slide into the guideway having an arm extending horizontally therefrom, a horizontal ring on the end of said arm, a second ring pivoted to the arm so as to telescope on the first ring, a finger-grip extending from the second ring diametrically opposite the arm and a stop lying in the plane of said second ring and associated therewith limiting the telescoping engagement of the rings.

1,664,659. CATCHER ATTACHMENT FOR LAWN SWEEPERS AND THE LIKE. ALFRED J. BREEDEN, Grinnell, Iowa. Filed May 17, 1927. Serial No. 192,009. 6 Claims. (Cl. 56—200.)



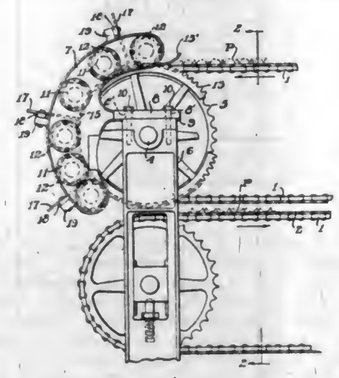
1. A catcher comprising a container having parallel side members, a back member and a front member to form an open bottom, the lower edges of the side members being provided with pivoted segments to rest normally inclined inwardly, a bottom member comprising a flexible apron having one end secured adjacent to the back and its opposite end secured adjacent to the lower edge of said front member, means for detachably locking the front edge of said apron in the last said position, and means for releasing said locking means.

1,664,660. NASAL RETRACTOR OR SPECULUM. WILL J. CAMERON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 12, 1927. Serial No. 160,635. 9 Claims. (Cl. 128—2.)



1. An instrument of the kind described comprising a barrel, oppositely disposed jaws pivoted on said barrel and jointly forming a walled passageway, a trigger having its fulcrum external to said barrel, and means operatively connecting said trigger to said jaws, whereby the movement of said trigger opens and closes the outer portions of said jaws.

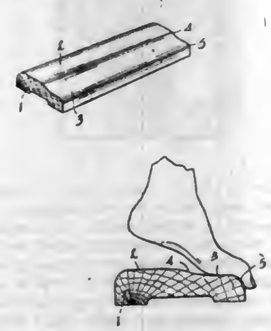
1,664,661. FULL-CYCLE POSITIONING MECHANISM. GEORGE C. CHASE, South Orange, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Monroe Calculating Machine Company, Orange, N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 7, 1925. Serial No. 67,676. 15 Claims. (Cl. 235—82.)



1. In a calculating machine having numeral wheels and actuating mechanism therefor, stopping means comprising the combination with means operable after the actuating mechanism passes through full cycle position to retard said mechanism and return the same to full cycle position, of means operable automatically to lock the actuating mechanism at rest in full cycle position.

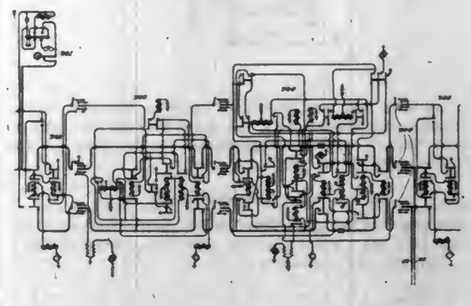
1,664,662. ELASTIC MOTOR MOUNTING FOR VEHICLES. HARVEY D. GEYER and VIRGINIUS E. CLARK, Dayton, Ohio, assignors to Dayton-Wright Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 16, 1921. Serial No. 522,879. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—64.)

An elastic shock absorbing support for mounting an engine upon a vehicle, comprising: an outer and an inner box-shaped member internesting with one another, one of said members being rigidly secured to the engine while the other member is rigidly secured to the vehicle, said outer box-shaped member being sufficiently larger than said inner box-shaped member as to leave a space between the corresponding sides of said box-shaped members, and elastic material such as rubber completely filling the space between said members, whereby said elastic support is rendered yieldable in all directions.



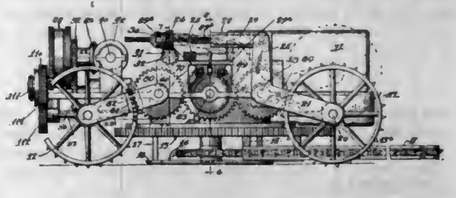
1,664,663. TURNING MECHANISM FOR CONVEYING DEVICES. WILLIAM D. COIL, Muncie, and WILLIAM J. DE REAMER, Crown Point, Ind. Filed Sept. 7, 1926. Serial No. 133,818. 13 Claims. (Cl. 198—28.)

1. In a mechanism of the character described, supporting standards, a rotatable shaft journaled in said standards, a drum fast to said shaft, a gear fast to said shaft, a series of guide and feed rollers arranged about the drum in concentric relation therewith with their peripheries having a direct contact with the material being conveyed about said drum, and a pinion connected with each roll in mesh with said gear.



4. In a mechanism of the character described, a rotatable cylindrical conveying member, a series of guide and feed rolls arranged about a portion of the periphery thereof, and a series of curved guide strips supported between said feed rolls and said conveying member, each of said rolls being provided with a series of grooves to receive said guide strips.

1,664,664. EXERCISING DEVICE. LEO J. CRUM, Kalamazoo, Mich., assignor of one-half to Lee L. Vosler, Kalamazoo, Mich. Filed Mar. 4, 1927. Serial No. 172,708. 1 Claim. (Cl. 272—57.)

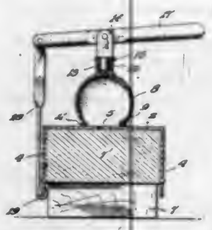


A device for the use in exercising having a face comprising a longitudinally extending flat rear portion and a longitudinally extending lower front portion merging into the flat rear portion with an upward curve and terminating in a downwardly curved front edge so that a user may stand upon the device with the heel upon the flat rear portion and the ball upon the lower front portion and with the toes projecting over the curved front edge.

1,664,665. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. HIRAM D. CURRIER and WILLIAM G. SHULL, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Original application filed Sept. 18, 1920, Serial No. 411,289. Divided and this application filed Mar. 9, 1925. Serial No. 13,963. 12 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

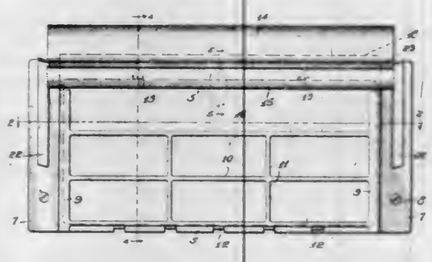
1. A telephone system including a calling subscriber's line, a called subscriber's line, automatic switches and a trunk circuit provided with a manual terminal for interconnecting said subscribers' lines, automatic means in the trunk circuit for clearing the same when the called subscriber replaces his receiver so that a second call may be extended from said automatic switches to said trunk circuit without operating the call bell at the called substation, and means for said trunk circuit for denoting a recall by the called subscriber.

1,664,666. MINING MACHINE. CHARLES E. DAVIS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Goodman Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 5, 1922. Serial No. 566,154. 58 Claims. (Cl. 262—28.)



1. In a mining machine, a motor, a frame having a pair of traction devices spaced longitudinally of one side of said frame and normally in supporting engagement with the ground, and means for operating the same, a cutting element pivotally connected to said frame intermediate said traction devices to swing in a horizontal plane and means operated by said motor for elevating said traction devices to permit said cutting element to pass thereunder.

1,664,667. DEVICE FOR FORCING ICE-CREAM BRICKS FROM MOLDS. CLEVELAND G. DAVIS, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Feb. 4, 1927. Serial No. 165,924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 107—8.)



The combination with an ice cream brick mold having an opening in its bottom, and a bulb having an open end, said open end of the bulb being engaged with the bottom of the mold and in registration with the opening, said opening affording communication between the bulb and interior of the mold, a lever pivotally connected with the bulb, a link pivotally connected with one end of the lever and having a hook upon its free end for detachable engagement with the mold to hold the bulb in place thereon during reciprocation of the lever as and for the purpose set forth.

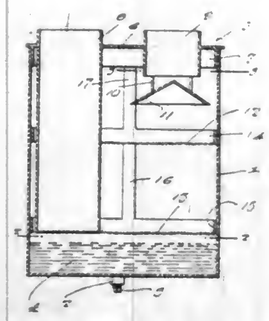
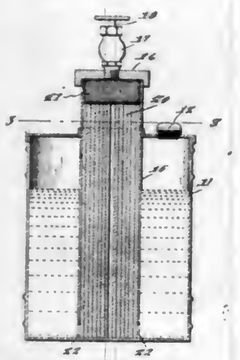
1,664,668. CARD HOLDER. WILLIAM W. DEGLER, Cumberland, Md. Filed Apr. 27, 1927. Serial No. 187,081. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—17.)



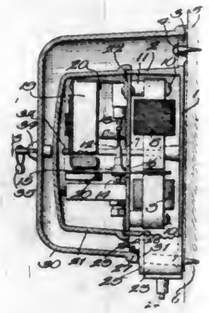
1. A card holder comprising, a body portion having means for receiving and holding a card and provided with a forwardly projecting stop, attaching elements secured to the body portion, and a roof element hinged upon the body portion and covering the same, said roof element having a part arranged to directly engage with the forward face of the card beneath the stop.

1,664,669. ANTIRATTLE BRACELET. HARRY M. DENYES, Saginaw, Mich., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 4, 1927. Serial No. 172,782. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)



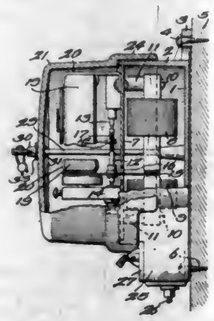
1. In combination, two relatively movable members located one within another in spaced relation, a portion of adjacent surfaces of said members having a relatively greater clearance space therebetween than the remaining portions thereof, and a resilient spacer element interposed between said members in the relatively large space and provided with enlargements to increase the width of the spacer beyond the relatively small intermediate space whereby the spacer element is held within the larger space.

1,664,670. AIR CLEANER. ROBERT R. DOLLINS, Marland, Okla. Filed May 20, 1926. Serial No. 110,475. 1 Claim. (Cl. 183—15.)



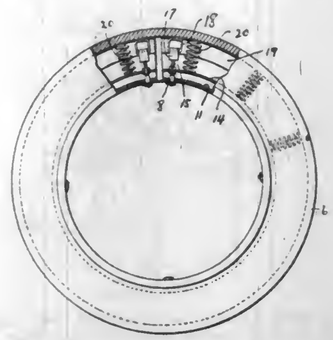
As a new product of manufacture, an open top cylinder adapted to contain a predetermined quantity of cleaning liquid, and an insertable unit comprising a cover plate for said cylinder, an air intake and conducting tube depending from said cover plate, an outlet in said cover plate, a deflector cone carried by the outlet in spaced relation, a skeleton supporting structure depending from the cover plate, and screens carried by said supporting structure, one above the other, the lower screen being associated with the inner end of the tube and the upper screen being disposed below the deflector cone.

1,664,671. LUBRICATING DEVICE FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. WILLIAM C. EISENGART, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Aug. 9, 1926. Serial No. 128,211. 2 Claims. (Cl. 261—107.)



1. A lubricating device comprising a supply tank, a hollow tubular member arranged centrally within the tank, a felt roll arranged within the tubular member and adapted to be maintained saturated with lubricant from said tank through openings in the tubular member adjacent the lower end thereof, said tubular member projecting above said tank and having a plurality of vent openings, a cap closing the upper end of the tubular member, a supply pipe leading from the tubular member, and a valve in said pipe and supported on said cap and controlling communication between the pipe and said member.

1,664,672. INDUCTION ELECTRICITY METER. ALBERT L. EMENS, La Fayette, Ind., assignor to Duncan Electric Manufacturing Company, La Fayette, Ind., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 12, 1926. Serial No. 94,229. Renewed Oct. 14, 1927. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—34.)

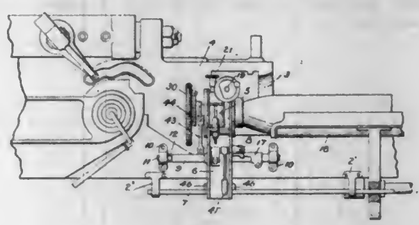


3. In an induction electricity meter, the combination with a supporting base having a forwardly projecting wall to constitute said base a chamber; of current and pressure electromagnets disposed within the chamber; a spindle rotatably supported upon said base in front of said magnets; a metallic disc upon said spindle and in inductive relation to said magnets; a cover seated upon the front portion of the aforesaid wall; and a second cover covering the first cover and surrounding said projecting wall and extending rearwardly beyond the place of engagement of the first cover with said forwardly projecting wall.

1,664,673. INDUCTION ELECTRICITY METER. ALBERT L. EMENS, La Fayette, Ind., assignor to Duncan Electric Manufacturing Company, La Fayette, Ind., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Dec. 24, 1926. Serial No. 156,880. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—34.)

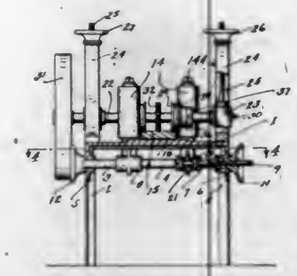
3. In an induction electricity meter, the combination with a supporting base having a forwardly projecting wall to constitute said base a chamber; of a terminal chamber connected with and extending outwardly from said wall; current and pressure electromagnets disposed within the chamber; a spindle rotatably supported upon said base in front of said magnets; a metallic disc upon said spindle and in inductive relation to said magnets; and a meter cover upon the base and having a skirt continuation which has a portion extending rearwardly beyond the front of said terminal chamber.

1,664,674. RESILIENT TIRE. EDGAR FREDRICK, New Orleans, La., assignor of one-half to Louis J. Le Blanc, Jefferson Parish, La. Filed Apr. 9, 1927. Serial No. 182,423. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—8.)



1. A split ring channel member for fitting inside a tire shoe, to hold the same with its beads engaged with the flanges of the rim, a closure plate for the channel member, a split ring plate, springs connecting the split ring plate with the closure plate, and link structures connecting the split ring plate with the assembled closure plate and channel member, said split ring plate adapted to fit in the outer portions of the tire shoe and being curved transversely for this purpose.

1,664,675. DUPLICATING. DAVID GESTETNER, London, England, assignor to D. Gestetner Limited, London, England. Filed June 15, 1923, Serial No. 645,708, and in Great Britain Oct. 27, 1922. 2 Claims. (Cl. 41—38.6.)

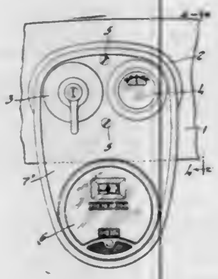


1. An improved flexible stencil sheet comprising a backing of yoshino or like paper and covered with a stencil layer having in it a white titanium pigment.

1,664,676. FUSE SETTER. RALPH L. GOETZENBERGER, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Mar. 13, 1925. Serial No. 15,389. 11 Claims. (Cl. 89—1.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.)

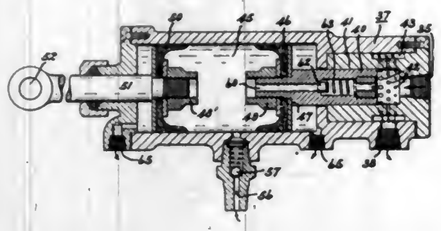
1. In combination with a gun including a pivoted loading tray, a tubular track mounted on the cradle thereof, a fuse setter housing provided with rollers for engaging opposite sides of the track, a range ring and a corrector ring within the housing, means for setting said rings independently, means for rotating them simultaneously, a latch mechanism carried by the housing for holding it in place on the track, said mechanism operable in unlatching through reverse rotation of said last named means, and a guide rod movable with the housing and retained by the cradle for preventing oscillation of the loading tray when the fuse setter is in the "on" position.

1,664,677. KALAMEIN MACHINE. CONRAD H. GREBE, Portland, Oreg., assignor of one-half to Leonard Mentrum, Portland, Oreg. Filed Apr. 18, 1927. Serial No. 184,712. 3 Claims. (Cl. 153—1.)



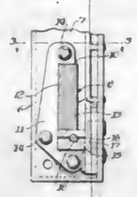
1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a table, leg supports for the table, cross slots disposed through the table bed, adjustable guide elements having roller guideways, disposed in the slots, operating elements for adjusting the guide elements relative to the slots, a cross shaft adjustably journaled upon the table element including bearings therefor, kalamein collars disposed upon the shaft, driving elements for said shaft and a feed roller mounted upon the shaft and adapted to being driven thereby.

1,664,678. PROCESS OF STABILIZING CHEMICAL SUBSTANCES. HANS G. GRIMM, Munich, Germany. Filed Apr. 29, 1924, Serial No. 709,014, and in Germany May 5, 1923. 4 Claims. (Cl. 8—5.)



3. The process of coloring fibrous material which comprises impregnating such material with a crystalline chemical compound and thereafter treating the impregnated material with a solution of a second crystalline compound to form, in and on the material, colored mixed crystals, one of said compounds being colored and the mixed crystals being the product of combining said colored compound, during the treating step, with another crystalline compound of the same chemical type and same crystal lattice structure.

1,664,679. INSTRUMENT PANEL. EDWIN A. GUSTAFSON, Flint, Mich., assignor to A C Spark Plug Company, Flint, Mich., a Company of Michigan. Filed Oct. 24, 1925. Serial No. 64,018. 2 Claims. (Cl. 180—90.)



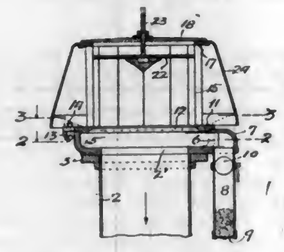
1. A method of adding an instrument to the instruments on an instrument board wherein the instruments are carried by a panel secured to the board, consisting in removing the panel, substituting therefor a panel having instrument openings corresponding in dimensions and center distance to those of the panel removed, and an additional opening symmetrically positioned for the instrument to be added, the circumference of said additional opening lying wholly below the center line of the first mentioned openings of the supplemental panel, and mounting the several instruments in their respective openings.

1,664,680. HYDRAULIC BRAKING SYSTEM FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. GEORGE E. A. HALLETT, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to General Motors Research Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 23, 1925. Serial No. 39,074. 9 Claims. (Cl. 188—152.)

1. In a hydraulic braking system for vehicles, in combination, a servo pump, a duct leading from the delivery to the intake of said pump, a by-pass valve in said duct, means for closing said valve and thereby causing a pressure to be built up at the pump delivery, a hydraulic brake cylinder, a pressure line leading from said pump delivery to said brake cylinder, and injection means operated concomitantly with the closing of said valve for injecting fluid into the pressure line to cause the pressure therein to be built up more suddenly.

1,664,681. DOOR LATCH. HARRY W. HANCOCK, Jackson, Mich. Filed Apr. 27, 1927. Serial No. 186,889. 7 Claims. (Cl. 292—337.)

5. A latch having, in combination, a casing, a bolt extending therethrough, and means mounted on said casing adjacent said bolt arranged to be moved transversely of said bolt to eliminate looseness between said bolt and said casing.



1,664,682. PUSH-BUTTON SWITCH. ALBERT H. HARDMAN, Wheeling, W. Va. Original application filed Aug. 26, 1926, Serial No. 131,718. Divided and this application filed Apr. 1, 1927. Serial No. 180,243. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—59.)

A push button switch for attachment to the rim of the steering wheel of an automobile, comprising a casing having a side to embrace the said rim and be secured thereto, a body of insulating material fitted into said casing at the side thereof, spaced binding posts mounted upon said body for the connection thereto of conducting wires, the said body at its side which is presented at said side of the casing being transversely formed to conform to the contour of said rim, the casing being inwardly tapered and the said body being correspondingly tapered to have frictional engagement therewith, a resilient leaf contact secured at one end to one of said posts, and having its other end located at the other post and normally spaced therefrom, the wall of the casing opposite the said side thereof having a slot therein, and a push button engaged in said slot and having a base portion engaged by said leaf contact.

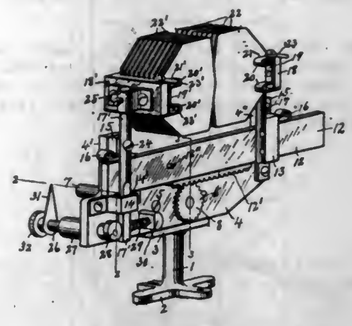
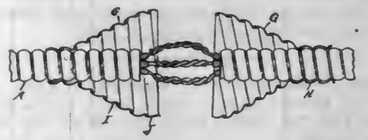
1,664,683. SUCTION AIR INTAKE. CHARLES GILBERT HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Centrifix Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 4, 1925. Serial No. 27,842. 2 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)



1. The hereindescribed suction intake comprising a bowl having a large central outlet in its bottom and having a small peripheral outlet in combination with a closed pocket depending from said peripheral outlet, and a multiple tangential tuyère of less diameter than said bowl, but of greater diameter than said central outlet, and resting upon said bowl.

1,664,684. DASH LIGHT. RALPH O. HELGEBY, Flint, Mich., assignor to A C Spark Plug Company, Flint, Mich., a Company of Michigan. Filed Mar. 14, 1927. Serial No. 175,275. 11 Claims. (Cl. 240—8.16.)



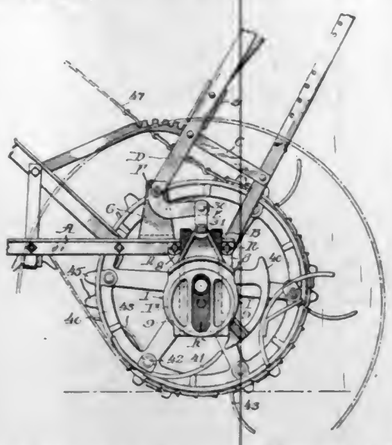
2. In a dash light, a casing for said light, a plurality of openings in the casing end, a transparent sheet inside said casing over said openings, said sheet softening the light, and a reflecting head on said casing to reflect the light rearwardly.

1,664,685. RADIOCONDENSER. WILLIAM L. HUDSON, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Aug. 18, 1925. Serial No. 50,921. 12 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.5.)

1. A variable condenser comprising opposed sets of plates having their adjacent edges tapered toward their longitudinal centers, one set being adjustable rectilinearly, and means for adjusting the other set in an arc of a circle across the path of the first-named set.

1,664,686. JUNCTION FITTING FOR METALLIC ARMORED ELECTRICAL CONDUCTORS. JOSEPH H. HUNTER, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Detroit Insulated Wire Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 13, 1925. Serial No. 22,851. 4 Claims. (Cl. 247—15.)

4. The combination with adjacent electrical flexible conduit sections formed of spirally wound strips, of a flexible coupling between said sections also formed of a spirally wound strip having portions engaging the spirals of said sections, the diameter of said coupling being greater than the diameter of the conduit sections whereby to provide an enlarged chamber.



1,664,687. CLAMP NAIL. CARL C. JENSEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 4, 1927. Serial No. 165,921. 1 Claim. (Cl. 85—11.)

A clamp nail for closing joints comprising a web provided along its side edges with a plurality of pairs of flanges, the flanges of each pair converging in the direction from the driven end of the nail toward the driving end thereof with the corresponding ends of the members of the several pairs the same distance apart and from the medial longitudinal line of the web through the entire length of the nail whereby the successive flanges will successively engage the members of the joint and the closing pressure will be applied to the members of the joint uniformly throughout the entire length of the joint and a single nail will close both ends of the joint.

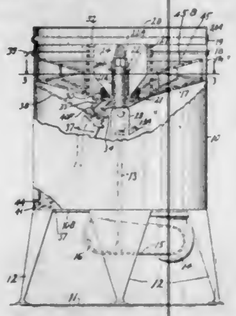
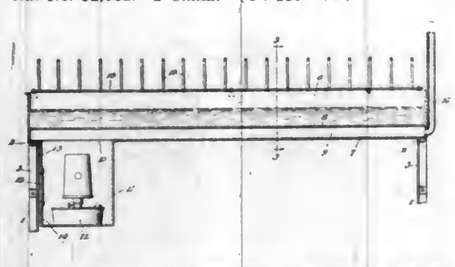
1,664,688. WINDROW HAY LOADER. LEE H. KAUPKE, Rock Island, Ill., assignor to Rock Island Plow Company, Rock Island, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 4, 1923. Serial No. 610,639. 14 Claims. (Cl. 56—358.)



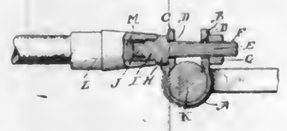
14. In an apparatus of the class described, a wheel bearing, a frame having vertically disposed guide means coacting with said wheel bearing, and adjustable frame-supporting means interposed between said frame and said wheel bearing.

1,664,689. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING CHAMOTTE MATERIALS. LUDWIG KERN, Baltimore, Md. Filed Oct. 13, 1925. Serial No. 62,307. 6 Claims. (Cl. 25—156.)



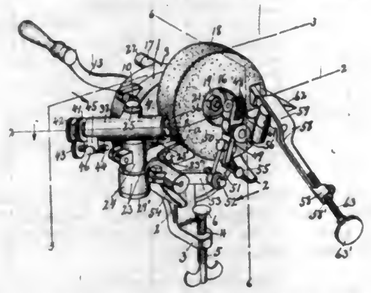
1. A process of producing grog material suitable for use in chamotte which consists in forming a plastic mass of kaolin, combustible organic matter, a binder, all being in a finely divided state, and water, burning such material at a strong glowing heat, and comminuting the product.

1,664,690. MACHINE FOR WASHING DISHES. SELMER A. KRAFT, St. Paul, and SAMUEL T. SHEPPARD, Mankato, Minn. Filed Nov. 19, 1926. Serial No. 149,308. 4 Claims. (Cl. 141—9.)



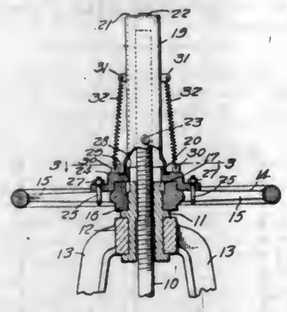
1. In a dish washing machine the combination with a cylindrical tub supported in spaced relation to a floor and having a motor, a vertical central main shaft in the tub and operative connection between said motor for rotating said shaft; of an auxiliary shaft alined with said main shaft and detachably keyed thereto, a tray with a funnel shaped bottom and a bearing for said auxiliary shaft fixed in the center thereof, said tray adapted to be removably suspended from the top edge of the tub, a rotatable hollow water spreading head removably attached to the said auxiliary shaft and having vertical outlet slits for expelling water, a removable cover for said tray and arranged over said head, a cylindrical wire cage adapted to be placed on the bottom of the tray and about said water head and a screen within said cage, said head having a downwardly opening cylindrical lower end communicating with its interior and normally submerged in water in the tray, said tray provided with an outlet pipe and valve means in same, and a sectional utensil holding frame adapted to be laid on the sloping bottom of the tray intermediate said wire cage and the perimeter of the tray.

1,664,691. WATERING TROUGH. JOHN T. LANGEWISCH, Sweet Springs, Mo. Filed Mar. 3, 1926. Serial No. 92,061. 1 Claim. (Cl. 119—73.)



A device of the character described comprising a support having end frames each consisting of a cross bar provided with depending supporting legs, elongated platform members extending between said frames and secured to their cross bars in spaced relation to each other, and a trough resting upon the cross bars of said end frames and fitting snugly between said platform members, said trough being removable from the end frames and held against sliding movement longitudinally of their cross bars by engagement with said platform members.

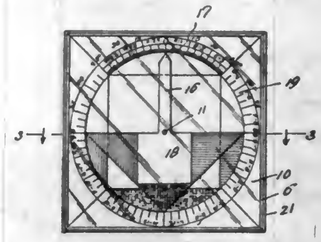
1,664,692. COUPLING FOR BATTERY TERMINALS. FRED W. LEUTHESSER, Oak Park, Ill. Filed Mar. 7, 1925. Serial No. 13,689. 1 Claim. (Cl. 73—259.)



A coupling of the character described comprising a clamping loop terminating in spaced jaws provided with alined bores, a bolt entered transversely through the bores in both jaws and projecting at each end from the proximate jaw and threaded one one of its projecting ends, a clamping nut threaded onto said projecting end and bearing against the outer face of the proximate jaw and serving to draw up the clamping loop, and a plurality of threaded nipples of different diameters integrally formed on the opposite projecting end of the bolt in axially alined relation to one another and to the bolt, the outermost nipple being of a smaller diameter than the one next succeeding and the bolt being shouldered behind the nipple to abut against the outer face of the proximate jaw so as to be non-rotatable with respect to said jaw, when in abutting relation, in combination with a cable having on its end an inwardly extending socket threaded to engage with one of the nipples, substantially as described.

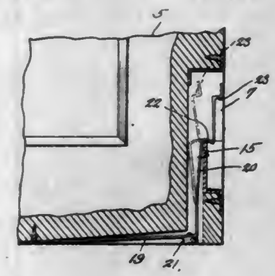
1,664,693. ROTARY GRINDER. JAMES HENRY LITTLER, Manlius, N. Y., assignor to S. Cheney & Son, Manlius, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 29, 1925. Serial No. 5,603. 4 Claims. (Cl. 51—3.)

4. In a grinding machine of the character described, a gear case, a driving shaft journaled on the gear case, means for rotating said shaft, separate driven shafts journaled on the gear case, means for transmitting rotary motion from the driving shaft to both of the driven shafts, a grinding wheel secured to one of the driven shafts, a bracket mounted on the gear case, an additional shaft journaled on the bracket, means for transmitting rotary motion from the other driven shaft to said additional shaft, a bearing member mounted on the bracket, a rotary work-holder journaled in the bearing member, and means for transmitting rotary motion from said additional shaft to the work-holder, said bracket and parts carried thereby being adjustable about the axis of the second-named driven shaft to accommodate the work-holder to grinding wheels of different diameters.



1,664,694. VALVE-STEM PROTECTOR. ROBERT L. LOVVORN, Gadsden, Ala. Filed May 31, 1927. Serial No. 195,344. 4 Claims. (Cl. 251—55.)

1. A protector for longitudinally movable valve stems, comprising a cap adapted to house a portion of a valve stem therein, an operating member for moving said stem, and tension elements connecting said cap with said operating member.



1,664,695. NOVELTY DEVICE. EDWIN G. MASTERS, Anderson, Ind. Filed May 5, 1926. Serial No. 106,974. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—215.)

1. A novelty device of the class described including a back plate having an indenture and provided wtih marginal flanges formed to overhang the plate, a frame held by the flanges, a pin having one pointed end and one blunt end, an indicating member rotatable on the pin, and a transparency engaged by the flanges bearing against the blunt end of the pin to hold the pointed end in the indenture.

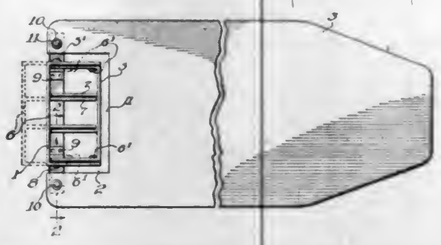
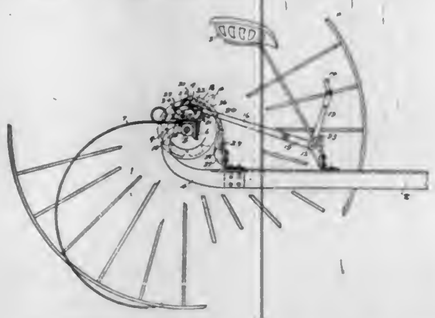
1,664,696. COMBINATION FASTENER. JOHN H. MAURER, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Mar. 4, 1927. Serial No. 172,733. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—87.)



In a door check of the class described, a body portion formed of spring material, an arm at one end of the body portion, said arm having offset portions defining shoulders, and means cooperating with the shoulders for holding the body portion in its inactive position.

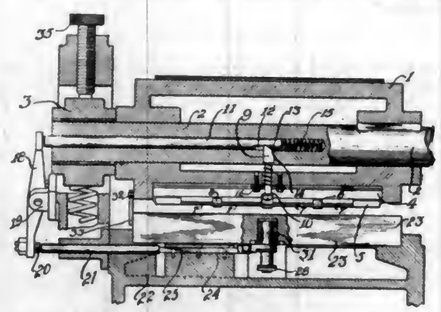
1,664,697. CIRCUIT-CONTROLLING DEVICE. HENRY S. MICKS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 16, 1927. Serial No. 168,657. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—39.)



In a lighting circuit controlling device, the combination with the alarm hammer operating shaft of an alarm clock, a socket switch mounted on the back of the alarm clock and including a pull chain, and a finger formed on the shaft and having a notch formed therein adapted to receive the outer end portion of the pull chain for operatively connecting the pull chain to the shaft.

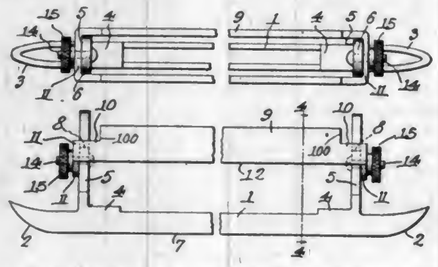
1,664,698. FIREPROOF IRON STAND. ROBERT A. MORRISON and FRANKLIN L. OSWALD, Portland, Oreg. Filed Sept. 7, 1926. Serial No. 133,947. 1 Claim. (Cl. 68—27.)

The combination with an ironing board having a recess therein, of a collapsible metal iron stand arranged in said recess and comprising a pair of sections having substantially parallel fingers extending longitudinally of the board, the fingers of one section being slidable longitudinally relative to those of the other section.



1,664,699. HAYRAKE. WALTER F. MOTTIER, El Campo, Tex. Filed Sept. 18, 1920. Serial No. 411,178. 5 Claims. (Cl. 56—392.)

1. The combination with a self-dump hay rake having a frame, ground wheels, a rake head, and means for locking the rake head to rotate with the wheels, of means for controlling the action of the locking means comprising a member having connection thereto and movably mounted on the rake head, means under the control of the operator for effecting an initial movement of said member whereby the locking connection is permitted to be established between the rake head and the wheels through the load carried by the rake head, said last mentioned means including a manual lever and a link connected to said lever and adapted to actuate said member and other means pivotally mounted relative to the frame and acting as a guide to prevent return movement of the member until the rake head has turned with the wheels through a predetermined distance, said guide thereafter also acting to prevent the locking of the rake head with the wheels until the rake head has returned to original position.



1,664,700. PAPER-GRIPPING DEVICE FOR PLATE PRINTERS. CARL F. NAYER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Fulton Machine Co., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 6, 1927. Serial No. 181,292. 5 Claims. (Cl. 101—409.)

1. In a printing machine, a roll, a printing plate movable with respect to said roll, means for actuating said printing plate, means on said roll for gripping a sheet of paper, a yieldingly actuated plunger slidably supported in said roll and connected to said gripping means, a rod in said roll for coaction with said plunger, a spring for projecting said rod in one direction for depressing said plunger, and means actuated by the driving means of the printing plate for actuating said rod for releasing said plunger.

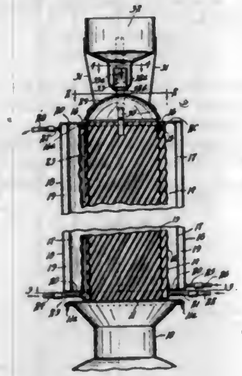
1,664,701. MASONRY-JOINTING TOOL. NATHANIEL PAUL O'NEAL, Hope, Ark. Filed July 2, 1927. Serial No. 203,200. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—138.)

1. In a device of the class described, a tool comprising a body provided with standards, a loop-shaped handle enclosing the standards, and means for holding the handle on the standards, the handle being cut away at its sides and at its ends to form clearance openings adjacent to the standards.

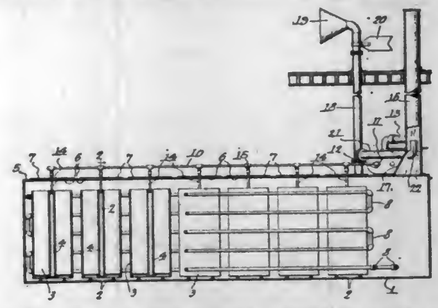
1,664,702. MILK-CAN COOLER. GLENN M. OSBORN, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Oct. 25, 1926. Serial No. 144,146. 3 Claims. (Cl. 62—91.)



1. In a cooler for milk cans, the combination of two spaced apart sheets of flexible material sewed together on the edges to form a water-holding bag; a filling spout secured on one end of said bag; holes through said bag to allow handles to pass therethrough; eyelets in or near the bottom and sides of said bag; rings in the bottom eyelets; a bumper rope through said bottom rings and a cord secured to the ends of said rope and passed through the said eyelets at the sides of said bag to draw the said bag around the milk can.

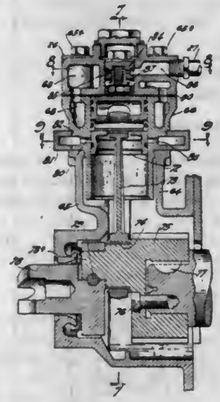
1,664,703. MINING MACHINE. THOMAS E. PRAY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Goodman Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 3, 1921, Serial No. 489,518. Renewed Sept. 1, 1927. 2 Claims. (262—30.)

1. In a mining machine, an elongated body portion having a cutting element extending laterally therefrom, a centrally disposed shoe extending longitudinally of the body portion and forming the base plate upon which the machine is supported, and means for tilting said shoe longitudinally with respect to the body portion, comprising a vertically-disposed spindle connected with said shoe, a gear carried by the machine frame and threaded on said spindle, and a shaft arranged transversely of the machine having operative connection with said gear.



1,664,704. CREAM COOLER. NAPOLEON RAMGREN, Ogilvie, Minn. Filed June 19, 1926. Serial No. 117,210. 6 Claims. (Cl. 257—180.)

3. A cream or liquid cooling apparatus having in combination, a receptacle for liquid having a distributing opening at its bottom, a downwardly flaring member receiving said liquid on its convex surface and having a lower terminal edge, a pair of substantially concentric spaced cylinders forming a narrow chamber therebetween, a partition between said cylinders adjacent the tops thereof forming a liquid receiving trough, said terminal edge being spaced over and aligned with said trough, said trough having apertures at each side for distributing the liquid to be cooled to the outer walls of said chamber respectively, and means for circulating a cooling medium through said chamber.



1,664,705. ICE-MAKING APPARATUS. JOSEPH BERTIN ROCHELLE, Hohen Solms, La. Filed Nov. 5, 1924. Serial No. 747,935. 1 Claim. (Cl. 62—160.)

In an ice-making machine, a plurality of cans each having a centrally disposed tube of small diameter compared with the cross sectional area of the can, the tube extending from the bottom to the top of the can and being open at both ends, a brine tank wherein the cans are located, means for supporting the cans in spaced relation to the bottom of the tank, a suction pipe extended downwardly into the upper end of each tube and spaced about its entire periphery from the inner surface of the tube, the suction pipe terminating at a point closely adjacent to the top of the tube, and means for supporting the pipes detachably, independently of, and at a point above the tubes.

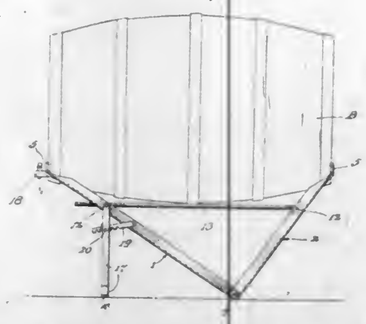
1,664,706. AIR PUMP FOR BRAKE SYSTEMS. ERIC OLIE SCHJOLIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Nov. 24, 1924, Serial No. 751,755. Divided and this application filed July 2, 1926. Serial No. 120,110. 4 Claims. (Cl. 303—10.)



2. In a road motor vehicle, the combination of an engine for propelling the vehicle and having driving connections for driving parts of the engine from the crank shaft of the engine, a casing for housing said driving parts and having an integral tubular extension, an air pump comprising a cylinder and a piston with the cylinder mounted in said tubular extension, a piston rod connected to said piston, and an extension on said crank shaft for driving said piston.

1,664,707. BARREL RACK. AUGUST G. SCHOESSLER, Reliance, S. Dak. Filed Mar. 17, 1926. Serial No. 95,362. 3 Claims. (Cl. 248—56.)

1. A barrel rack comprising barrel-engaging sections each including side bars and a cross bar connecting its side bars, the side bars of one section having their inner ends pivotally connected with the side bars of the other section and each section having outer ends of its side bars provided with hooks for engaging opposite ends of a barrel, the pivotally connected ends of said side bars constituting a fulcrum for the rack, a draw rod extending through alined openings formed in the cross bars of said sections and having one end formed with a head to engage the cross bar of one section and its other end portion threaded, a nut upon the threaded portion of said rod for engaging the cross bar through which the threaded end portion of the rod passes and drawing said sections towards each other and retaining the hooked ends of their side bars in gripping engagement with a barrel, and a prop carried by the side bars of one section for supporting the rack at a desired angle of inclination.

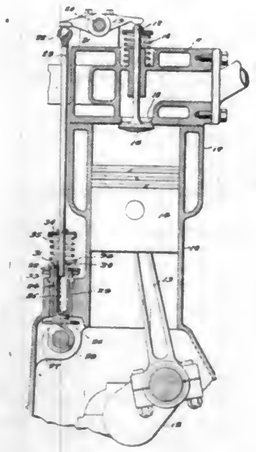
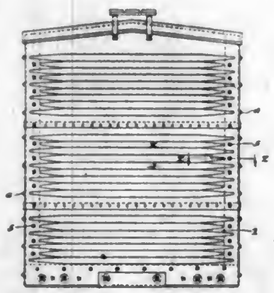
1,664,708. BRUSH FOR GENERATORS, ETC. ARTHUR A. SCHUPP, Saginaw, Mich., assignor to Fredericksen Company, Saginaw, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 703,779. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—325.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a brush made of a cast metal alloy consisting of metallic lead and metallic copper in substantially equal proportions.



1,664,709. POLISH-ROD CLAMP. THOMAS SEVERNS, Long Beach, and RALPH R. HALL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 27, 1925. Serial No. 52,940. 4 Claims. (Cl. 255—18.)

1. A polish rod clamp comprising: a J-shaped body having a stationary jaw providing a semi-cylindrical channel and having a socket in the curved portion of the body; a movable jaw provided with a head adapted to fulcrum in said socket and having a semi-cylindrical channel; a clamp means adapted to engage said stationary and movable jaws to clamp said jaws on a polish rod, said channels receiving said polish rod; and a hinge pin secured in said body and extending through said head.



1,664,710. VALVE-LASH-COMPENSATING DEVICE. CHARLES R. SHORT, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to General Motors Research Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 16, 1926. Serial No. 102,522. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—90.)

6. In a valve operating means, an operating member comprising a telescoping rod and tappet interposed between the valve and valve operating shaft, a clutch supported by the tappet adapted to lock the tappet to the rod during the valve opening stroke, a spring bearing upon said clutch and rod, said spring exerting its elastic force to unlock the clutch and extend said telescoping rod and tappet during the valve closing stroke and a stationary trip to hold the clutch unlocked when the operating member is fully extended.

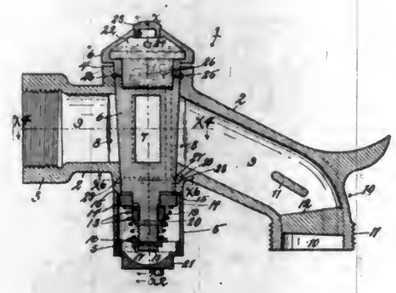
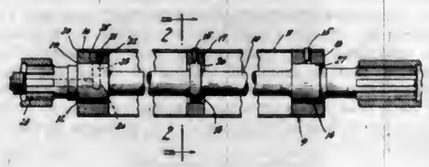
1,664,711. SHEET-METAL END FOR RAILWAY CARS. VINTON E. SISSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Union Metal Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 18, 1924. Serial No. 726,816, and in Canada May 19, 1924. 16 Claims. (Cl. 105—410.)



1. A metal panel for car ends having a corrugation formed therein with its opposite ends merging into the panel adjacent the panel ends, and another corrugation formed therein with its opposite ends merging into the panel at a distance from the panel ends.

1,664,712. TANK-TRUCK FAUCET. GROVER B. STANLEY, Palmdale, Calif. Filed Apr. 27, 1922. Serial No. 556,913. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—93.)



The faucet set forth comprising a casing having a passage therethrough; a tapered plug in said casing having a passage therethrough that is normally transverse to the passage through the casing when the plug is in a fully closed position; a handle for actuating said plug to move the passage therethrough into register with the passage through said casing; a chamber in said plug adapted to contain a lubricant; ports in said plug leading from said chamber, an upper annular channel communicating with said ports, an annular channel in the lower end of said plug, longitudinal channels formed in said plug and casing connecting the said upper and lower channels and means for with-holding sediment from said channels.

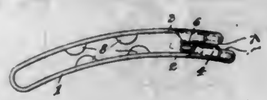
1,664,713. PROPELLER SHAFT. WILLIAM R. STRICKLAND, Detroit, Mich., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 21, 1927. Serial No. 169,966. 8 Claims. (Cl. 64—29.)

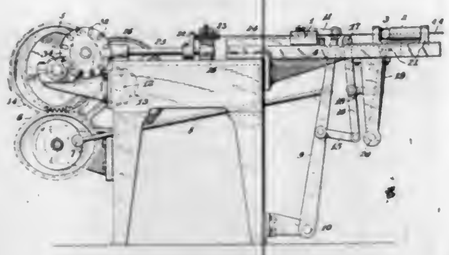
1. A drive shaft for motor vehicles, comprising an inner shaft, a plurality of enlargements on said shaft, an outer shaft spaced from said inner shaft, and means on said outer shaft engaging said enlargements.

1,664,714. FAUCET. GEORGE R. UHL, Kansas City, Kans. Filed Apr. 25, 1927. Serial No. 186,318. 5 Claims. (Cl. 251—43.)



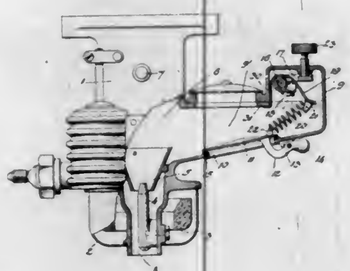
1. In a device of the character described, a body portion, a stationary plug therein having a passage, a cap on the body portion, a stem extending through the passage of said plug, a sleeve rigid with the stem, a rotatable plug in the cap, bearing a non-rotatable but sliding relation to said sleeve, means for turning the rotatable plug, and means for effecting slidable movement of the stem as it turns with the rotatable plug, to cause the said sleeve to abut and form a water-tight joint with the opposite end of the stationary plug.

1,664,715. PUMP DRAIN. MARK WALTON, Ullin, Ill., assignor of one-half to John Scanlin, Ullin, Ill. Filed May 23, 1927. Serial No. 193,681. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—221.)



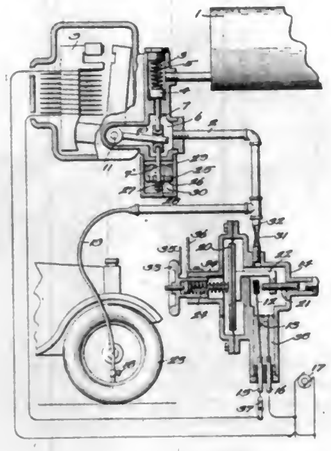
1. The combination with a pump cylinder, of an outlet pipe leading therefrom, an inlet pipe, a barrel between the cylinder and inlet pipe, a tube fixed in the wall of the barrel and having its respective ends extended into the inlet and outlet pipes.

1,664,716. LINGERIE CLASP. PETER E. WIBERG, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Art Wire and Stamping Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 17, 1926. Serial No. 102,622. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—259.)



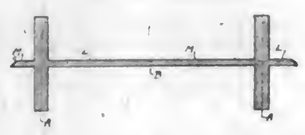
1. A lingerie clasp including: a member of sheet material bent back upon itself to form two legs, and complementary fastening and releasing means at the free ends thereof consisting of a resilient tongue and groove extending lengthwise of the legs to be latched together by pressing the ends of the legs sufficiently toward each other to cause engagement between said tongue and groove, and said tongue and groove also constituting a slidable connection, which responds to bending stresses imparted to the legs transversely of their length, in a direction substantially parallel to the length of the legs while retaining latching engagement with each other.

1,664,717. WIRE FEEDING AND CUTTING MACHINE. PETER E. WIBERG, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Art Wire and Stamping Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 19, 1926. Serial No. 117,020. 2 Claims. (Cl. 140—147.)



1. A wire feeding and straightening machine, including a reciprocating wire gripping member to intermittently grip and feed wire, a reciprocatory wire spinner, a crank and connections to effect reciprocation of the member and spinner, the latter at a lesser speed than the former, and transmission means to drive the crank at a variable speed to compensate for the variable throw of the crank, whereby, during the feeding stroke, the wire gripping member moves at a substantially uniform speed and the spinner also moves at a substantially uniform speed but different from that of the gripping member.

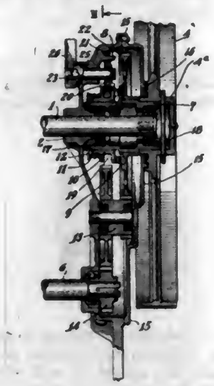
1,664,718. CARBURETOR. CHARLES E. WILLIAMS, Detroit, Mich., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 8, 1920. Serial No. 429,223. 5 Claims. (Cl. 261—39.)



4. In a carburetor having a main air passage and an auxiliary air passage, a valve for said auxiliary air passage, controlling means for said valve including a thermostatic arm within the carburetor casing for controlling the flow of air through said auxiliary air passage, means for adjusting said arm, a lever having a lost motion connection with said controlling means, and manually operated means connected to said lever for controlling said valve independently of said controlling means, substantially as shown and described.

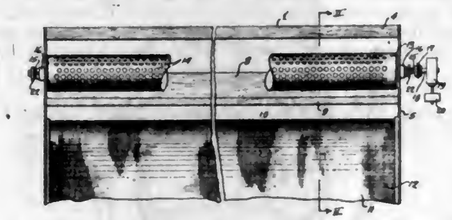
1,664,719. APPARATUS FOR SUPPLYING AIR UNDER PRESSURE. JOE C. WOODFORD, Oskaloosa, Iowa. Filed June 3, 1926. Serial No. 113,591. 10 Claims. (Cl. 50—10.)

1. The combination with a source of air under pressure; of piping through which air is conveyed from said source to a receiver; a valve between said source and piping, constrained to move in a closing direction and having means for retarding its closing movement; and mechanism in controlling relation to the valve and constrained to effect an opening adjustment of the valve and connected with said piping and operable by air admitted thereto from the piping to delay the valve opening effect of said mechanism when the valve is closing, said mechanism effecting opening adjustment of the valve upon sufficient reduction of the pressure of the air admitted thereto.



1,664,720. THERMOELECTRIC GENERATOR. CHARLES W. WOODRUFF, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,937. 16 Claims. (Cl. 136—4.)

1. Elements of a thermo-electric generator comprising a homogeneous strip of base metal having different metals diffused therethrough in different portions thereof, said strip being relatively wide at alternate junctions of unlike portions and having narrow sections intermediate the wide junctions.



1,664,721. LAWN MOWER. CHARLES C. WORTHINGTON, Dunfield, N. J. Filed Apr. 8, 1921. Serial No. 459,726. 18 Claims. (Cl. 56—249.)

1. In a lawn mower, a frame supporting a rotary cutter, a main hub journalled in said frame, a ground wheel having a hub ring removably secured to said main hub and a gear train connecting said main hub to the cutter, including an overrunning ratchet clutch couple comprising two clutch members and a clutch spring all mounted on said main hub.

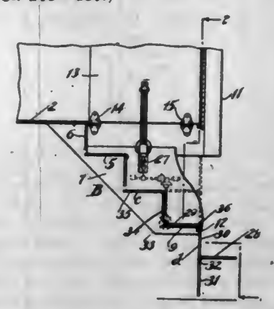
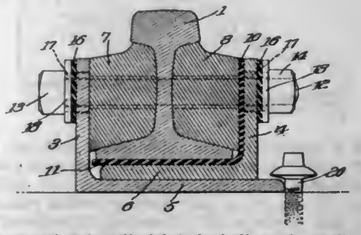
1,664,722. CYLINDER PAPER-MAKING MACHINE. ARTHUR T. YODER, Mosinee, Wis. Filed May 27, 1926. Serial No. 111,953. 2 Claims. (Cl. 92—48.)



1. In a cylinder paper machine, a vat for the cylinder mold having a transverse partition terminating below the side walls of said vat and in front of said mold and a perforated drum mounted transversely of said vat completely filling the space between the top of said partition and the top of the vat side walls, whereby all of the stock must pass through said perforated drum in its flow to the cylinder mold.

1,664,723. DEGASIFICATION OF COAL. NIELS YOUNG, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed Oct. 30, 1919, Serial No. 334,628, and in Germany Nov. 1, 1918. 2 Claims. (Cl. 202—8.)



1. The process which consists in moving coal continuously into a treatment chamber at one portion thereof and out of such chamber at another portion thereof, heating the coal within said chamber, under agitation and under exclusion of air, to temperatures of approximately from 500° to 550° centigrade, thereby producing sub-coke together with primary tar and high grade fuel gas, and crushing such sub-coke within said chamber during the progress of said heating step.

1,664,724. STAIRS. GEORGE F. ZAUN, San Bernardino, Calif. Filed May 5, 1926. Serial No. 106,943. 3 Claims. (Cl. 105—430.)

2. In a device of the character disclosed, a stairway, an auxiliary stairway having a tread adapted to rest when in one position upon the tread of the first stairway, and to be swung from said first position to a position substantially vertical with relation to the tread of the first stairway.

1,664,725. INSULATED RAIL JOINT. RANSLOE BOONE ARNOTT, Reading, Pa. Filed June 16, 1926. Serial No. 116,292. 4 Claims. (Cl. 238—158.)

1. An insulated rail joint including the rails, oppositely positioned angle bar members for joining the rail ends, insulating members interposed between said angle bars and the rail ends, bolts for securing the angle bars in position, said bolts being insulated from said bars and the angle bar at least at one side of said joint structure being of a form and arrangement to prohibit spiking to the ties.

1,664,726. REMOVABLE BRIDGEWORK. HENRY A. ADLER, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 23, 1922. Serial No. 602,877. 4 Claims. (Cl. 32—12.)

1. A dental attachment for movable removable bridgework comprising a jacket member having positioned a teat receptacle centrally thereon, a linking member permanently mounted on a removable bridge denture to engage within the jacket member, a separate belly-shaped leaf spring tensioning element adapted to be removably attached to the linking member and provided with a protuberance or teat to engage within the said teat receptacle on the jacket member, and a means for securing the spring tensioning element to the linking member.

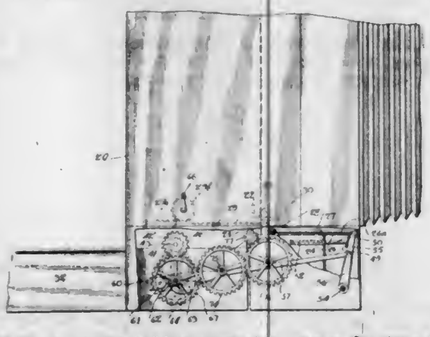
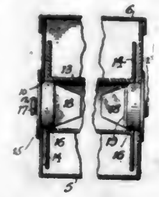
1,664,727. MANIFOLD HEATER. LEONARD E. ASKE, Duluth, Minn. Filed Mar. 9, 1925. Serial No. 14,152. 5 Claims. (Cl. 123—122.)



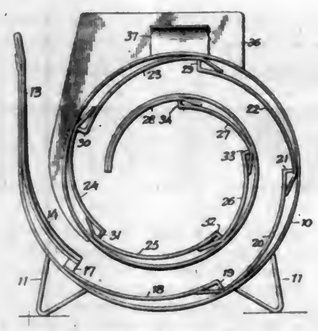
1. In a manifold heater, the combination with an engine block, an exhaust manifold and an intake manifold, said manifolds being spaced from said block for a portion of their lengths intermediate of their ends, of a cover adapted to overlap a portion of the outer side walls of said manifolds, said cover being provided with end wings adapted to extend between said manifolds to the opposing side wall of said block, the upper and lower edges of said wings being adapted to conform closely to the contour of the lower side of said exhaust manifold and to the upper side of said intake manifold respectively, and a back panel adapted to fill the space between said block and the opposing side walls of said manifolds.

1,664,728. SPORT SHOE. ALLEN BEHR, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 13, 1927. Serial No. 191,069. 2 Claims. (Cl. 36—59.)



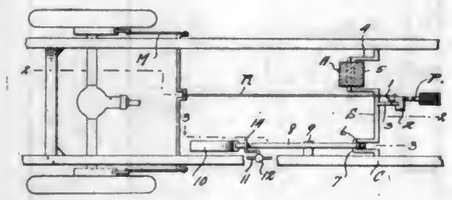
1. In a sport shoe, the combination with an elastic sole of a shoe, said sole being provided with elongated slots extending transversely across said sole, bridges at the ends of said slots, said slots extending under said bridges, and twisted cords of loose fibrous material placed at the bottom of said slots, the ends of said cords extending under said bridges to the outer edges of said sole.

1,664,729. PHOTOGRAPHING AND DEVELOPING APPARATUS. GEORGE C. BEIDLER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Oct. 24, 1925. Serial No. 64,560. 18 Claims. (Cl. 95—90.5.)



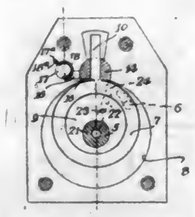
1. In a photographing apparatus, means for transferring a film from a developer receptacle to a receiver for the film, including mechanically operated means for applying an initial coating of fixing fluid to the film while in transit, and removing said film from said fixing fluid after the initial coating.

1,664,730. FILM-ROLL BOX AND MOUNTING. GEORGE C. BEIDLER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Apr. 30, 1926. Serial No. 105,809. 4 Claims. (Cl. 206—52.)



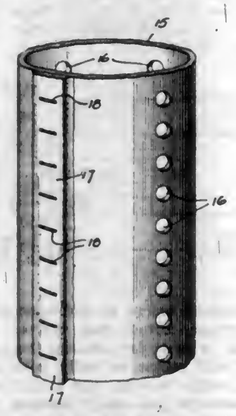
1. In a film roll box and mounting, a box having apertures in its ends, closures for the ends having trunnions projecting through the apertures and extending beyond the inner walls of the box, a roll having axial trunnion receiving openings, and guides carried by the trunnions adapted to extend into said openings for engaging the walls thereof and centering the roll with respect to the trunnions.

1,664,731. COIL FILM DEVELOPER. GEORGE C. BEIDLER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed May 8, 1926. Serial No. 107,798. 8 Claims. (Cl. 95—94.)



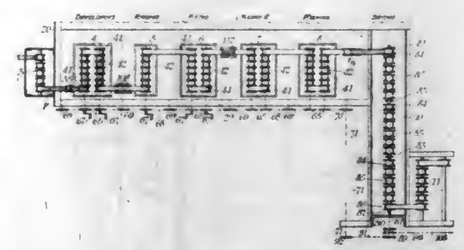
1. In a film developing apparatus, a coil-form film holder having rigid convolutions to guide film when the free advancing end of the film is pushed into it edgewise, and means at locations within the coil for holding the film out of engagement with the structure forming the convolutions.

1,664,732. BRAKE-OPERATING MECHANISM. HERBERT BRODIE, Detroit, Mich., assignor of one-half to Albert R. Saunders, Detroit, Mich. Filed Oct. 23, 1926. Serial No. 143,672. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—82.)



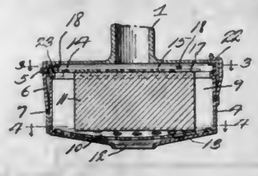
In combination with a vehicle having a brake mechanism including a brake operating lever, a crank shaft journaled upon the vehicle and having spaced crank arms, one of which is adapted to encounter the brake operating lever, a weighted lever pivoted upon the vehicle and having one end operatively engaging with another of the crank arms, and a seat post slidably mounted upon the vehicle and resting upon the third crank arm.

1,664,733. COMPRESSOR. JUSTUS BRAUN, Nuremberg, Germany. Filed Dec. 7, 1922, Serial No. 605,483, and in Germany Mar. 8, 1922. 5 Claims. (Cl. 230—147.)



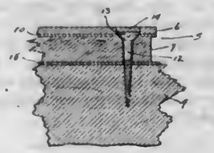
1. A rotary compressor, comprising in combination a casing, a driving shaft, an annular piston in said casing, an eccentric on said driving shaft for displacing said piston, a swivel block rotatably mounted in said casing, said swivel block having a guide slot, an upwardly extending slide on said annular piston, said slide engaging in said guide slot so as to oscillate the swivel block during the displacement of the piston, an inlet port in the casing capable of being covered by the side of the piston when the latter is in the dead-centre position of an outlet port in the casing capable of being obstructed by the swivel block as and for the purposes set forth.

1,664,734. PERFORATED CASING. DAVID N. BRUNDY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Feb. 2, 1926. Serial No. 85,544. 1 Claim. (Cl. 166—5.)



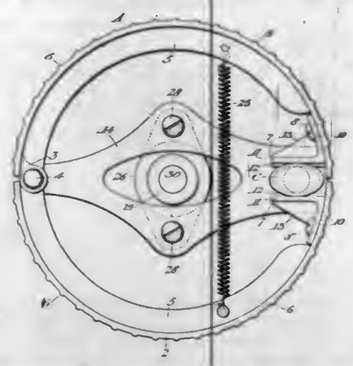
A well casing having perforations therein, strips extending longitudinally of the casing and of curved form in cross section to conform to the outer curvature of the casing, said strips fixedly secured to the outer wall of the casing in covering relation to the openings so as to reinforce the casing around the openings, and having transversely extending slots spaced apart to correspond with the spacing of the casing openings and positioned in registration with the openings, said slots being of V shaped form in cross section with their greatest widths at the inner side of the strips and terminating at the outer sides of the strips in narrow slots so as to preclude the passage of sand into the casing and prevent clogging of the slots with sand.

1,664,735. FILM-TREATING APPARATUS. JOHN G. CAPSTAFF, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 18, 1925, Serial No. 31,096. Renewed Sept. 7, 1927. 6 Claims. (Cl. 95—94.)



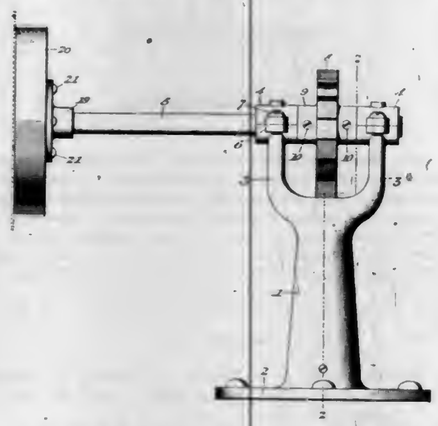
1. A unit intended for use in apparatus for the continuous treatment of motion picture film and comprising an open frame, means on said frame whereby it may be removably supported in a tank, a shaft journalled in the upper part of said frame, a series of rollers free to turn independently on said shaft, a sprocket rigid with said shaft, vertical guide members in said frame, a weighted support adapted to slide on said guide members, a shaft in said support and a series of rollers free to turn independently on said shaft.

1,664,736. SOAP BOX. ISAAC P. CREAMER and FREDERICK JOSEPH, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 18, 1926. Serial No. 142,451. 2 Claims. (Cl. 293—83.)



1. A soap box of the character described comprising a cover having a water intake port therein, a body member carried by said cover, a disc disposed within the body member and having perforations therein, an inwardly extending bead carried by the body member adjacent its upper end, spaced lugs carried by said body member and extending inwardly above the bead, a perforated disc having extensions, said extensions engaging the upper side of the bead and frictionally held beneath the lugs.

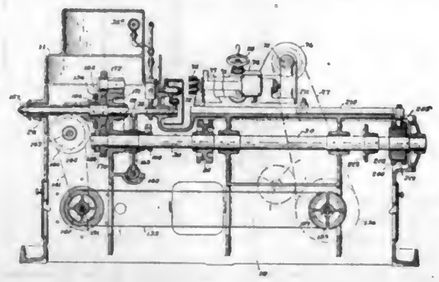
1,664,737. SURFACE BLOCK. CLIFFORD A. CUTLER, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Aug. 2, 1926. Serial No. 120,511. 2 Claims. (Cl. 20—75.)



1. A surface block comprising a surface portion of choice wood, a base of common wood, and a piece of fabric arranged between the surface portion and the base, the surface portion being secured to the fabric by means of adhesive material applied over its entire under surface and the base being secured to the fabric by means of interspaced strips of adhesive material.

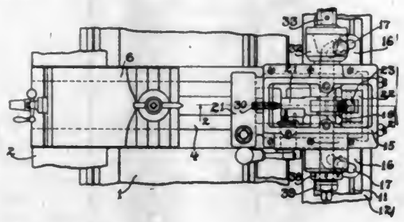
1,664,738. EXPANSIBLE BOX-BAND HOLDER FOR STRIPPING MACHINES. IRVING A. DELINE, Denver, Colo. Filed Feb. 24, 1927. Serial No. 170,574. 7 Claims. (Cl. 93—54.)

1. In mechanism of the character described, a ring-like holder comprising two half round sections having a hinge connection, projections on the free ends of said sections which are parallel and spaced from each other, a rotary spreader supported between said projections and a coil spring connecting the sections to resist the spreading movement.



1,664,739. BOX HOLDER TO FACILITATE THE HAND-STRIPPING OPERATION IN THE PRODUCTION OF PASTEBOARD BOXES. IRVING A. DELINE, Denver, Colo. Filed Feb. 24, 1927. Serial No. 170,575. 2 Claims. (Cl. 93—54.)

1. In a device of the character described, a standard having an axial hole extending through the same, a shaft mounted in the upper end of said standard having a ratchet wheel rigidly mounted thereon, a spring-actuated pawl in said axial hole in engagement with the ratchet wheel, and a box-receiving form removably secured upon on end of said shaft.

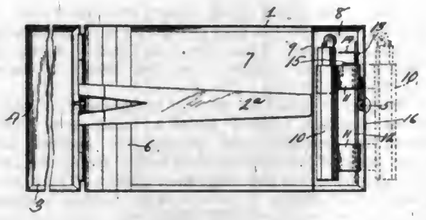


1,664,740. AUTOMATIC MULTIPLE-SPINDLE MILLING LATHE. JOHN A. DOANE, Hartford, Conn., assignor to Pratt & Whitney Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 23, 1921. Serial No. 494,680. Renewed Sept. 13, 1927. 30 Claims. (Cl. 10—154.)

5. In a milling machine, the combination of a plurality of rotatable work spindles, a rotatable spindle for a thread milling cutter, means for effecting relative movement to bring about working relationship between the cutter and each of the spindles successively, means for rotating the work spindles when in operative position relative to the cutter, means for relatively moving said cutter and work spindles axially of the operative work spindle in timed relation to each other, and means whereby the rotative movement of each spindle is discontinued after it has rotated through approximately one revolution.

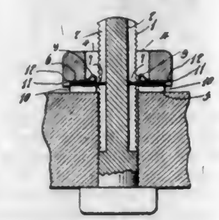
30. A milling machine comprising in combination, a base, a work supporting and rotating spindle thereon, a cutter support slidable on said base toward and from said spindle in a direction parallel to said spindle axis, a second slide mounted on said first slide adapted to move transversely of said first slide, a cutter on said second slide, cam operated means to move said slides along said base, cam operated means to move said second slide relative to said first slide, said slides moving in timed relation to each other, and a cam operating shaft adapted also to drive said spindle in timed relation with said cams.

1,664,741. RELIEVING ATTACHMENT. JAMES W. DURKEE, Hartford, Conn., assignor to Pratt & Whitney Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 10, 1925. Serial No. 1,631. 8 Claims. (Cl. 82—19.)



1. A relieving attachment for lathes comprising in combination, a carriage, a tool slide thereon, a rotary cam on said carriage, a shaft for rotating the cam, a cam follower on said slide means normally holding the follower in engagement with the cam, and a friction clutch comprising two members, one clutch member being attached to the carriage whereby it is held from rotation and the other attached to the cam rotating shaft and adapted to rotate therewith.

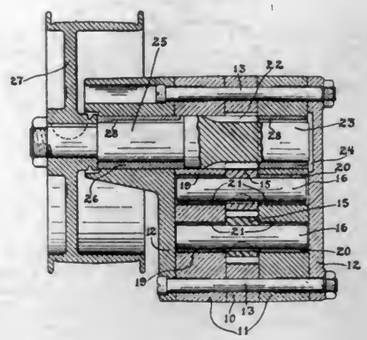
1,664,742. METHOD OF FINISHING LEATHER. FERDINAND WYCLIFFE ELLINGTON, Jamaica, N. Y. Filed Aug. 27, 1926. Serial No. 132,038. 7 Claims. (Cl. 41—37.)



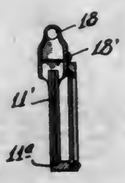
1. The process of finishing leather which consists in applying to its surface a size of the character described in the presence of linseed oil to retard its drying properties substantially free from pigment such as by a separate application therewith, and then covering said surface with a gilt.

1,664,743. CIGARETTE CASE. IRVEL J. GRIGNON, Duluth, Minn. Filed Nov. 5, 1925. Serial No. 67,005. 3 Claims. (Cl. 67—7.1.)

1. A lighter case and mounting therefor comprising hingedly connected sections, fastening means for the free ends of said sections, a hingedly mounted lighter within a chamber of one of said sections adjacent its free end, spring means for normally forcing said lighter outwardly to a position outside and beyond the end of the section to which it is hingedly connected, upon the release of a fastending means, said sections when in closed position forming means for maintaining the lighter within the chamber of one of the sections against the action of the spring means.



1,664,744. NUT LOCK. CARL F. HARTKOPF, Georgetown, Ill. Filed Mar. 3, 1927. Serial No. 172,892. 3 Claims. (Cl. 151—13.)

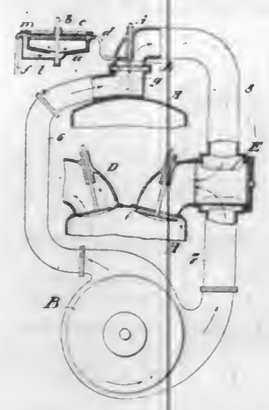


1. A nut lock, comprising a bolt having a longitudinal groove cutting the threads of the stem, a washer having an opening to receive the stem of the bolt, a tongue extending inwardly of the wall of said opening to engage in the groove in the bolt, a nut having a threaded opening to engage the bolt and having a groove cutting the threads therein, a second washer having an opening to receive the bolt, a tongue on said second washer engaging the groove in the nut, and interengaging elements on said washers to prevent relative rotation thereof.

1,664,745. FLUID PUMP. FRANK O. HOAGLAND, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to Pratt & Whitney Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 27, 1926. Serial No. 125,237. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—126.)

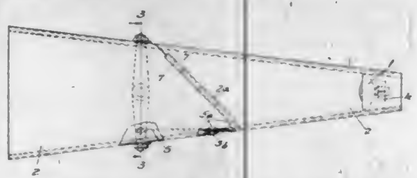
1. A fluid pump comprising in combination, a central member having an opening therein, intermediate side members having openings therein, side closing members, means securing said members together, pumping gears rotatably mounted within the opening within said central member, shafts supporting said gears in position, bearings for said shafts in said intermediate members, a driving gear for said first mentioned gears, a shaft integral with said latter gear and extending on opposite sides of said gear, a bearing for said shaft formed within one of the intermediate side members, a bearing for said shaft on the opposite side of said gear formed in one of the side closing members, and conduits extending through one of said members for the fluid being pumped.

1,664,746. WINDSHIELD-CLEANING DEVICE. JOHN ALEXANDER HOWARD, West Brighton, N. Y. Filed Mar. 10, 1927. Serial No. 174,314. 3 Claims. (Cl. 20—40.5.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a window and window frame, of an auxiliary transparent member mounted on said window frame in front of said first mentioned window, a nozzle mounted over the upper edge portion of said auxiliary transparent member extending the entire length thereof and comprising side walls disposed downwardly substantially adjacent the front and rear surface of said auxiliary transparent member, and a conduit connected with said nozzle for supplying a draft of heated air thereto, said nozzle being adapted to distribute the heated air evenly throughout the entire length of said transparent member and on the front and rear sides thereof to prevent excessive expansion of one surface of said transparent member relative to the other.

1,664,747. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE WITHOUT CARBURETOR. BASILE KAMENSKY, Berlin, Germany. Filed Mar. 31, 1924, Serial No. 703,096, and in Germany June 20, 1922. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—119.)



1. Internal combustion engine comprising in combination with the motor, a regulation valve, air pipes, a motor driven fuel pump admitting dosed quantities of fuel under pressure into the air pipe, means for evaporating the admitted fuel, a motor driven air pump mounted in said air pipes conducting pure air under pressure directly to the regulation valve, both pumps being of the same type.

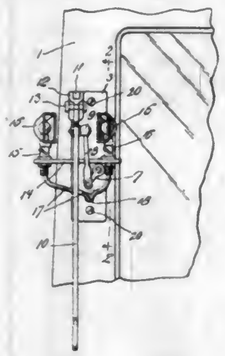
1,664,748. INDIRECT LIGHTING SYSTEM FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. LEWIS F. KORNS, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 2, 1927. Serial No. 210,074. 12 Claims. (Cl. 240—7.1.).

1. In a vehicle light, an inverted, trough like light reflecting shield formed in pivotally connected sections, a lamp mounted on one of said sections for directing light longitudinally of the shield, and the lamp carrying section swingable upwardly and downwardly to position above the other of said sections.

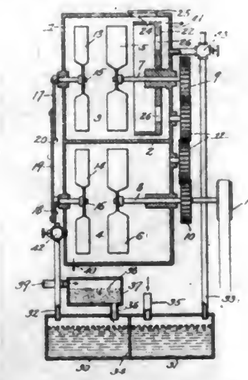
1,664,749. TILTING-HEARTH TRAY FURNACE. ALVIN D. KEENE, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 28, 1927. Serial No. 178,823. 6 Claims. (Cl. 263—7.)



1. In a furnace, the combination with an annular furnace chamber, and a plurality of hearth trays mounted for movement through said chamber, of means for tilting said trays to effect the discharge of material therefrom, and means carried by a wall of said furnace for returning said trays to a nontilted position.

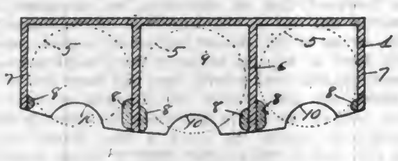
1,664,750. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF GALVANIC METAL COATINGS. FELIX KIRSCHNER, Vienna, Austria. Filed Oct. 12, 1923. Serial No. 668,162, and in Austria June 10, 1923. 3 Claims. (Cl. 204—13.)

1. The herein described method of producing a highly lustrous metallic coating upon a metal base, which consists in electrolytically coating the ground metal with a layer of low-melting-point metal, fusing the layer to the ground metal and thereupon cooling it in a water solution to transform it into a layer having a smooth highly lustrous surface, and immediately electrolytically depositing nickel thereupon.



1,664,751. DIRECTION INDICATOR. ROBERT HAYDEN KITCHEN and HENRY N. NORRIS, Grayson, Ky., assignors of one-third to Austin Fields, Grayson, Ky. Filed Mar. 15, 1926. Serial No. 94,937. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—62.)

1. In a direction signal, a pair of attaching plates, a shaft rotatably carried thereby, a signal arm pivotally connected at one end to one of said plates for vertical swinging movement, said plate having a light supporting flange adapted to provide illuminating means at opposite sides of the signal arm, an arm rotatably mounted on said shaft, a link attached at one end thereto and having a ball formed at its opposite end, a socket member carried by said signal arm for receiving said ball whereby to form a swivel connection between the link and signal arm, a quadrant attached to the opposite plate and a sectional operating handle arranged on the end of the shaft adjacent thereto, including an intermediate section of spring-pressed material adapted to yieldably retain the handle in engagement with the quadrant for securing the signal arm in a predetermined signalling position.



1,664,752. METHOD OF MEASURING THE DENSITY OF GAS. GEORG KÖNIG, Berlin-Dahlem, Germany. Filed July 3, 1924, Serial No. 723,976, and in Germany Mar. 6, 1920. 7 Claims. (Cl. 265—44.)

2. Method of measuring the density of a gas comprising, first, imparting kinetic energy to the gas to be measured, second, imparting kinetic energy to a standard gas, third, opposing the force produced by the energy imparted to the gas to be measured to the force produced by the energy imparted to the standard gas, and, fourth, measuring the combined effect of the two opposing forces.

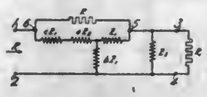
1,664,753. CARTON RACK. HERMAN H. LANGENFELD, Earling, Iowa. Filed May 9, 1927. Serial No. 189,931. 1 Claim. (Cl. 312—42.)

A carton rack comprising a casing having a back wall, side walls, vertically disposed spaced partitions in said casing and in combination with each other and with the side walls forming vertically disposed compartments for the reception of cartons, vertically disposed strips carried by the inner sides of the side walls and the opposite sides of the partition adjacent their outer edges, said strips terminating spaced from the lower ends of the compartments a distance equal to or greater than the height of the carton.

1,664,754. TIRE CARRIER. THOMAS H. LYNN, Williamsport, Pa. Filed Apr. 11, 1922. Serial No. 551,508. 1 Claim. (Cl. 224—29.)



The combination with a tire carrier, of a brace having a rear extension secured to the tire carrier and provided with lugs, said brace being made angular in cross-section and the rear ends of its flanges forming a backstop for a tire, lever members pivotally connected together, one of said lever members pivotally connected with the carrier, and a link having a shoulder, pivotally connected with the other lever member and pivotally connected with the lugs of the brace extension.

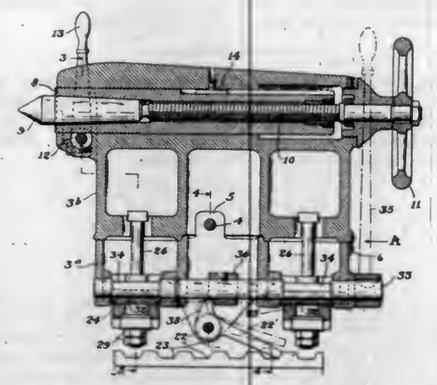
1,664,755. ELECTRICAL NETWORK. EDWARD L. NORTON, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 31, 1926. Serial No. 98,649. 1 Claim. (Cl. 178—44.)

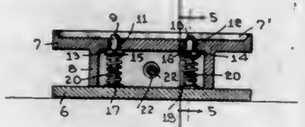
A wave transmission network having a pair of input terminals and a pair of output terminals adapted to be connected to a load circuit having a substantially constant resistance impedance over a range of frequencies, said network comprising an impedance element connected directly between an input terminal and an output terminal, a pair of unequal impedance elements having a common terminal and having their other terminals connected respectively to the terminals of said first impedance element, and a fourth impedance element having one terminal connected to said common terminal and having connections from its other terminal to the remaining input and output terminals, the impedances of the elements of said network being so proportioned with respect to one another and to the impedance of the load circuit that the input impedance of said network is a constant resistance over said range of frequencies.

1,664,756. BOTTLE AND CLOSURE THEREFOR. WILTON H. PERRY, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 20, 1926. Serial No. 155,786. 2 Claims. (Cl. 215—6.)



1. A bottle provided in the top of its neck with an annular channel adapted to contain water and surrounding the mouth of the bottle, a cap fitted on to the neck of the bottle and covering the top of said neck with that portion of the cap which overlies the neck spaced from the top of the neck and provided with an opening registering with the mouth of the bottle, a cover for said cap and adapted when in closed position to seal the opening in the cap, and a pad of absorbent material carried by the cover on the under side thereof.

1,664,757. TAILSTOCK CLAMPING MECHANISM. CLIFFORD F. RANDOLPH, Plainfield, N. J., assignor to Niles-Bement-Pond Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 21, 1923, Serial No. 626,584. Renewed Sept. 13, 1927. 8 Claims. (Cl. 82—31.)



1. A lathe tailstock comprising the combination of means for engaging the ways of a lathe bed, a pair of relatively movable clamping elements adjacent each end of the tailstock for engaging beneath the ways, and means including a shaft extending longitudinally of the tailstock for operating both pairs of clamping elements, the elements of each said pair being moved relatively in performing the clamping operation.

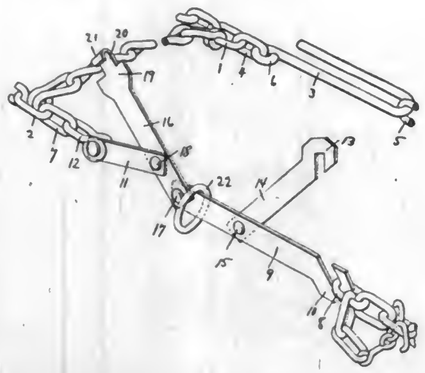
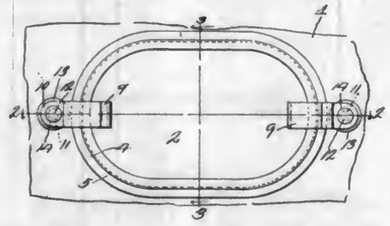
1,664,758. ELECTRICALLY-HEATED SADIRON STAND. ROBERT O. REYNOLDS, Auburn, Me., assignor to Abraham Baker, Auburn, Me. Filed Nov. 26, 1926. Serial No. 150,764. 1 Claim. (Cl. 219—25.)



A stand for an electrically heated iron having exposed contact members on the base thereof, said stand comprising two flat faces separated by a housing, contact members in said housing projecting through the upper flat face of the stand, collars on said contact members limiting the movement of said members upwardly, coil springs about said contact members urging the latter upwardly through the upper face of the stand, said coil springs seating at one end against shoes on the base flat member of the stand and within the aforesaid housing, and at the other end against the collars aforesaid.

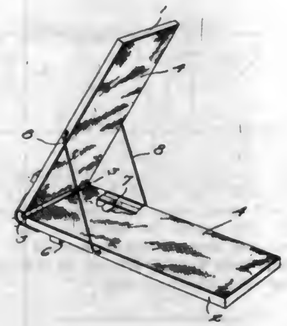
1,664,759. ELECTRIC FITTING AND THE LIKE. ALBERT B. RYPINSKI, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Thomas E. Murray, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 13, 1921. Serial No. 469,168. 5 Claims. (Cl. 173—342.)



1. A fitting of the class described having a socket and terminal pieces fastened thereto by a single screw, and a base of non-conducting material, said socket and terminal pieces being all mounted on top of said base and fastened thereon by the said screw.

1,664,760. CHAIN FASTENER. LOREN B. THOMPSON, Virginia, Ill. Filed May 24, 1927. Serial No. 193,826. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—68.)

In a chain fastener, an elongated bar formed at its outer end with a hook for detachable engagement with one of the free end links of a tire chain, a complementary hook carrying member carried by the bar and adapted to engage with said free end link to prevent the disengagement of the link from the hooked outer end of the bar, a shorter bar secured at its outer end to the other free end link of the chain, an elongated lever pivoted at one end to the inner end of the longer bar, the inner end of the shorter bar being pivotally secured to the lever at a point adjacent the pivotal connection between the inner end of the lever and inner end of said elongated bar, said shorter bar adapted to move forwardly toward the longer bar when the lever is swung forwardly to tighten the chain, a head formed on the outer free end of the pivoted lever, a tongue projecting outwardly from the outer end of the head, the outer end of the tongue being bent to form a hook, the outer end portion of the lever being sprung outwardly, and a locking ring adapted for disposition over the hooked outer end of said tongue and the hooked outer end of the elongated bar for locking the lever in its downwardly swung position.



1,664,761. ANTIFROSTING DEVICE. RUDOLPH V. TICHOTA, Dodge, Nebr. Filed June 27, 1927. Serial No. 201,827. 2 Claims. (Cl. 20—40.5.)

1. The combination with a windshield glass, an antifrosting device adjacent one side of said glass, a sheet of transparent material carried by said antifrosting device, a yieldable frame extending around the edges of said transparent material and having a channel in which the edges of the transparent material is disposed, of means for attaching said anti-frosting device to the windshield glass, said means comprising U-shaped metallic members arching the edges of the transparent material and in the channels of the frame, one side of said U-shaped members terminating in spring arms, said spring arms extending beyond the sides of the frame, and vacuum cups carried by said spring arms beyond the sides of the frame and cooperating with the windshield glass.

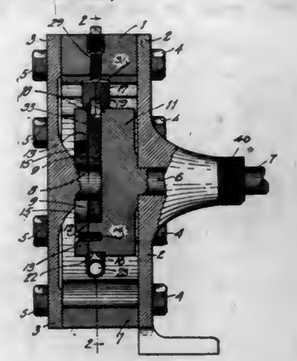
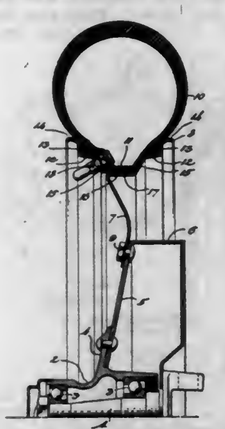
1,664,762. INSECT DESTROYER. HERMAN E. VOSS, Yuhsien, China. Filed Aug. 1, 1927. Serial No. 209,940. 1 Claim. (Cl. 43—137.)



An insect destroyer of the character described comprising elongated frames, wire mesh covering one of the faces thereof, hinges secured to one of the ends thereof for mounting the frames for movable relation with respect to each other, spring means for urging the frame to open position, flexible means secured to said frame to limit the open position thereof, and finger gripping pieces transversing each of said frames and being arranged adjacent the hinged ends thereof.

1,664,763. CONVEYER. JERVIS B. WEBB, Detroit, Mich. Filed Feb. 12, 1925. Serial No. 8,606. 2 Claims. (Cl. 198—193.)

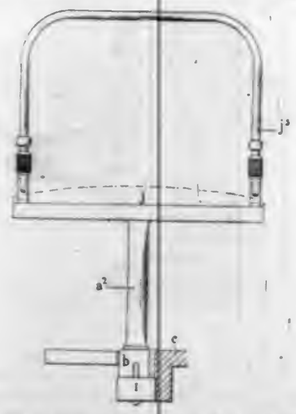


1. In conveyer apparatus, the combination of flexible endless conveyer means located in parallel spaced relation to each other, rotatable bars extending transversely of and connected at their opposite ends to the said conveyer means, which bars are adapted to support loads to be transported by the said conveyer means, combined stationary and rotatable supporting means for supporting the upper portions of the said flexible conveyers, and means for supporting the said load supporting means and the said conveyer means when the latter occupy their lower position.

1,664,764. PUMP. ARTHUR SHELDON WELDY, Canton, Ohio. Filed Sept. 3, 1926. Serial No. 133,452. 12 Claims. (Cl. 103—160.)

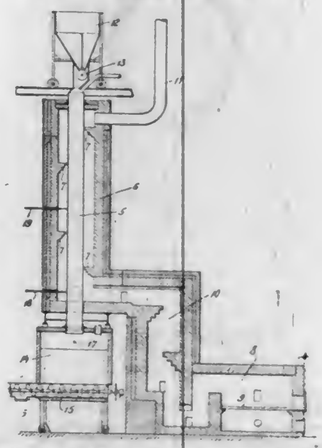
1. A pump comprising a casing, closely interfitting members rotatively mounted independent of and eccentric to each other within said casing and forming a pumping unit comprising a cylinder and plunger adapted to reciprocate therein, means for varying the relative reciprocating movement of said members, and means separate from said casing in contact with one of said members adapted to receive the discharge of said unit.

1,664,765. WHEEL STRUCTURE. CHARLES S. ASH, Royal Oak, Mich. Filed Aug. 30, 1923. Serial No. 660,079. 3 Claims. (Cl. 301—63.)



2. A disk wheel structure comprising a disk portion formed with an integral tire retaining rim portion, a peripheral portion of said disk being offset laterally to provide a seat for a tire bead and then extended radially outward to provide a tire retaining flange, and an annular rim member providing a seat for a tire bead and a tire retaining flange at the side of the disk opposite the integral rim portion thereof, said rim member having an annular portion to engage the laterally offset portion of the integral rim portion and secured thereto.

1,664,766. PIVOTING EMERGENCY SEAT. ARTHUR BOULOGNE, Levallois-Perret, France. Filed Jan. 6, 1926, Serial No. 79,606, and in France Jan. 14, 1925. 6 Claims. (Cl. 155—12.)



1. A folding seat of the character described, comprising a spindle adapted to fold in a vertical plane, a seat support on the upper end of the spindle, a seat mounted on said support, a cone part on the spindle, a fixed conical socket for receiving said cone part when the seat is in the raised position, a movable member mounted in the fixed socket, means on the spindle for engaging the movable member, and means comprising a stationary part and a spring device for controlling the turning movement of the said movable member and of the seat, the spring device cooperating with the movable member and the stationary point.

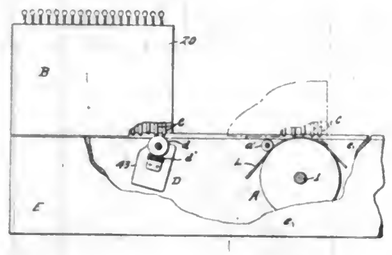
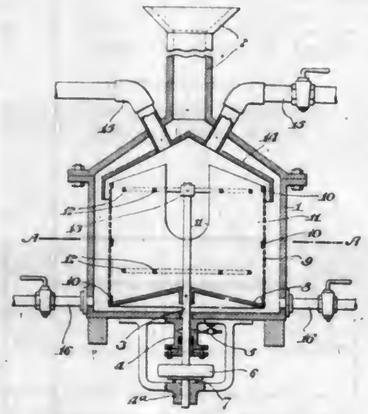
1,664,767. ZINC OXIDE. FRANK G. BREYER, EARL H. BUNCE, and JOHN H. WEIKEL, Palmerton, Pa., assignors to The New Jersey Zinc Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 18, 1925. Serial No. 37,902. 5 Claims. (Cl. 134—78.)



3. The method of improving zinc oxide for rubber compounding use, which comprises reducing the acidity of the oxide by the action of steam.

5. The method of improving zinc oxide for rubber compounding use which comprises passing the oxide through a tunnel furnace on a conveyor, said tunnel furnace having a heated zone filled with steam at a temperature between 125° and 150°.



1,664,768. LISTING, COUNTING, AND PRINTING MACHINE. WILLIAM C. BULL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 27, 1926. Serial No. 84,040. 10 Claims. (Cl. 101—91.)

1. In a machine of the character disclosed, an impression cylinder, means for clamping a list sheet on said cylinder, a printing carriage, a plurality of printing units on said carriage, each unit comprising a type bar for printing the name of an article, a type wheel for printing the number of the article, means for setting said type bar and said type wheel in printing position for printing on said sheet when the carriage is moved over said cylinder, and means for advancing the cylinder a short distance each time an item is printed on said sheet so that the next item may be printed on said sheet immediately against said preceding item.

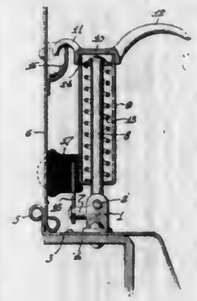
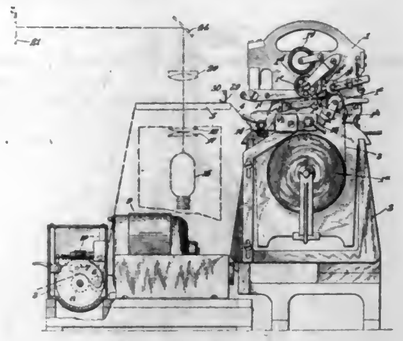
1,664,769. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR CENTRIFUGAL THICKENING OF MIXTURES AND CLARIFYING OF LIQUIDS. HENRY M. CHANCE, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 29, 1925. Serial No. 46,752. 2 Claims. (Cl. 210—51.)



1. In separating a fluid mixture of liquid and comminuted solids heavier than said liquid into a clarified or partly clarified liquid and a thickened mixture of said liquid and solids, the improved method which consists in imparting substantially uniform angular speed of rotation to a substantially vertical cylindrical body of said fluid mixture; in introducing said mixture to be separated into a region of high rotative speed at a point exterior to but closely adjacent to the peripheral boundary of said rotating body; in causing said solids, by centrifugal force to move away from the center of rotation towards and into a region of relatively slow rotation beyond the peripheral boundary of said rotating body; in causing the said liquid to move towards the center of rotation, whereby the said liquid is clarified and the said mixture is thickened, and in removing said liquid from the said central region of rotation and the said thickened mixture from said peripheral region.

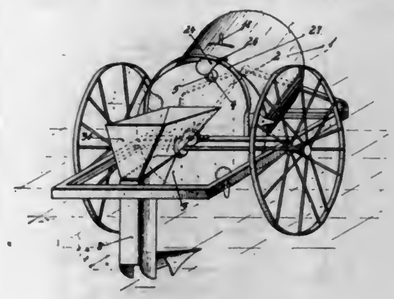
1,664,770. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR RECORDING AND EXHIBITING. WILLIAM J. CITRON, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Feb. 16, 1927. Serial No. 168,683. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)

1. An apparatus for recording and exhibiting transitory information, comprising a typewriter having a platen roll, a projecting lantern disposed below the typewriter, means for guiding a strip of writing material from a supply roll to the platen roll of the typewriter, means for guiding said strip from the platen roll across the aperture of the lantern, and means connected with the platen roll for advancing said strip past the aperture.



1,664,771. SIDE-CLAMP HOOD FASTENER. NORMAN W. CUMMINS, Plymouth, Mich. Filed Oct. 9, 1925. Serial No. 61,510. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—114.)

1. In a hood fastener wherein a hood wall is adapted to be clamped down and against a stop member, and wherein a catch element is placed in hooked engagement with the hood wall to effect such clamping action against the stop member:—supporting means for said catch element, said means comprising a clamping element pivotally mounted adjacent the stop member and yieldingly supporting said catch element, and a buffer resiliently supported by said clamping element and adapted to be compressed between the hood wall and the lower end of the catch element.



1,664,772. METHOD AND MEANS FOR FEEDING TAPE. ROBERT LOUIS DAINE, New York, N. Y., assignor to Trans-Lux Daylight Picture Screen Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 4, 1926, Serial No. 86,107. Renewed Feb. 25, 1928. 57 Claims. (Cl. 271—2.4.)

1. The method of converting an intermittent motion of a tape into a continuous motion which consists in forming a loop in the tape where it is moving intermittently, applying a brake to the tape adjacent the end of the loop, feeding the tape from the brake with a continuous motion, and starting and stopping said continuous motion with a gradual acceleration and gradual retardation.

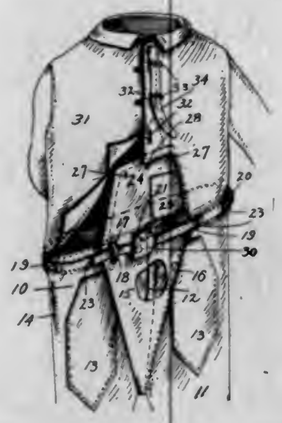
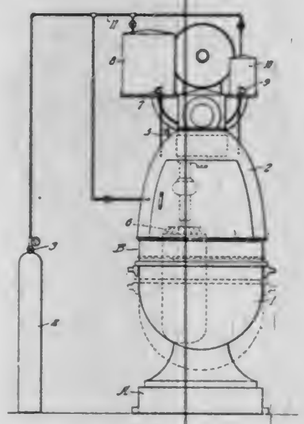
1,664,773. POTATO-PLANTING MACHINE. ALFRED EDELHOFF, Volkmarsen, Germany. Filed Apr. 18, 1927, Serial No. 184,762, and in Hungary Jan. 1, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—128.)



1. A potato planting machine, comprising, in combination with a wheeled frame, a drum-shaped receptacle adapted to receive the potatoes and being arranged obliquely, the rear end of its axis lying lower than its front end, partition walls subdividing the interior of said drum into a plurality of compartments, and every partition wall having a recess in its rim, the recesses of the several partition walls being located in staggered arrangement, and means for conveying the potatoes singly out of the said drum, substantially as set forth.

1,664,774. OVERALLS. ISAAC L. EDWARDS, Aurora, Ill. Filed June 10, 1927. Serial No. 197,929. 6 Claims. (Cl. 2—79.)



5. A trousers form garment having a fly and an apron extending from the crotch upward and adapted to cover the fly and permanently attached on one side beginning with the crotch upward to the waist and being loose or free from the crotch upward at the other side, means for confining the apron at the free side to the waist of the garment, and a belt extending about the waist, the free ends of the belt being at the front, said means for confining the free side of the apron comprising a loop at the waist, a hole in the apron through which the loop projects and through which said belt is placed and means for securing together the free ends of the belt, the waist having spaced holes through which said belt may be laced.

1,664,775. MAYONNAISE PRODUCT AND PROCESS FOR PRODUCING SAME. ALBERT K. EPSTEIN, Chicago, and MARVIN C. REYNOLDS, Oak Park, Ill. Filed Apr. 28, 1926. Serial No. 105,064. 7 Claims. (Cl. 99—11.)

1. The process for making a food product consisting of dispersing a chemically inert gas in an emulsion including edible oils in egg material at normal temperature, the amount of gas dispersed being greater than the amount soluble in the product.

1,664,776. NONVIBRATING GAUGE. OTTO W. HEISE, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Consolidated Ashcroft Hancock Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 26, 1925. Serial No. 52,704. 4 Claims. (Cl. 73—109.)

2. In an instrument of the class described, the combination with its mechanical train inclusive of the pressure responsive element, of an oscillatory member having such mass and attached to said mechanical train in such manner as to resist by its inertia alone relatively rapid pressure fluctuation impulses without affecting the response of the instrument to slow pressure changes, and a resilient connection in said train between the pressure responsive elements and said oscillatory member.

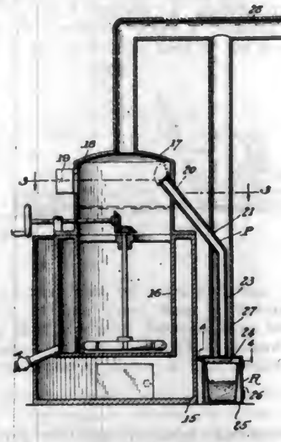
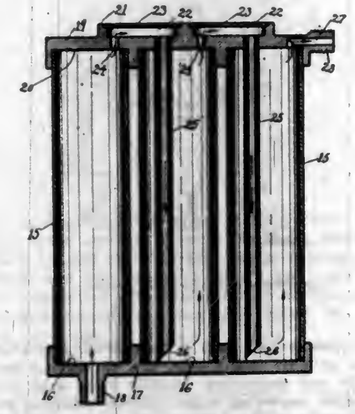
1,664,777. STENCIL SHEET. SHINJIRO HORII, Kanda-Ku, Tokyo, Japan. Filed Jan. 14, 1927. Serial No. 161,247. 3 Claims. (Cl. 41—38.6.)

1. Stencil sheet comprising a base of fibrous material impregnated with a mixture of a solution of esters of polysaccharides in a suitable solvent and alcohols obtained from oils and waxes of marine animals or fishes.



1,664,778. THERMOSTAT. LEE P. HYNES, Albany, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Consolidated Car-Heating Company, Inc., Albany, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 24, 1923. Serial No. 627,515. 8 Claims. (Cl. 200—141.)

8. A thermostat comprising a hollow casing constructed of low heat conducting material, said casing being provided with slots, a metallic temperature detector having a corrugated outer portion extending over a contiguous portion on the outside surface of said casing, said detector having inwardly extended portions projecting through said slots, a thermometer tube within said casing and provided with electric contacts, and means carried by the inwardly extended portions of said temperature detector for engaging the bulb of the thermometer and maintaining a thermal conducting contact therewith.



1,664,779. MELTING POT. LOUIS WARREN JONES, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 10, 1927. Serial No. 174,336. 6 Claims. (Cl. 266—34.)

1. In combination, a melting pot for metals, a dross receptacle, an outlet in the pot through which dross from the surface of the molten metal in the pot can be discharged from the pot, means for conducting the ejected dross to the receptacle, and means correlated with respect to the receptacle for separating unmelted articles, matrices and space bands from the dross to permit recovering thereof.

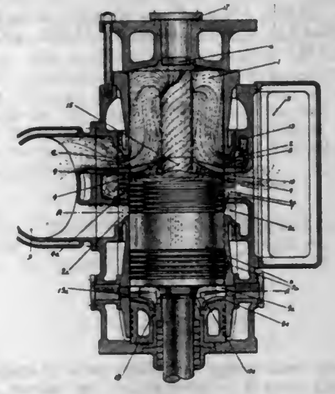
1,664,780. CARBONATED-WATER COOLER. WILLIAM E. LEIBINO, Oakland, Calif., assignor to Magnus Fruit Products Co., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed July 20, 1925. Serial No. 44,787. 1 Claim. (Cl. 261—121.)



A device for prevention of separation of gas in a carbonated water cooler, comprising a pair of spaced end sections, a plurality of hollow cylinders mounted in and between the end sections and forming closed chambers therewith, one of said end sections being formed with an inlet, one of said end sections having an outlet, said inlet being of greater area than the outlet, one of said end sections having its normal upper edge portion formed with a plurality of transfer chambers and with inlet and outlet ducts establishing communication through said transfer chambers and between said closed chambers, corresponding inlet ducts of the respective transfer chambers being smaller than the corresponding outlet ducts of said transfer chambers, pipe sections mounted in the outlet ducts of the respective transfer chambers and extending downwardly through said closed chambers establishing communication between said transfer chambers and the bottom portion of the closed chambers, whereby carbonated liquid is maintained in said closed chambers under pressure and is conducted serially through all of said chambers between said inlet and outlet and flows upwardly through all the chambers.

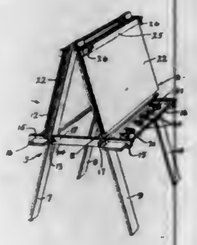
1,664,781. DYNAMO-ELECTRIC MACHINE. GEORGE H. LELAND, Dayton, Ohio, assignor of one-half to The Leland Electric Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 22, 1920. Serial No. 425,832. 19 Claims. (Cl. 172—279.)

12. A short circuiting device for electric motors including in combination with a commutator, a plurality of weight elements arranged circumferentially of the axis of said commutator and movable outwardly by centrifugal force, and an annular helical spring arranged circumferentially of said weight elements and engaging the outer ends thereof to resist the outward movement of said weight elements by centrifugal force.

1,664,782. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. EDWARD C. MAODEBURGER, Washington, D. C. Filed Jan. 20, 1925. Serial No. 3,604. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—61.)

1. A scavenging system for internal combustion engines including a cylinder, a piston operable therein, a plurality of scavenging and exhaust ports in the cylinder, the scavenging and exhaust ports being respectively arranged on transverse lines with respect to the cylinder, the ports in one line being staggered with respect to the ports in the other line, ports in the piston coacting with the scavenging ports in the cylinder, and means carried by the piston for producing a substantially solid column of scavenging fluid only.

1,664,783. COMPOUND TOOL. CARL MARCH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 16, 1926. Serial No. 95,115. 1 Claim. (Cl. 294—7.)



An implement for turning over fried cakes while being baked on a griddle, comprising an elongated solid rod, one end thereof being enlarged, the enlarged end of the rod being substantially triangular in cross section, one flat face of the triangular portion adapted to rest on the griddle while the apex portion of the triangular portion engages the under side of the cake, the outer end of the triangular shaped enlarged portion being tapered to provide a point which tapered portion is circular in cross section, said pointed end facilitating the insertion of the implement beneath the cake and further facilitating the proper positioning of the triangular portion beneath the cakes to effect the turning of the same, the outer end of the rod being formed with a handle, the intermediate portion of the rod being provided with a series of air holes.

1,664,784. EASEL. MARY E. A. MERRITT, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,693. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—129.)

1,664,785. FENCE-WIRE STRUCTURE. HARRY M. MOORE, Elmira, Mo. Filed Jan. 12, 1927. Serial No. 160,650. 1 Claim. (Cl. 254—68.)

In a wire stretcher, a frame of general V-shaped configuration composed of a pair of angle irons, a cross brace connected to the diverging end portions of said irons, spur plates carried by the last named ends of said bars, a body disposed between and connected to the opposite ends of said irons, said body having a passage extending therethrough, a toothed rack bar slidable through said passage, a chain connected to the inner end of said rack bar, a hook carried by the free end of said chain, an operating lever for said rack bar, a link pivotally connected to said lever and to said body, a spring pressed pawl mounted upon said body and movable at right angles to said rack bar for engaging the teeth of the latter, and a rotary retainer carried by said pawl.

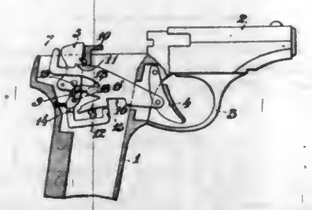
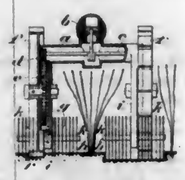
1,664,786. DUST-COLLECTING DEVICE FOR ROCK DRILLS. SPIRO MUMOVICH, Anyox, British Columbia, Canada. Filed July 26, 1926. Serial No. 125,090. 2 Claims. (Cl. 255—50.)

1. The combination with a rock drilling machine including a cylinder and a drill rod of bearing members carried by and projecting laterally from said cylinder, a rigid dust conveying tube slidably mounted in said bearing members, an abutment carried by said tube, a spring confined between said abutment and one of the bearing members and tending to move the tube in the direction of the work, and a dust collecting cup carried by said tube and receiving the drill rod therethrough, the interior of said cup being in communication iwth the interior of said tube.



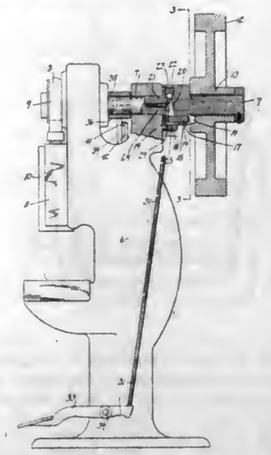
2. The combination with a rock drilling machine including a cylinder and a drill rod of bearings carried by and projecting laterally from the cylinder, a rigid dust conveying tube slidably mounted in said bearings and formed at one end with an integral laterally offset cup having a central opening receiving the drill rod therethrough, a flexible lip carried by said cup, and a spring encircling said tube and confined in compression between an abutment on the tube and one of said bearings so as to normally tend to slide the tube in the direction of the work to maintain contact between the work and the flexible lip of the cup.

1,664,787. AIR BRAKE. GEORGE E. OAKLEY, Albany, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Consolidated Car-Heating Company, Inc., Albany, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 3, 1926. Serial No. 85,664. 7 Claims. (Cl. 203—6.1.)



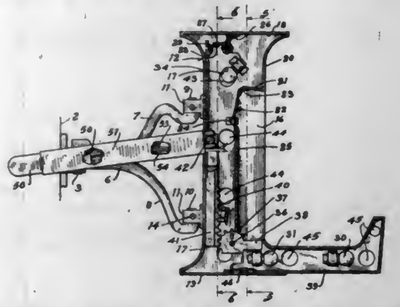
1. An air-brake system comprising a brake-controlling valve, an electromagnet therefor, a steering wheel, and a switch for said magnet, and a circuit closing contact for said switch located adjacent to the steering wheel so that it may be gripped by the operator while grasping said steering wheel.

1,664,788. AUTOMATIC OR SELF-LOADING SMALL ARM. LUDWIO OBERHAMMER, Munich, Germany. Filed May 27, 1926. Serial No. 112,049, and in Germany June 17, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 42—8.)



2. In a recoil-operated pistol, a percussion element having a notch therein; a catch having a pointed end engageable in said notch to hold the percussion element at fullcock and also having a locking arm; and a trigger bar cooperative with said catch in cocking and uncocking said element and having a recess for engagement by said arm.

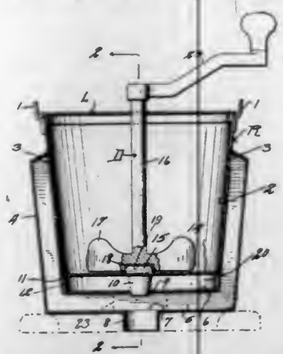
1,664,789. MOTOR TILLING MACHINE. KONRAD VON MEYENBURG, Basel, Switzerland. Filed Dec. 1, 1925, Serial No. 72,549, and in Germany Dec. 12, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 97—40.)



1. In a motor tilling machine for tilling between rows of plants, a hollow main frame forming a gear casing, two hollow arms extending downwardly from said frame on both sides of a row of plants and rigidly connected therewith so as to form with said frame a rigid yoke-like housing, two horizontal tilling shafts carried by said hollow arms and a gearing located within said arms to drive said shafts.

1,664,790. AUTOMATIC GUARD FOR THE INTERMITTENTLY-OPERATED RAMS OF POWER MACHINES. HUGO C. PAECHT, New Haven, Conn., assignor to Standard Safety Manufacturing Co., New Haven, Conn., a Corporation. Filed Oct. 10, 1924. Serial No. 742,945. 5 Claims. (Cl. 192—116.5.)

1. In a power machine, the combination with an intermittently-driven shaft, of a fly-wheel therefor, coupling and uncoupling mechanism for said shaft and wheel, and an automatic guard-mechanism connected with the said coupling and uncoupling mechanism for operation thereby, so that the guard-mechanism will be brought into play for preventing a second or successive revolution of the shaft after the same has been uncoupled from the fly-wheel whereby the shaft is limited to one revolution for each volitional operation of the said coupling-and-uncoupling mechanism.



1,664,791. TRAFFIC SIGNAL FOR AUTOMOBILES. JOSEPH H. POWERS, Mills, Wyo. Filed Mar. 6, 1925. Serial No. 13,439. 1 Claim. (Cl. 177—329.)

In an automobile traffic signal having a vertical casing open on one side, a signal arm pivoted to the lower end of the casing and adapted to be folded into the casing when in inoperative position and to extend outwardly in a horizontal direction when in operative position and means for moving said arm from operative to inoperative position, a lamp located within the casing near the upper end thereof, a partition extending transversely of the casing below the lamp, a portion of said partition being immovably secured to the casing and another portion being hingedly connected with the stationary portion so as to normally assume a vertical position and means on the arm for moving the hinged portion to a horizontal position when the arm is moved to inoperative position.

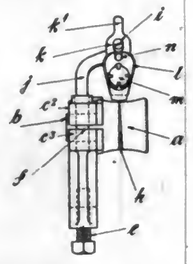
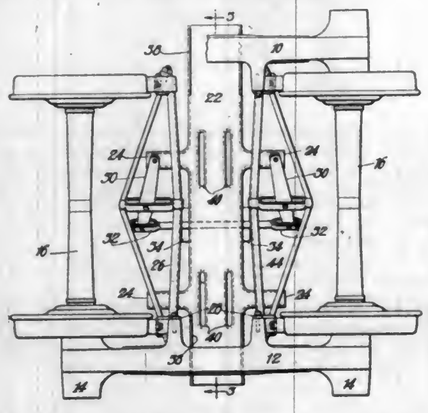
1,664,792. WASHING MACHINE. JAMES ELMER RUFFNER, Jeannette, Pa. Filed Jan. 25, 1927. Serial No. 163,452. 6 Claims. (Cl. 68—15.)



1. A washing machine comprising a receptacle having substantially opposed openings in the upper portion of its side wall, conduits carried by such side wall of the receptacle and leading downwardly from the openings, another conduit extending across the bottom of the receptacle and with which the first named conduits communicate, the central portion of the last named conduit being provided with a discharge opening, a dasher working within the receptacle, and means for admitting liquid under pressure within the lower portion of the receptacle to provide the continuous upward movement of the liquid in the receptacle, said liquid rising within the receptacle carrying off through the conduits matter loosened from the articles being cleansed within the receptacle.

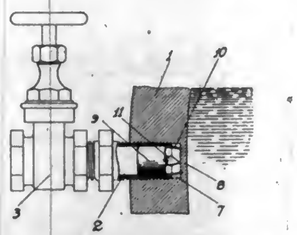
1,664,793. TOOL FOR RESTORING SCREW THREADS. HENRY F. SCHLEININGER, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 11, 1926. Serial No. 140,698. 1 Claim. (Cl. 10—1.)



A tool for restoring screw threads, comprising a hardened steel bar having on the face thereof a plurality of parallel longitudinally extending ridges spaced and shaped to conform to a thread of given pitch, the ridges being cut at intervals by grooves extending diagonally with respect thereto.

1,664,794. SLUB CATCHER. ALFRED SEELEY, Rochdale, England. Filed Aug. 23, 1927, Serial No. 214,923, and in Great Britain Aug. 14, 1926. 21 Claims. (Cl. 28—64.)

1. A device for effecting the removal of thick or thick and soft places or portions from yarns or threads which comprises a grooved body adapted to be adjusted in position about an axial line, presenting a V groove increasing in depth from one part to another with its bottom curvilinear about said axial line, catching means to extend within range of thick places or portions of greater than intended thickness presented in yarn passing in said V groove and adjustable in the direction to and from the bottom of said groove, a support providing bearing for said grooved body allowing it to be adjusted about said axial line and bearing for said catching means allowing said catching means to be adjusted towards or from the groove of said grooved body, means for fixing said grooved body in position about said axial line and means for fixing said catching means in adjustment in the direction to and from the bottom of the groove of said grooved body.



1,664,795. RAILROAD-CAR TRUCK. WILLIAM C. SLEEMAN, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Nov. 12, 1926. Serial No. 147,948. 6 Claims. (Cl. 105—208.)

1. A car truck including spaced side frames, a pressed metal spring plank extending transversely between said frames and brake beam safety supports pressed integrally with said spring plank.

1,664,796. WOODEN-PIPE TAP. WILLIAM E. SPANGLE, Fairoaks, Calif. Filed Feb. 7, 1927. Serial No. 166,527. 4 Claims. (Cl. 225—41.)

1. A device for removing the wood remaining at the bottom of a hole partially drilled through the side of a wooden pipe to receive a threaded pipe fitting, comprising a cutting element projecting longitudinally from the inner end of the fitting and adapted to engage and cut the wood circumferentially with the rotative advancement of the fitting into the hole, and a band on which the element is mounted adapted to be fitted into the bore of the fitting at its inner end.

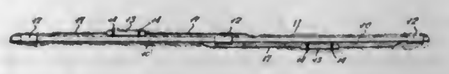
1,664,797. BRUSH. PHILIP W. STONE, Boston, Mass. Filed Oct. 21, 1924. Serial No. 745,005. 5 Claims. (Cl. 15—201.)

1. A tooth brush comprising a handle member, a head carried by said handle, tufts of bristles set in said head, a relatively short member in which are set a smaller number of tufts to supplement those carried by the handle member and constitute together a full length tooth brush, the short member being of greater thickness and width than the bristle carrying portion of the handle member and being channeled to receive and snugly embrace the head.

1,664,798. RECEIVING DEVICE FOR DISTANT-VISION INSTALLATION. GEORGES. VALENSI, Paris, France. Filed Sept. 7, 1923, Serial No. 661,507, and in France Dec. 29, 1922. 5 Claims. (Cl. 178—6.)

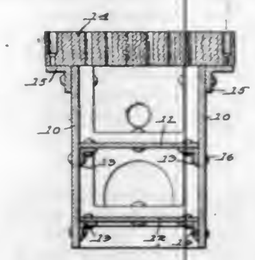


1. In a distant vision installation comprising a photo-electric cell at the transmitting station and an electric device at the receiving station adapted to be acted upon by the photo-electric current proceeding from said photo-electric cell, a local source of additional energy for producing rays in said electric device, means in the path of said rays for producing a luminous wide spot, means for acting upon said rays in accordance with the variations of the photo-electric current, means for producing a luminous point from said luminous wide spot and for displacing said point in a continuous manner and at a uniform speed, and means for synchronizing said exploration with the exploration at the transmitting station of the image to be reproduced.

1,664,799. APPARATUS FOR ONWARD MOVEMENT IN SWIMMING ATTITUDE IN THE WATER. RUDOLF PIETER VAN ALPHEN, The Hague, Netherlands. Filed Apr. 11, 1927, Serial No. 182,936, and in the Netherlands Mar. 30, 1926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 9—18.)

In a device of the character described, two longitudinally adjustable vertical sections of small width in comparison to their height, a substantially flat horizontal buoyant section on one of said vertical sections for supporting the body portion of a swimmer, a substantially flat horizontal buoyant section on the second vertical section, a propeller mounted in the rear end of said second vertical section, manually operable means for rotating said propeller to cause movement of said device, and a manually controlled rudder adjacent the front end of said vertical section, the longitudinal adjustment of said vertical sections permitting adjustment to the requirements of the individual swimmer.

1,664,800. ELECTROCHEMICAL METHOD OF AND MEANS FOR PROTECTING BURIED PIPE LINES AGAINST CORROSION. RONALD VAN AUKEN MILLS, Sandy Spring, Md., assignor to Peter Q. Nyce, Washington, D. C. Filed Dec. 5, 1924. Serial No. 754,187. 2 Claims. (Cl. 204—1.)



1. A device for protecting buried iron or steel piping against corrosion, comprising a zinc protecting element buried within the earth in intimate contact therewith and in close proximity to said piping, but spaced therefrom by means of non-conducting spacers, and conductors for completing an electric circuit to said piping at a distance from the protecting element.
